Watching Governor Smith. So Wall Street Shivered. For Childless Women. The World Will Survive.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

(Copyright, 1927.)

GOVERNOR SMITH'S victory in the New York elections Tuesday makes Republicans thoughtful.

With President Coolidge, whose election was ninety-nine and nine-tenths certain, removing himself from the field, Republicans will need a candidate constructive and convincing.

WALL STREET shivered on Wednesday, hearing that George F. Baker was ill, and let stock prices drop. That was typical of Wall street nervousness.

MR. BAKER, one of the world's four richest men, was only slightly ill. In any case, like John D. Rockefeller, Mr. Baker is fortunate in having an able son ready to carry on his affairs, and carrying a big part of the load now.

There would be no throwing overboard of stocks or any dangerous happening on the death of any of the big financial four—Rockefeller, Mellon, Baker, Ford.

WHICH is the richest, nobody knows; not one of the big four knows. Perhaps it is Rockefeller, who has so much underground.

THIS news, if confirmed, will lighten the hearts of many women. Dr. Magian, of Manchester, a scientist of standing, says that by an operation in gland transplanting it has been made possible for hitherto childless women to bear children. Only those who know the intense sorrow of a woman, married and childless, can realize what this means.

PROFESSOR GULICK of Columbia is afraid that our wave of crime, reaching from government officials to bootleggers, will "engulf public life." But it WON'T.

UNSUCCESSFUL criminals go to prisons, some to the electric chair. Criminals that become rich also become diseased or drunken or both and die out.

Even political crime, selling government oil lands, bribing cabinet officers, etc., will disappear.

The world as a whole IS honest, LIKES honesty, and is steadily getting better. A little set back, just now, from bootleggers, but that will pass.

SOCIALISTS in the Reading, Pa., election made a clean sweep, electing the mayor and controlling the city council for the next four years, biggest Socialist victory since Socialists captured Milwaukee some years ago.

Socialists in Reading will be fortunate if they go as well as Milwaukee did under the Socialists, directed by Victor L. Berger, whose theory includes "absolute obedience to law." Berger, well educated and intelligent, knows that where the majority can rule having the vote there is no excuse for any action, except at the polls.

THE world accepts changes as they come. Not long ago crusaders in New York tried to prevent bicycle riding by women, called unmodest, luring ladies too far from the house. Now they go 1,000 miles in motors, or try to fly over the ocean.

NEXT, alderman decided that women must be forbidden to smoke in public restaurants. Now the big Pennsylvania Railroad puts ladies' smoking cars on its first-class trains from New York to Washington.

NEVERTHELESS, women should not smoke until they are through with child bearing. Each child should have half a

HARPSTER SCORES ON 1ST PLAY

SCORE—FIRST QUARTER

Carnegie 20
Western Reserve 0

By CHARLES J. DOYLE

Carnegie Tech opposed Western Reserve of Cleveland, and Duquesne University was host to Waynesburg in Armistice Day football games on Pittsburgh gridirons this afternoon.

The Carnegie Plebes' engagement with the W. & J. Freshmen contributed much to the attractiveness of the Tartans' Forbes Field program. The Duquesne-Waynesburg clash on the Bluff was a Tristate Conference affair in which no title was involved.

The Carnegie-Western Reserve game in detail follows:

FIRST QUARTER

Western Reserve won the toss and kicked off to Carnegie. Morton booted the ball to Harpster, who caught the ball on his own 12-yard line and then dashed up the field for a touchdown. It was an 88-yard run. Letzelter added the extra point.

Score: Carnegie Tech 7, Western Reserve 0.

Letzelter kicked off to Stephens, who caught the ball on his own goal line and ran it back eight yards. Stephens, on a series of thrusts, made a first down. Tech then held the enemy and forced a punt, which went out of bounds on the Tech 44. English made four and then Moorhead broke away for 16 yards. Moorhead made 10 yards around right end for another first down. English made three yards on the next thrust. Harpster then threw a forward to English, who caught the ball on the five-yard line and then hustled over for the touchdown. Letzelter missed the extra point.

Score: Carnegie, 13; Western Reserve, 0.

Morton kicked to Moorhead, who ran the ball back 10 yards to his own 27-yard line. A line play failed to gain. Moorhead was then thrown for a two-yard loss by Cathcart. Harpster punted 50 yards to Stephens, who grounded the ball on his own 29-yard line. On the next play Reserve ran the ball out of bounds with no gain. A long forward pass by Reserve was

6 p. m.—Informal dinner of One Hundred and Seventh Field Artillery veterans, Hunt Armory.

8:30 p. m.—Cabaret and euchre, Arthur C. Woesthoff Post, Veterans of Foreign Wars, Morrowfield Hotel.

9 p. m.—Military ball, William Penn Hotel.

Honors Heroic Dead

MRS. WOODROW WILSON

To the men whose comrade-in-arms her husband was, just as surely as though he had stood beside them in the line, Mrs. Woodrow Wilson, widow of the war president, paid tribute in Pittsburgh's Armistice parade today. As she rode at the head of the o. d. clad marchers she must have been proud of the man whose widow she is, not only because he was a statesman, but, because he was a soldier—for he, too, was a casualty of war.

CITY HAILS MARCHING HEROES

Pittsburgh's heroes, home from the wars, heard mighty shouts of praise today as they marched to martial strains through the heart of the downtown section in commemoration of the signing of the armistice nine years ago.

While huge crowds lined the sidewalks of Fifth avenue, other thousands peered from office buildings and dropped down a shower of confetti to mingle with their cheers. Behind Parade Marshal Joseph M. Stack and his staff came an open car bearing Mrs. Woodrow Wilson, widow of the war-time President, here to hear sung the praises of her illustrious husband. As the car in which she rode with Maj. E. Lowry Humes, chairman of the Woodrow Wilson Memorial Association of Allegheny County, and Mrs. Frederick P. Moore, president of the State Auxiliary, American Legion, moved slowly forward the crowds gave her a reception that must have reminded her of those accorded in Europe when she visited there with the President at the beginning of the peace negotiations.

But when her car had passed the crowd was stilled in reverence. The

NEW YORK, Nov. 11.—Ruth Elder came home today, to receive a great reception with the cool remark that she had already started planning to attempt her transatlantic flight again.

"If nobody beats me to it," she said as the great welcoming crowd cheered, "I'll be flying over the Atlantic again."

Miss Elder was given a tremendous welcome. Great crowds—almost as big as those that waited for Lindbergh—were at the Battery when she was landed by the city welcome boat, the Macom, which had gone up the harbor to meet the Aquitania. She was cheered vociferously on all sides and responded to the applause with smiles and waves of her hand. There was a terrific din and shrieking of steamer whistles as she was brought up the harbor, and the ovation was intensified by the roars of the crowd of the Battery when she landed.

GREETS HUSBAND

It was 10 minutes after she was taken aboard the Macom that her young husband, Lyle Womak, had a chance to greet her. She was surrounded by reporters and cameramen. Finally she was permitted to go to the pilot's house where Womack was waiting.

"Hello, Kid, how are you?" he said as he embraced and kissed her.

"I never felt better in my life," she said, flashing a dazzling smile.

"I want to keep on flying," she declared emphatically in response to a question.

"Will you do so if your husband objects, and if he wants you to re-

HOSPITAL TORN BY FEUD

Differences which for more than a year have upset a large part of the United Presbyterian population of the Pittsburgh district—with an especially disturbing influence on the denomination's Woman's Association—were brought nearer the light yesterday when the association effected pronounced changes in several of its boards.

The center of the latire difficulty is the management of Columbia Hospital. The association's failure to re-elect Mrs. George Sands, one of its founders, for year, a director and for long the chairman of the hospital board, was the outstanding result of the meeting.

TEARS AT RESULT.

Apparently a change in management is forecast. Although any great show of feeling was repressed by all concerned, more than one shed tears as the balloting ended.

Columbia Hospital always has enjoyed a very high rating, and the care given its patients never has come into the discussion. But with the virtual dismissal of a physician, Dr. John W. Dixon, regarded by many as having had a major part in building up the institution, differ-

Recovered from shrapnel wounds inflicted "over there," Hubert A. Brown, 28, 7223 Witherspoon street, artilleryman, probably was fatally injured early today when he tripped in Hunt Armory as he prepared to bunk again with his buddies on the ninth anniversary of the end of hostilities.

Brown, Carnegie Steel Company draftsman, attended a smoker in the armory of the One Hundred Seventh Field Artillery, Alder and Emerson streets, last night. He told his wife he would bunk with the boys again and be ready for the parade this morning.

At 1 o'clock this morning as he was about to retire, he tripped over a cot and his head struck the

CORNELIUS VANDERBILT, JR. ASKS DIVORCE

VANDERBILT DIVORCE ASKED

By Universal Service.

RENO, Nev., Nov. 11.—A suit for divorce was filed in the District Court here yesterday by Cornelius Vanderbilt, Jr., of New York against Rachel Vanderbilt. He alleged mental cruelty.

One minute after the filing, Mrs. Vanderbilt's counsel filed an answer and cross-complaint, charging desertion.

Reno residents, anticipating a sensational case to grow out of young Vanderbilt's residence here, were doomed to disappointment. His charges are far from sensational.

It is probable that Vanderbilt will take the stand and attempt to prove his allegations and his term of residence in Nevada. Mrs. Vanderbilt will, it is thought, send depositions pleading her cause.

Vanderbilt sets forth in his papers that he was married to Rachel Littleton, sister of Martin W. Littleton, prominent New York lawyer, in April 1920, and that there are neither children nor community property.

He charges that his wife has been guilty of "extreme cruelty" over a period of years, expressing no interest in his newspaper enterprises and discouraging his efforts to run the tabloid papers that he once owned.

At Beverly Hills, Cal., where they were residing in 1924, when he was running papers in Los Angeles and San Francisco, Mrs. Vanderbilt objected to her husband's frequent trips to the latter city, the husband's complaint states.

She adopted the same attitude of "lack of co-operation" when they moved to Florida and he started a paper there, he says. Mrs. Vanderbilt wanted him to engage in some other work that would give him leisure for social activities, he adds.

The two have not seen each other since the spring of 1926, and have communicated only through business letters.

THEY'RE IN THE ARMY NOW

BUT IT'S AN HONORARY ENLISTMENT

Attention girls!—and boys too, for that matter. Here are the honorary cadet officers of the Carnegie Institute of Technology R. O. T. C. Left to right: Capt. Mary Alice Bright, Wilkinsburg; Capt. Dorothy Roy, South Pacific avenue; Capt. Mildred Young, Canton; Capt. Alice F. Harding, Hastings street; Capt. Jean Mather, Sewickley; Capt. Jeannette A. Fohman, Wheeling, and Maj. Jean Roy, of South Pacific avenue. The girls were chosen by members of the R. O. T. C. at a recent election and were presented at a dance in their honor last night at which Cadet Maj. Bartley F. Carley presided.

Wheeling Mayor Hurt Here On Way to Greet Ruth Elder

INJURED AS CAR SKIDS AT TUBES

En route to New York to greet Ruth Elder, trans-Atlantic aviatrix, Mayor W. J. Steen, Wheeling, was severely bruised when his auto skidded and crashed into a retaining wall at the south end of Liberty tubes at 10 o'clock last night. He was forced to return to Wheeling.

The Mayor, accompanied by Leo Coleman, municipal judge, was being driven to Pittsburgh to board a train for New York, where they were to extend the city's greeting to the "American Girl" aviatrix. Traffic Officer James Stanley was driving the car.

As they approached the tubes, the car skidded and sideswiped the concrete approach to the tunnels. The car was damaged and the Mayor suffered injuries which forced him to return home. Judge Coleman continued to New York to represent Wheeling today at the reception to Ruth Elder.

At the Mayor's home today it was stated his injuries were not serious.

WORK WRECKS ROMANCE

MRS. CORNELIUS VANDERBILT, JR.

CORNELIUS VANDERBILT, JR.

The stern demands of a publishing career would not permit Cornelius Vanderbilt, Jr., to be a social lion. So, his wife, preferring lions, turned a cold shoulder to his journalistic aspirations, Vanderbilt alleged in a suit for divorce filed at Reno. Said cold shoulder was legally described as "mental cruelty." Mrs. Vanderbilt filed cross-suit charging desertion.

BIRD CLUB SEES WANER TWINS

"Sprout," will tell them how to play the outfield.

The presence of the "Waner Act" at the theater, so early in the morning, exemplifies the good nature and interest these two great young ball players have in their younger admirers in the Pittsburgh district. The new theater can accommodate well over 2,300—so the question is—first arrived, best seats.

This last surprise was arranged yesterday. The Waners will give a pleasant little talk on their last day in the Pittsburgh theater, for they move on Saturday night to Baltimore, and there wind up their theatrical engagements.

And, of course, this surprise will be in addition to the great feature picture starring Mary Pickford, "My Best Girl," which will be a pre-release to the boys and girls of the Sun-Tele Club. It will show at the theater next week on the regular program.

Returns from the work of the boys and girls of the club acquiring Christmas money by selling Sun-Telegraph subscriptions are coming in at a great rate. So many young boys and girls are having tremendous success that next week an honor roll will be published, showing the leading boys and girls. The latter are having an equal chance and are keeping up with the boys.

But remember—show your membership card at the door of the Penn Theater before a quarter to 9 tomorrow morning. The doors will open at 8 o'clock.

HEROES ARE CHEERED

next cars in the procession were filled with white-haired veterans of another war—a war which a half century ago threatened to sunder the Union. And behind them came cars bearing Allegheny county's Gold Star mothers—half a hundred of them, who gave to their country the lives they suffered to create. Then came boys in olive drab with empty sleeves and trouser legs, some blind and lame.

In the silence of deep emotion the crowd let these cars pass—a tribute greater than the joyous shouts of praise, which was the lot of the 2,500 who marched in military formation, as they did a decade ago. The tumult which met the Salvation Army contingent all along the route was conclusive proof that nine years have not dimmed the glory which came to the Army's lassies over there.

Down Fifth avenue from the Fifth Avenue High School to Liberty avenue, to Seventh street, across the bridge into Federal street the procession led. At the Ridge avenue, North Side, reviewing stand, Mrs. Wilson left the line of parade and reviewed those who followed her.

Twenty bands were in line and throughout the march kept the soldiers buoyed up and peppy by playing old, familiar war songs and military music. "Over There" seemed to be the favorite tune for the veterans, for no less than five of the bands played the tune during the parade through the downtown district.

Patrolmen were stationed at short intervals and kept the crowds from surging into the street and blocking the parade. So dense was the crowd at Fifth avenue and Grant street and Fifth avenue and Wood street, that an extra detail was necessary to keep them from stampeding and interrupting the procession.

Every branch of the military service of the United States was represented in the parade. Capt. Thomas S. Voss, commandant at Rodgers Field, was on the staff of Marshal Joseph M. Stack, but behind were detachments of the Three Hundred and Twenty-fourth Aero Squadron in command of Lieut. John J. Ferry.

The One Hundred and Seventy-sixth Field Artillery equipment attracted much attention. Drawn by tractors, the howitzers, French 75's and larger guns rumbled over the cobbled streets with an ominous sound. The field kitchen equipment, with its stew pans boiling and the boys on K. P. peeling spuds, was a throw-back to 10 years ago.

Persistent cheers from the multitudes along the way caused Mrs. Wilson frequently to raise her white-gloved hand in appreciation of the demonstration in her honor. Her car followed an escort of police led by Traffic Inspector B. R. Marshall and Assistant Police Superintendent Leo D. Coleman and Marshal Stack and his staff.

In the reviewing stand Mrs. Wilson was seated between Maj. Gen. William G. Price, commander of the Pennsylvania National Guard, and Maj. Humes.

THE French Senate formally approves and demands moving pictures in all the schools of France, from kindergarten to higher institutes of research.

French schools, far ahead of our backward public school system, already have 4,000 projecting machines and several million feet of educational film. Edward Herriot, French minister of public instruction, says moving pictures must be used to the limit to educate children in schools and also in "world-wide propaganda." One good picture would teach children in fifteen minutes more about Lincoln or Washington than books could teach in fifteen weeks. Mr. Eastman, in Rochester, and William Fox, in New York, are making educational pictures. The cities and the nation should finance them.

PROHIBITION agents in Detroit reveal a brewery underground, occupying a whole block; 300,000 gallons were seized. The bootleggers made tunnels under other men's property and were doing business without paying rent. Armor plates protected this large "blind pig."

HIJACKERS, gentlemen whose profession is holding up bootleggers and stealing their poison, shot at and stopped a truck driver yesterday. This truck was loaded with newspaper ink; they let him go. While ink is not a desirable beverage, a glass of it would do less harm than some whisky that "intelligent" Americans drink in these days.

turn to Panama and keep house for him?" she was asked.

"I'm sorry," was her reply, "but I'm going to keep on flying."

NOW AS TO WASHING DISHES—

At this juncture someone asked: "Would you wash dishes for your husband?"

"I have washed dishes for him," she shot back.

She said she had no plans for the winter; that she had not definitely made up her mind just what she would do.

"I have made no motion picture contracts," she said in reply to a question.

"Would you like to go in the movies?" she was asked.

"I don't think I have any movie ability," she replied.

"How about the stage?"

"I don't know that I could act," she said modestly.

"If Miss Elder wants to try it again I'll be tickled to death to go with her," declared Haldeman.

"I have a new plane in mind," said Ruth. "A duplicate of 'The American Girl.'"

Reports persisted in asking questions as to the domestic relationship between the aviatrix and her husband.

"There are no differences between Lyle and me," she finally said.

"Did he approve of your flight?"

"He didn't disapprove," Ruth replied.

"Will you go back to Panama with him?"

"Not right away," she answered.

After a short delay at the St. Regis Hotel, where the aviators will stop, they were escorted down to City Hall by a full squadron of mounted police, gaily caparisoned. Along the line, a liberal supply of ticker tape fell about their automobiles, despite the general closing down of offices throughout the city for Armistice Day.

At City Hall, Mayor Walker paid tribute to the daring of Haldeman and Miss Elder and presented them with a scroll commemorating their feat.

GETS 20 YEARS FOR ATTACK

PARKERSBURG, W. Va., Nov. 11.—(AP.)—Ralph Smith, of near Belleville, was sentenced by Judge Walter E. McDougle, in Circuit Court here, yesterday, to 20 years in the state penitentiary for criminal assault upon an 11-year-old girl.

Smith, on trial, denied having assaulted the girl, but admitted that he had insulted her. He told of fleeing from officers and an armed mob the night of August 7. The jury recommended mercy.

Homer Swain, said to be Smith's cousin, Saturday will face a sentence of death by hanging or life imprisonment for criminal assault upon a five-year-old child.

Memorial to Wilson Unveiled by Widow

The wife who nursed him during the last agonizing months of his life, unveiled in Pittsburgh today a monument to Woodrow Wilson,, wartime President of the United States.

It was her third appearance of the day before acclaiming throngs in Pittsburgh. Shortly after her arrival this morning from Washington she entered an open automobile and rode at the head of the Armistice Day parade through the heart of the city while more than 100,000 looked on. Then she sat in the reviewing stand in Ridge avenue, North Side, and watched a cavalcade of Civil War veterans, Gold Star Mothers, disabled World War veterans and 2,500 former service men march past. After the parade she was guest at a luncheon in the William Penn Hotel tendered her by Joseph M. Stack, grand marshal of the parade.

The bronze tablet of President Wilson, by Paul Manship, presented to the city by the Allegheny County American Legion, was formally presented to the city and county at 2:30 after addresses by Judge W. H. S. Thomson, United States District Court, retired, and Mayor Charles H. Kline. The speech of presentation was made by Dr. Carl McKee. Mrs. Wilson then stepped forward and with a white-gloved hand pulled the cord that unveiled the memorial. The American Legion Band played "America" and the crowd of more than 5,000 sang the words of the anthem.

Woodrow Wilson "saved the world from militarism and made it safe for democracy," Judge Thomson said in a glowing speech of tribute in which he upheld the "sublime vision" of the League of Nations and the International Court of Justice for which the late President fought and for which, Judge Thomson declared, "he laid down his life."

Mayor Kline likewise paid tribute to President Wilson for his "far-sighted diplomacy and superior gifts of leadership."

TWO SHOT DEAD AT CARDS

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Nov. 11.—(AP.)—A masked executioneer of the underworld entered a cafe here last night, slew two members of what police think was a rival bootlegging gang, left two others wounded and escaped with a companion in an automobile.

The death sentence of the gangsters was carried out without ceremony by shotgun. Robert Aeillo, 22, and Frank Aeillo, 20, brothers, were shot and killed as they sat playing cards. Vitto Lapacola, 28, and Lee Meachum, 26, their companions at cards, were seriously wounded.

WITHIN BLOCK OF POLICE

The slaying locale was within a block of the police station. Hearing shots, a detective ran to the restaurant in time to see the slayer and his companion disappear in an automobile carrying a Missouri license.

The only witnesses were several women patrons of the place, but they were unable to offer much help to officers.

Police believe the slain men were members of a bootlegging gang whose operations extended from here to Chicago and St. Louis.

Sam Aeillo, brother of the slain pair, left the cafe just a few minutes before the killer arrived. Tony, another brother, is now facing a murder charge here. A nephew, Jasper Aeillo, was shot and killed in front of his home last summer and an uncle of the brothers was reported killed in St. Louis yesterday.

FIRST ARMISTICE NEWS

Here—in the terse prose of army orders—is reproduced lines from the last act in the world's greatest drama. It is a copy of one of the messages received by combat troops at the front November 11, 1918, ordering them to cease firing and stand fast. And, any man who was there will tell you, they stood up, for the most part silently—and some of them took off their tin hats.

ERIE WOMAN ATTEMPTS SUICIDE; BLAMES MATE

ERIE, PA., Nov. 11.—Claiming that her husband has failed to provide for her, and while despondent, Mrs. Leona Sullivan, 27, of 117 East Third street, drank a bottle of metal polish last night in an attempt to end her life. Hamot Hospital attaches say her condition is serious.

GREENSBURG BOY HELD IN AUTO THEFT IN OHIO

CLEVELAND, O., Nov. 11.—Robert Harry, 16, of Greensburg, Pa., was held here today for Youngstown (O.) police in connection with an alleged auto theft there. Early today police found the boy sleeping in the machine. The youth said he hitch-hiked from the Pennsylvania city.

NEW SMOKING CAR "FOR LADIES ONLY"

NEW YORK, Nov. 11.—"For ladies only"—so will read the sign hanging out of the de luxe lounge and smoking room to be installed in the Pennsylvania Railroad's new type parlor car, operating between New York and Philadelphia. Gossip is not barred from the smoking room.

TELEPHONE TERRORIST SOUGHT

CHICAGO, Nov. 11.—(AP.)—"Poison" telephone calls have supplemented "poison" letters here as a method of terrorizing victims and laying foundations for blackmail schemes.

Mrs. Pierre J. Tracey was the recipient of a "poison" telephone message shortly after 1 a. m. today. Her annoyer represented himself as a policeman and said a murder had been committed in the basement of her home. He told her he would be over to investigate immediately.

Calling back to the police station for additional information, Mrs. Tracey learned of the hoax and was prostrated with fear.

Many similar calls have been received by residents of the Rogers Park district and the similarity of the messages led police to believe one man was responsible. The calls are usually made between midnight and daylight.

COUNTY OFFICES TAKE HOLIDAY

All county offices and all the Common Pleas and Orphans Courts suspended business today in celebration of Armistice Day. All jurors not assigned to cases yesterday were dismissed until Monday morning, and those sitting on cases were dismissed after court convened until Monday. The office of Prothonotary John Vogt was the only county office that showed any activity and here just enough clerks were working to expedite the supplying of election returns to the returning board. The official returning board, under the supervision of Judge James B. Drew and Harry H. Rowand did not take advantage of the holiday and worked as usual.

Don't Forget Your Umbrella, Coat, Etc., Tomorrow

Don't forget your raincoat, rubbers, umbrella, overcoat, galoshes, or what have you, for the next day or so.

Some highly variegated weather is on the way, the government experts predict. Skittish winds are due to arrive from the West late today, followed by rain tomorrow, this to be superseded by Old Boreas himself, in person, breathing out snow flurries to the accompaniment of a sinking mercury. Below-freezing temperatures are likely by Sunday morning, Forecaster W. S. Brotzman said. Today the thermometer tarried in the upper sixties.

HEIR TO TITLE ·:· FOUND WORKING ·:· IN GREENSBURG SHOP

NOBLEMAN IN OVERALLS

Alfred Evaldi, worker at a die-tapping machine in a South Greensburg mill, who learns that he is really Count Valerie of Italy and heir to the vast estate of his father, Enrico Giansanti, who resided near Rome.

AMERICAN COUNTESS

Mrs. Evaldi married Alfred when he came back from World War service.

EVALDI'S CASTLE

No palace on the terraced hills of Italy could afford a better home than this little white cottage in South Greensburg, says the man whose patrimony may bring him royal magnificence.

LOST HER SON

Sun-Tele Cooks Find Beauty in Kitchen

Probably not one husband in these broad lands would believe his wife if she were to reveal that the kitchen sink was aesthetic and the carving knife a handsome weapon. Probably still fewer husbands would lend an ear if his mate were to boast that her kitchen was a thing of beauty.

But an expert in these matters will lend authority to her words. A model kitchen is beautiful—that was the message Mrs. George Thurn imparted to large, enthusiastic audiences at the two closing meetings yesterday of The Sun-Tele Cooking School in Memorial Hall.

Modern appliances have made it possible for the model kitchen to appeal to one's aesthetic tastes, Mrs. Thurn pointed out. And that beauty is more convincing when the mistress of the kitchen gives herself the gracious care which marks a meticulous overseer.

Women are inclined to neglect themselves once they reach 40, Mrs. Thurn warned, and that carelessness spreads to their activities in the kitchen and the home.

Mrs. Edmund J. Fairfield, chairman of the American home department, Congress of Clubs, introduced Mrs. Thurn to an appreciative afternoon audience. The hostesses were Mrs. M. J. Gearhart, Mrs. Guy Berford and Mrs. Jacob Werner, of the Wimodausis Club, and Mrs. Louis Sperber, Mrs. Robert Cochran, Mrs. J. J. Callihan and Mrs. Thomas J. Gleason, of the New Era Club.

Mrs. C. E. Cosolowsky, president of the Congress of Women's Clubs, introduced Mrs. Thurn at the closing meeting last night. She called attention to the lecturer's training, her practical plain-spoken attitude in her lectures. She also complimented the members of the audience on their interest in the important phases of home-making. Mrs. Thurn declared that the dealers who furnished the kitchen were enterprising and progressive, and thanked them for their co-operation in the movement to further household economy and contentment.

Santa Claus Arrives Tomorrow

By Aeroplane—

WATCH the skies tomorrow, children. Santa Claus, like Lindbergh, is coming to Pittsburgh by aeroplane, and is scheduled to land at Schenley Oval Saturday morning about 10:30 o'clock. The Race Track in Schenley Park with its grandstand and half-mile rail offers an ideal place for children to get a safe and clear view of the landing. It will be an adventure that little folks will not soon forget! . . . After greeting the children assembled, there will be a parade led by a brass band of 50 musicians to escort Santa Claus to Horne's, for the opening of the Christmas Toy Store, where he will remain until Christmas Eve. See the aeroplane landing at Schenley Park, see the street parade, and then meet Santa Claus in the Toy Store tomorrow.

Negro Preaches Way Through Pitt

Students at the University of Pittsburgh have done almost everything legitimate to earn their way through college, such as shining shoes, driving mail trucks, letting blood, doing secret service work, demonstrating the latest in bathing suits, and dozens of similar occupations, but few have "preached their way through," as Charles E. Moss, Negro student, is doing. Every Sunday for two years, Moss has preached at the African Methodist Episcopal Church in Kittaning, where he has a regular charge. Previously he worked as assistant, or local pastor, at the Bethel Church, Pittsburgh.

Preaching, however, is not the only means he employs to earn expenses, nor the only work he does. In addition, he carries 19 hours of work at the university, four hours more than students are regularly permitted to carry, works for the railroad in his free afternoons and at a printing company, when his time permits, as pressman, type-setter or make-up man.

Moss expects to be graduated from Pitt in February with the degree of bachelor of science. He has specialized in zoology, because, he declares, he "wants to be able to understand it and discuss evolution and similar questions intelligently." In September, he plans to enter the Yale divinity school, preaching in that vicinity to earn expenses while he studies. "Preach your way through" is his motto.

ences became acute. Mrs. Sands refused to explain the action. The doctor would say only that he had too high regard and too much affection for Columbia to utter a word that even possibly might injure it.

But, naturally, his large practice was taken elsewhere; another physician died and his patients went to other hospitals, and a feeling among many that at least one doctor had been treated unfairly resulted in Columbia being no longer crowded. This situation was not allayed through the months.

CHANGES MORE FREQUENT.

Other factors made it more difficult. One physician was severed from official connection with the hospital; there were changes in personnel, including superintendents of a department or two. These things failed to settle the unrest, which had spread beyond Wilkinsburg.

Last week at a meeting of the Women's Association, which elects the hospital's board of managers, the whole affair was discussed. Balloting began, but when votes were counted it was discovered that more than 25 women apparently had been elected to the board of managers and also to the board in charge of their orphans' home, where a tie existed.

The election was continued until yesterday. The orphans' home managers were acted upon first and it was decided to take a new vote.

But when the voting was about to start on Columbia's managers, it was proposed that no new vote be taken; that instead the 25 nominees standing highest in the original poll be declared elected. A half-dozen women took part in an altogether earnest if somewhat restrained discussion, then the question was put to a vote. Ninety-four to 32 they decided to confirm the 25 highest. The eight named were not among them. Yet it was declared that no one but the teller knew how the previous vote had stood.

It was then that tears glistened and fell, but the attitude of some of the most interested was phrased by one of them: "I can't understand it, but it must be the Lord's will."

The elections resulted as follows:

Women's Association—President, Mrs. H. C. C. Campbell; vice presidents, Mrs. W. H. Vincent and Mrs. John McElwain; recording secretary, Mrs. John A. Wilson; corresponding secretary, Mrs. R. L. Denies "Fix"

H. R. LAMB

Lamb, assistant to the attorney general, denies charges made by H. V. Long, of the Burns Detective Agency, that he talked to Norman Glascock, a Fall-Sinclair juror, for 20 minutes at a flying field near Washington while the Teapot Dome trial was in progress. His denial was made before the grand jury probing alleged jury tampering.

HIGHWAYS DEPT. SHIFT TO SAVE $1,000,000

HARRISBURG, Pa., Nov. 11.—A saving of nearly $1,000,000 over a period of four years will be the result of a plan of reorganization of the field forces of the State Department of Highways, James L. Stuart, secretary of highways, said yesterday.

The new plan, Stuart said, will become effective January 1, 1928.

Under the new plan the state will be divided into eight divisions instead of four divisions of 15 districts. The 15 districts will be abolished and four district engineers will be promoted to the office of division engineer; eight engineers will get posts as assistant division engineers and the remaining district engineers will be assigned as construction assistants to the division engineers, Stuart said.

Stuart explained the change was made possible because of the completion of many building projects and because the road force has become more expert through experience.

The new divisions as created include:

Division 1, headquarters at Franklin—Armstrong, Butler, Clarion, Crawford, Erie, Forest, Lawrence, Mercer, Warren and Venango counties. Division engineer, T. C. Frame; assistant, S. C. Funk.

Division 2, headquarters at Clearfield—Cameron, Centre, Clearfield, Clinton, Elk, Indiana, Jefferson and McKean counties. Division engineer, S. W. Jackson; assistant, H. R. Kline.

Division 3, headquarters at Williamsport—Bradford, Columbia, Lycoming, Montour, Northumberland, Potter, Snider, Sullivan, Northumberland, Potter, Synder, Sullivan, groups; J. S. Ritchey; assistant, W. E. Bailey.

Division 4, headquarters at Scranton—Carbon, Lackawanna, Lehigh, Luzerne, Monroe, Northumberland, Pike, Schuylkill, Susquehanna, Wayne and Wyoming counties. Division engineer, C. M. Buckley; assistant, H. R. Wertz.

Division 5, headquarters at Pittsburgh—Allegheny, Beaver, Fayette, Greene, Washington, Westmoreland counties. Division engineer, J. L. Herber; assistant, H. R. Moffett.

Division 6, headquarters at Hollidaysburg—Bedford, Blair, Cambria, Fulton, Huntingdon, Juniata, Mifflin and Somerset. Division engineer, W. D. Myers; assistant, A. M. White.

COLLAPSES AT GRAVE OF BROTHER; DIES SAME DAY

As his brother's body was being lowered into a grave at Mt. Royal Cemetery yesterday, John B. Herron, 55, of Glenfield, collapsed. He died a few hours later. Death was attributed to heart disease. The brother, Robert L. Herron, died on Monday at the West Penn Hospital.

IDENTIFIED BY LUCKY PIECE

A Lindbergh "Lucky Piece" helped clinch the identification by Paul Martin, 23, of 302 McClure street, Homestead, of James Robinson, Negro, 21, of 209 Sixth avenue, Homestead, arrested as a holdup suspect.

Three Negroes grabbed Martin at 7 o'clock this morning, robbed him of $1.68, the lucky piece and some theater tickets. Borough police arrested Robinson and $1.58, the theater tickets and the lucky piece were found. One dime was missing.

Andy Smith, Third avenue and Dickson street, Homestead, later reported that three Negroes had held him up and took $5. He failed to identify Robinson.

18 MONTHS IN ATLANTA FOR DRUG LAW VIOLATOR

Roxie Spade was sentenced to serve 18 months in the Federal penitentiary at Atlanta, Ga., by Federal Judge F. P. Schoonmaker, when he pleaded guilty to conspiring to violate the Harrison narcotic act.

Ben D. Shaman was fined $100 by Judge Schoonmaker when he pleaded guilty to violating the postal laws by writing "dunning" messages to a debtor on the outside of envelopes of letters.

BUSINESS CHIEFS ENDORSE CALENDAR REVISION

13-MONTH YEAR, ONE ZERO DAY PROPOSED

By JOHN W. MARTIN,
Universal Service Staff Correspondent.

NEW YORK, Nov. 11.—Business executives of America, almost to a man, are in favor of a new calendar of 13 28-day months, it was declared here when answers to a questionnaire sent to 1,000 representative firms were made public.

George Eastman, head of the Eastman Kodak Company, following a meeting of the United States Chamber of Commerce at which that organization endorsed the movement, sent a detailed outline of the new calendar to the 1,000 business organizations, and announced that replies favorable to the change were received in almost every case.

The movement, which is sponsored by the International Fixed Calendar League, it was announced, will in all probability receive the support of the League of Nations, and it is likely the league will suggest a committee be appointed in each nation to ratify the proposal.

It was pointed out, however, that even if every nation accepts the new calendar, it will be impossible to put it into effect completely before January 1, 1935, the next year after 1928 when New Year's Day falls on Sunday.

The new calendar month which the International Fixed Calendar League hopes to have adopted, would be as follows:

S	M	T	W	T	F	S
1	2	3	4	5	6	7
8	9	10	11	12	13	14
15	16	17	18	19	20	21
22	23	24	25	26	27	28

This plan, it is noted, calls for only 364 days in the year, with every date falling on the same day of the week each month. New Year's Day would be set aside as a holiday, and called January 0. It would not be on the calendar. The extra day for Leap Year would be a similar holiday, inserted as July 0.

The new month of four weeks would be inserted between June and July, under the plan, and probably would be called "Sol," because it would contain the solstice day in both the Northern and Southern Hemispheres.

STAR COMMUTER USES PLANE

By Universal Service.

CHICAGO, Nov. 11.—The champion long-distance commuter was found here today in E. G. Thompson.

He flies by airplane between Chicago and his home in Cleveland.

"I'm doing this only during the convention of the Automotive Equipment Association," he said. "As soon as I've had my breakfast in Cleveland, I hop into a plane and get to Chicago in plenty of time for the business sessions of the convention. Then I fly home for dinner."

2 KILL SELVES ON GRAVES OF WIVES

By Universal Service.

PLAINFIELD, N. J., Nov. 11.—Two men ended their lives here yesterday on the graves of their wives.

The body of Samuel Sabocher was found crumpled beside his wife's grave. He had used a shot gun.

Clifford Coles, superintendent of the cemetery, was removing the body when he was approached by Albert R. F. Randolph.

They talked for a few minutes about Sabocher and then Coles went about his sad task. When he had gone a shot was heard and the body of Randolph was found on his wife's grave. He had used an old fashioned pistol.

"MARY ME OR DIE," AUNT SAYS YOUTH THREATENED

William Cook, 20-year-old farmer boy of Patton township, became infatuated with his aunt by marriage, Mrs. Verna Cook, aged 42, and he threatened to kill her if she did not divorce her husband and marry him, according to testimony before Judge R. Macfarlane in Criminal Court yesterday, in a surety-of-the-peace proceeding under which the aunt had the young man arrested. He said he had been drinking, denied the threat to kill, and was placed under a $500 bond to keep the peace.

Mellon Says He "Is Not In Politics"

By Universal Service.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 11.—Secretary of the Treasury Mellon, power in Pennsylvania Republicanism, and looked upon in some quarters as the chief factor in picking the party's Presidential nominee, is "not in politics."

Mellon said so himself yesterday, as he turned from a billion-dollar Federal borrowing operation long enough to say that he did not care to comment upon the Vare machine's victory in Philadelphia and what it might portend for the Vare senatorial fortunes.

"That is a political question," replied Mellon. "I am not in politics."

FALLS 60 FEET; MAY DIE

By Universal Service.

FRANKLIN, Pa., Nov. 14.—A. J. Stevens, 47, with more than a score of bones broken, is in Franklin Hospital, his chances for recovery in doubt, the result of a 60-foot fall at the new building of the Chicago Pneumatic Tool Company here. Stevens, a contractor, missed his footing. William H. Hanel, 72-year-old farmer, of Kossuth, fell face forward in the business district yesterday when seized with a heart attack. Hanel, ill, had come here to seek medical attention.

WOMAN, 50, FALLS, LIES UNDISCOVERED FOR HOURS

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., Nov. 11.—Mrs. W. A. Bibblett, 50, lay unconscious several hours at the foot of a flight of stairs, down which she had fallen, before being found by her grandchild. She is in a serious condition from a punctured left lung.

BANDIT SUSPECT, IN CELL, TRIES SUICIDE

ASKS $100,000 FOR LOSS OF WIFE'S AFFECTIONS

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 11.—Charging James C. Phipps with maliciously alienating the affections of his wife, Harold Carl, a ship broker, has filed suit for $100,000. Mrs. Carl, according to the complaint, left her home November 2.

BILLIE BURKE RECEIVED BY PRESIDENT COOLIDGE

WASHINGTON, Nov. 11.—Billie Burke, the actress, yesterday paid her compliments to President Coolidge by an informal visit to the White House. It was in return for his attendance last night at her show, "The Marquise."

Pyorrhea's victims are 4 out of 5

A ruthless enemy that gives no quarter is Pyorrhea. Its poisons sweep through the system, undermining health and often causing such serious diseases as rheumatism and neuritis, appendicitis, ulcers, stomach troubles and nervousness.

Four out of five past 40, and thousands younger, pay this heavy toll. But you need not fear these uneven odds.

Go to your dentist at least twice a year. And start using Forhan's for the gums, today. This dentifrice, the formula of R. J. Forhan, D. D. S., prevents Pyorrhea or checks its course.

It keeps gum tissue firm and healthy. It protects teeth and keeps them white. Use Forhan's regularly, morning and night. Teach your children this good habit.

Forhan's contains Forhan's Pyorrhea Liquid used by dentists everywhere. It is health-insurance. At all druggists—in tubes, 35c and 60c.

GREENSBURG MACHINIST-COUNT TO CLAIM TITLE

Machinist-Nobleman To Claim Estates

By JOHN P. COWAN,
Staff Correspondent.

GREENSBURG, PA., Nov. 11.—Alfred Evaldi, Count of Valetrie, Italian nobleman, who works at a die-tapping machine in the plant of the Walworth Company, South Greensburg, will go back to Italy to claim his patrimony, its titles, estates, full cellars, abundance of lire and all that goes with his rich inheritance.

And Mrs. Evaldi of South Greensburg—Countess of Valetrie in Italy—will accompany him.

ADOPTED, COMES TO U. S.

Until he was aged 19 years the Count of Valetrie was ignorant of his noble birth. He was reared in an orphanage in Rome, where he had been placed when his parents became estranged. He was adopted by a family out of the institution and came to America, learned the trade of a machinist, fought in the artillery of the Second Division, A. E. F., returned to his job here, married and has made a home in a cozy frame cottage on the outskirts of town.

This sounds like the life story of hundreds of immigrants who have been transformed into patriotic Americans here in Western Pennsylvania, but in the background is a romance that charms the life of Alfred Evaldi.

The young immigrant learned his true identity through a search conducted by the Italian government following years of fruitless effort by his mother to find her missing son. This is the story:

Arolina Asdente, a beautiful girl of wealthy Italian parents, lived in Rome, where she attended a fashionable school. There she met Enrico Giansanti, Count of Valetrie, owner of a magnificent estate near the Italian capital. They were married and the count introduced his wife to the nobility from whose presence she formerly had been barred. Shortly after the birth of their son the count and his wife were estranged and the two-weeks' old infant was placed in a children's institution, where the mother paid him daily visits.

When the domestic trouble was adjusted the countess went to claim her son, but a new matron had taken charge and the child had been given in adoption in the family of Domenico Zuncaro and taken to their home in the interior of Italy. The countess, almost crazed by the loss of her son, continued her search which lasted for years, but she failed to find her boy. In the meantime Alfred Svaldi, using his adopted name, lived with his foster parents until his sixteenth year when he came to America with an Italian friend who had long resided in this country. He came here and obtained a job which he has held continuously except the two years he spent in the military service.

The countess on her deathbed in 1917 charged her sister to continue the search and upon finding her child to support his claim for his rights to the Giansanti estates. Shortly after the mother's death the boy was traced to Greensburg by officers of the Italian government. Another son, an officer in the Italian army during the war and now an official in the Italian mint, claimed the title and the estate and these papers to him when Alfred's claim was not asserted.

Standing beside a giant machine in the Walworth Company's plant, the young man shows his gentle birth in every feature. Jests by his fellow-workmen are accepted in good nature, but the superintendent of the plant and his foreman have no doubts as to his claims.

"OWES IT TO MOTHER"

"There's no better land than America and no castle in Italy could afford me a happier home than our little frame house on the hill," said Alfred in the mellow accents of his native tongue, "but I have decided that I owe it to my mother's memory and her love for me to go back and claim what justly is mine. Sometime—but I am in no hurry."

"How should I feel if I were hailed as a countess?" The young wife in the little white house on the hill repeated the question. "I'm not prepared to say, but if Alfred goes—and I think he should claim his estate—I will go, too. I first knew Alfred as a brave soldier when he came back from France and we were married at my home in Beaver Falls soon afterward. Could any count be better or greater than an American soldier? A castle in Italy would be fine and to live in accordance with a noble title is something nearly every woman craves, perhaps just because she is a woman. But no great title of nobility in Italy or anywhere else could improve the title of a soldier who fought for America, which is my native country, although my parents came from over there."

Mrs. Evaldi is known as one of the best housekeepers in South Greensburg and is beloved by her neighbors. Her home is a model of simple taste and extreme neatness. While she discussed foreign titles and Italian castles she held a dainty piece of embroidery upon which she had been working, and explained that the sewing club had just held a meeting in her home.

The Count of Valetrie, in overalls, returning to his job at the die-tapping machine, saluted and added, "Yes, I am going back—we will go."

HOMESTEAD BOY, HIT BY TRAIN, DIES

Edward Sardinelli, 6, of rear 529 Dickson street, Homestead, suffered fatal injuries yesterday when he broke away from his mother and ran in front of a train at the Dickson street crossing. He died in the Homestead Hospital. According to the report to the morgue, the boy had accompanied his mother on a shopping tour and was injured when he playfully tried to beat his mother to the crossing.

Never Married, She Sues for Divorce

"Now we are married," and with that Mrs. Clara Volderauer, 22 Geranium street, says her husband, Max Volderauer, handed her a marriage license.

There never was a marriage ceremony but Mrs. Volderauer is suing him for divorce on grounds of desertion. She had to establish a common law marriage before Judge Thomas J. Ford in Common Pleas Court.

Mrs. Volderauer testified that Volderauer, who is 4c against her 25 years, promised to marry her after they had lived together as man and wife.

Mrs. Margaret Fields, who appeared as a witness, testified that Volderauer had been introduced to her as the husband of Mrs. Volderauer. The whereabouts of Volderauer is unknown.

THRICE RAIDED, FINALLY HE'S FINED

Three raids—then a fine. Daniel Stack's saloon, 1307 Federal street, yielding a small quantity of moonshine when police visited it for the third time in two weeks. Stack was discharged on the first raid, was absent at the second and, taken into custody on the third, drew a fine of $50 or 30 days in the workhouse from Magistrate E. M. Hough.

LIFEBOAT RESCUES TOTAL 11 A WEEK FOR 104 YEARS

Since it was founded, in 1824, the British Lifeboat Institution has given rewards for the rescue of 61,000 lives—an average of over 11 lives every week for nearly 104 years.

CONVICTED IN GIRL'S CASE

Joseph Kaufman, 52, of Roberts street, a car inspector for the Pennsylvania Railroad, was convicted in the United States District Court of violating the Mann white slave act. Katie Reiter, 16, of Farragut street, told of being taken to New York by Kaufman in July, 1926, on a railroad pass issued by the railroad company for Kaufman and his "daughter" and of being away three days. He will be sentenced later.

CARRICK BOARD BACKS FERRY STREET PROJECT

Strong indorsement of the proposed Ferry street bridge and tunnels project was voiced last night at a meeting of the Carrick Board of Trade. E. H. Speer, representing the association sponsoring the project, appeared before the trade body and described the benefits which Carrick and other neighboring communities would derive from construction of the new tubes to Saw Mill Run boulevard and beyond.

Val Storck, president of the board, introduced the speaker. Addresses were made by several members.

STILL GOING, OWNER GONE

A moonshine still that operates without the tender care of its guardians was uncovered when North Side police raided a house at 1204 East street and seized a barrel of rye moonshine and five barrels of mash.

No arrests were made, police said, for the very good reason that no one was available to be arrested, although the still was functioning merrily.

THE NEW ERA IN TELEPHONE COMMUNICATION

SENDING PICTURES BY TELEPHONE

BELL Telephone scientists invented a machine for sending pictures over a telephone wire.

Telephone research—to improve your telephone service—gave it birth.

From this same effort have come Television, Vitaphone, Radio Telephone, Public Address Systems, Radio networks, the improved phonograph, and medical aids such as the Audiphone, Audiometer, and Electric Stethoscope.

All these things grew out of studies and experiments to make your telephone service better.

The fact that you can make out-of-town calls to nearby points just like local calls is, to you, a more tangible result.

A newly developed high speed service to more distant points is another.

The whole American nation, and Canada and Cuba—and now parts of Europe and Mexico—have been brought into your home or office.

Because of ceaseless study and experiment, your telephone service—your every-day use of the telephone—is today more dependable, more accurate, more highly personalized, and is greatly increased in scope.

Satins . . . Felts . . . Metal Cloths Are Suavely Smart

The fashion-fastidious miss or woman welcomes the colorful hat of smooth, sleek lines. These in our group at $10 are decidedly in the season's favor. Felts that show trig uneven hairlines—ear tabs decidedly saucy—a softening twist of fabric across the crown. Satins and metal cloths that are suavely draped often show a single ornament. And others artfully simple, are popular for evening. You really should see these!

Delighting in Diversity Adoria Shoes Display the Mode

Diversity of materials . . . Adoria's are fashioned of suedes or calfskin, of satin or reptile finished leathers, of those dull-finish leathers that claim and hold Fashion's attention this season, or of patent leather, always smart. Diversity of styling . . . they present models for every mood . . . smart tailored oxfords . . . or oxfords frivolously fashioned with high heels . . . step-in and opera pumps . . . one-strap, two-strap, three-strap, T-strap slippers . . . a wealth of styles with heels high or low to suit your requirements. And diversity of colors . . . keeping an eye on the mode, of course. But no diversity of price . . . Always $10!

MOTHER AND 4 KILLED BY GAS

FIND ALL JETS OPEN IN DEATH APARTMENT

NEW YORK, Nov. 11.—(AP)—A widowed mother and her four children were found dead from gas in their apartment today. Police reported that all gas jets on the stove and walls were open. The woman was a Mrs. Wymias.

The children were Helen, 13; Mary, 8; Sonia, 6, and Carl, 4 years old.

The bodies of the children, attired in night clothes, were in bed. Their mother had died on her knees by the side of the cot on which her youngest child, Carl, aged 4, laid. Her arms were about him protectingly.

Mrs. Wymias' meager earnings as a clothes presser amounted to about $21 a week. After her rent of $22 a month had been paid, there was not enough to feed and clothe the children and herself properly so that they had been accepting charity from a nursery.

The bodies were found by neighbors in their Thirty-first street apartment. Police said the woman's husband, Ludwig, is a government employe at Fort Worth.

WOMAN SUES ACCUSER, CHARGING FALSE ARREST

Mrs. Margaret S. Simpson, a widow, has brought suit against Louis Pinsky, doing business as The Hudson Bay Fur Company, for $1500 damages for false arrest. She charges that last May, at the instigation of A. T. Powell, an employe of Pinsky's, she was arrested on a bad-check charge. After appearing in Criminal Court three times she received a trial and on October 21 the jury acquitted her, she recites.

FOG PREVENTS PLANES LANDING AT CROYDON

On a recent day in England the fog was so dense over Croydon aerodrome that it could not be located by the pilots of several air liners arriving from the continent. Star and smoke shells were fired from the aerodrome and fires were lighted, but in spite of this three machines were unable to find the landing ground.

NOT RUTH ELDER---BUT

MRS. JACK MORRIS

Jack Morris, Rodgers Field pilot and instructor, and Mrs. Morris, pictured above, landed Wednesday afternoon after flying from Denver, Colo., in an Eaglerock plane, the fifth purchased by Morris within the past six weeks. Mrs. Morris, who established a local record in aviation circles recently when she flew from Rodgers Field to the Latrobe air meet, relieved her husband at the controls from the heart of the Rockies, across the Kansas plain and into the hills of Ohio and Western Pennsylvania.

KANE MAN REPORTED AS DEAD IN INDIA

KANE, Pa., Nov. 11.—Mrs. Harry Schreiber yesterday received a cablegram telling of the death of her brother, Frank Potter, Jr., of Yenen Yaung, India. Mr. Potter left Kane six years ago with his father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Potter, Sr., for employment in the oil fields. His wife and two sons reside in Newark, O.

DISSOLUTION OF GARAGE IN HOMESTEAD ORDERED

Judge Thomas J. Ford in Common Pleas Court has signed a decree in dissolution for the Seventeenth avenue garage, Homestead. A petition has been filed asking for the dissolution of the Lupton Hardware and Paint Company of Pittsburgh. Judge Thomas J. Ford fixed December 7 as a date for a hearing.

Ex-National Tube Head Adopts Wife's Son

William B. Schiller former president of the National Tube Company, retired capitalist and businessman, has adopted Morgan Burdette Schiller as his son.

In September the elder Schiller made a formal application for adoption to the Orphans' Court. Morgan B. Schiller is a son of Mrs. Schiller by a former marriage. Her first husband was Morgan Henry Burdette. The order legalizing the adoption was signed by Judge Jacob J. Miller.

Morgan B. Schiller is the president of the American Tubular Elevator Company and at present is living in the winter home of the Schiller's at Sewickley. He is 34, a veteran of the World War, serving in the Aviation Corps, and is married.

EX-DRY AGENTS CONVICTED

Myer C. Clewes and George W. Trimmer, former government prohibition agents in the Pittsburgh enforcement unit, were convicted in the Federal District Court of asking and receiving a bribe of $150 from Steve Balaschik, in whose store at 409 Fifth avenue, Rankin, they found a still and moonshine whisky, January 24. Balaschik has since died, and his widow, Mrs. Julia Balaschik, the chief government witness, testified to having witnessed her husband paying the agents $150 to "fix the case." They will be sentenced later.

Auto Attempts Suicide; Hits Junk Plant

The attempted suicide of an automobile came to the attention of police this morning. A stolen automobile actually crashed the gate of an automobile wrecking plant at Grant and Water streets.

The machine, which had been stolen from in front of 471½ Washington street a short time before, where it had been parked by its owner, Dr. G. Sarrail, was badly wrecked. Its lone occupant, the thief who stole it, was seen running from the scene of the accident.

HOSPITAL INMATE HITS MOTHER, ESCAPES

Knocking down his mother, who was leading him into the St. Francis Hospital last night, Joseph Gevalsky, 18, of 204 Carson street, a mental patient, ran from the hospital grounds and escaped. He is being sought by police and city detectives. The mother, Mrs. Martha Gevalsky, told police that her son had been a patient in the Presbyterian Hospital for some time and she decided last night to move him to the St. Francis Hospital for observation.

ARE YOU a "TOXIC"

Sick Headaches

Those miserable sick headaches, those mysterious dizzy and fainting spells are a grave symptom. Usually they indicate a poisoned condition of the stomach that may end in high blood pressure, hardening of the arteries and heart failure. This toxic condition is the result of our modern habits of life, which put too great a burden upon the vital organs, especially the liver, which then becomes sluggish and fails to cleanse the blood of the poisons formed in food waste. It is generally recognized that the liver occasionally needs a little help. There is nothing better for this, as medical men know, than a little ox gall. Ox gall has been found to be a great natural stimulant for the liver, restoring it to full activity. The genuine, pure ox gall is to be had, dainty and tasteless, in the form of Dioksi tablets. Each tablet represents 10 drops of pure ox gall and costs less than 2c at good druggists. To be sure of getting the genuine, look for the name Dioksi and picture of ox's head on the package.

The best soap to use in warm water is the soap
that lathers best in cold

TAKE ANY toilet soap. Try it in cold water. A simple test—yes. But it reveals true cleansing quality. If the soap is Octagon, you get generous lather instantly. Every trace of soil vanishes. Your hands rinse clean of soapy residue. Then they feel refreshed. But you use warm water? Fine!

For a soap that's good in cold water is a perfect soap when the water is warm. Octagon's cocoanut oil content assures a full, rich lather in any water. A lather that cleans, too—even removes dirt that clogs the pores. Yet with all its quick, cleansing lather, the large, long-lasting cake of Octagon Toilet Soap costs only ten cents. It is pure white, too—and has a delicate fragrance you will like. A good soap in cold water—a perfect soap in hot water—Octagon Toilet Soap is used by millions for its quality alone. But Octagon users get even more—each wrapper carries a coupon. Be sure to save your Octagon coupons. You can redeem them, along with Fab coupons, for valuable premiums. RIVER IMPROVEMENT FAVORED

Pittsburgh Tourists Royally Feted

By MAX HENRICI, staff Correspondent.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Nov. 11.—Louisville business men agree with those of Pittsburgh that completion of the improvement of the Ohio River, assuring a navigable stage of water throughout the year, will stimulate industry throughout the valley. They made this plain in their reception yesterday of the 80 Pittsburghers touring the river and Gulf of Mexico cities under the auspices of the Chamber of Commerce.

At a luncheon tendered the visitors at the Louisville Country Club, T. B. G. Rose, president of the Board of Trade, said:

"The Ohio is potentially the most important waterway in the world. A nine-foot stage between Pittsburgh and Cairo will do more than anything that has ever come to pass to promote prosperity in the valley."

OTHERS AGREE

The same thoughts were expressed by the other speakers, among whom were Congressman M. T. Thatcher, former governor of the Panama Canal Zone; T. P. Gaylor, president of the Pittsburgh Chamber of Commerce, and several Louisville business men.

The Pittsburghers inspected Louisville's river terminals and paid a visit to the hydro-electric plant of the Louisville Gas and Electric Company, which utilizes the water power furnished by the falls of the Ohio, augmented by the government dam. This plant illustrates the possibilities of developing water power by damming the river for the improvement of navigation.

The tourists are interested not only in waterways, but also in airways. James Francis Burke and Ambrose N. Diehl paid a visit to Bowman Field, Louisville's airport, with a view to getting information which may be useful to Pittsburgh. Burke is chairman of a sub-committee of the Chamber of Commerce which is looking for a site for a new air port for Pittsburgh. Discussing the matter, Councilman Robert Garland said:

"Pittsburgh must have a new landing field of 200 acres, within six or seven miles of the city, right away. We will have to put a million dollars into it, of which the city will pay half and the county the other half. The city is ready to contribute its share immediately. Rodgers Field is inadequate, and will have to be abandoned or used as a training field. Fortunately we have only put $100,000 into it. As things stand now, Pittsburgh is not on the air map."

GUESTS AT DINNER

The Pittsburghers were guests of Louisville Board of Trade at a dinner last night. United States Senator F. M. Sackett was toastmaster, and addresses were delivered by Huston Quin, former mayor of Louisville; A. V. Snell, manager of the Pittsburgh Chamber of Commerce, and Dr. Thomas S. Baker, president of the Carnegie Institute of Technology. Snell sounded the keynote by declaring, "the greatest problem of distribution today is transportation, and tonnage is so greatly increasing that every possible factor of transportation must be utilized."

The visitors have been entertained with true southern hospitality. Many bonds of kinship between Louisville and Pittsburgh have been discovered. It has been recalled that Barney Dreyfuss, Honus Wagner and Fred Clarke were connected with the Louisville Baseball Club before going to Pittsburgh. Two Pittsburgh concerns, the Standard Sanitary Manufacturing Company and the Pittsburgh Plate Glass Company, have large plants here.

HUNT KIDNAPED BOY, MOTHER; GYPSY HELD

While Peter Young, alleged leader of a Gypsy band, is being held without bail, city detectives are searching for the wife of S. J. Western, Jr., of Troy, N. C., and the adopted son of Western's father, whom Young is suspected of kidnaping in Troy a week ago.

Several attempts were made last night to have Young released on bond, but the detectives continued to hold him, although he denied knowledge of the whereabouts of the child and Western's wife. Police believe the woman and the infant son are hiding somewhere in Pittsburgh.

Young was arrested yesterday morning when he appeared in Morals Court to pay the fines imposed upon Mary Young, said to be his wife, and another woman, arrested for fortune telling. He was charged with altering the license numbers on a machine he was using.

Silent Tribute Paid Brett by Veterans

Allegheny county Veterans of Foreign Wars stopped their dance last night to pay tribute to the vacant place in their ranks in today's Armistice Day parade. More than a thousand guests at the annual ball in the Fort Pitt Hotel stood in silent reverence as tribute to the memory of the late Brig. Gen. Lloyd M. Brett, wartime commander of the One Hundred Sixtieth Infantry Brigade, Eightieth Division, and former national commander of the V. F. W. Gen. Brett died in Washington several weeks ago, a few days after attending the annual reunion of the Eightieth Division Veterans' Association here.

FALL REFRESHED BY GOOD NIGHT'S SLEEP

TWO MEN HELD FOR ATTACK ON WOMAN

GREENSBURG, Pa., Nov. 11.—(AP.)—Charged with criminal assault, robbery, larceny of an automobile and pointing fire arms, Roy Stick, 21, and Homer Kern, 21, both of Youngwood, were held for court last night after a hearing before Justice of the Peace Joseph Walton. The victim of the assault was Mrs. Maud Trout, 24, wife of Albert Trout of near Armbrust.

According to police, Mrs. Trout stepped from a trolley car at a country stop to find herself confronted by Kern who, at the point of a revolver, forced her into his car in which Stick was a passenger. Later Mrs. Trout was released and told her husband what had occurred.

FEW FOLKS HAVE GRAY HAIR NOW

Hair that loses its color and lustre, or when it fades, turns gray, dull and lifeless, is caused by a lack of sulphur in the hair. Our grandmother made up a mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur to keep her locks dark and beautiful, and thousands of women and men who value that even color, that beautiful dark shade of hair which is so attractive, use only this old-time recipe.

Nowadays we get for only 75 cents this famous mixture improved by the addition of other ingredients by asking at any drug store for a bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound." This darkens the hair so naturally, so evenly, that nobody can possibly tell it has been applied. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears; but what delights the ladies with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound is that, besides beautifully darkening the hair after a few applications, it also brings back the gloss and lustre and gives it an appearance of abundance.

FLORENCE MACBETH

Noted Star of Grand Opera, writes:

"There are many instances in Grand Opera where the singer is required to smoke, as part of the character portrayed. Owing to the delicate structure of the vocal chords, it is necessary to exercise the greatest care in the choice of the cigarette to be used. In my own experience, I have found 'Lucky Strike' to be the only cigarette having that mild, smooth quality which permitted me to smoke naturally, and yet continue singing without the usual difficulties."

DIRECT from LONDON

$6.60 All One Price

A Record Achievement by Regal

THIS 75 Shilling ($18.25) Original English Model was purchased September 28th on Regent Street in London by two members of our Style Committee.

It was sent by special messenger to Southampton to catch the first fast boat for New York, which was the "Berengaria".

This Original English Model was delivered to our Factory Superintendent in Whitman, Massachusetts, on October 11th. It was reproduced in the Regal Factory and shipped direct to 72 Regal Stores from New York to San Francisco.

I forgot to tell you that we purchased 36 pairs (72 shoes) of the original English Model so that we could show (one) $18.25 London Original and (one) $6.60 Regal Reproduction, in 72 Regal Stores, side by side, and let you decide what the difference was, if any, between the Regent Street Model and the Regal Reproduction.

The 75 Shilling London Model is a typical High-Grade English Last with Spring, Swing and Swagger. Simplicity is the Style keynote.

This shoe represents a new type of footwear known in England as the "Semi-Heavies". It has a full Calfskin lining with single sole of heavy oak leather which gives Warmth and Wear without Weight.

The Upper Leather is Martin of Glasgow's Scotch Grain and, as there is only one Genuine Scotch Grain, our men hopped the "Flying Scot" that night for Glasgow to see Mr. Martin personally to speed up shipments to America of identically the same tannage that is in the Original English shoe.

Now, in addition to the famous Regent Street Model, we have 18 other new Styles of Genuine Scotch Grain, Heather Grain and Holland Grain. High Shoes and Winter Oxfords, plain and fancy patterns, Wing Tips, Ball Straps and Saddle Straps. We believe it represents the most complete line of shoes made of Genuine Imported High-Grade Grain Leather ever offered in America, and they are all One Price—$6.60.

Beauty Not Always Marketable In Hollywood—Too Many Pretty Women There, Observer States

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS,
(Motion Picture Editor of Universal Service.)

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 11.

BEAUTY is not always marketable in skeptical Hollywood where there are more beautiful women parading Hollywood boulevard than there are in any city in the world. That's why Felix Young, an agent, was so long in convincing the producers here of Xonia Karloff's value as a screen attraction. Cecil De Mille saw her and his practised eye at once appreciated that if her tests did justice to her exquisite face he had a discovry.

Her tests were all anyone could ask, and so she was signed pronto by De Mille himself. Just for a fleeting moment, there was talk that she might play the feminine lead in "The Godless Girl," but Mr. De Mille told me she is too exotic a type to play an American schoolgirl.

"Who will play the girl?" I begged. His answer was noncommittal, but I did succeed in getting him to say that the choice has now virtually narrowed down to Lina Basquette and Alberta Vaughn. He had many pleasant things to say about each woman and her chance of winning the coveted role.

As for the boy—the search is still on, with new tests being made every day.

And still the Hungarian population in Hollywood increases. Small wonder, Mitzi, the dancer, expressed surprise when she found such a large percentage of her countrymen here in motion pictures. Paul Lukas, who recently came here from Hungary and who is a different type (I know it because I've met him), has been added to the cast of "Leatherface." Curiously enough, Vilma Banky, who with Ronald Colman is co-starring in this picture, never met Mr. Lukas in their native land, although they were both working for the same film company.

I can think of nothing more harmful to motion pictures than the production of that unnecessary book, "The President's Daughter." None of the big league producers would touch it with a 10-foot pole any more than they would film "Revelry," supposed to be an inside story of a chapter in the life of a dead President. One of the independent companies, I am told, is negotiating with Nan Britton for the rights to her story. Let's hope something happens to prevent negotiations being consummated. We like to think the movies would scorn to attack the character of a man of national prominence, particularly when that man has passed on and has no chance to defend himself.

We so seldom hear of an actor returning to his native land, that Arlette Marchal gave her Hollywood friends a great surprise when she bade them farewell earlier this week and announced that she was returning to her home in Paris. "I shall make pictures in France," she told me. "I will miss Hollywood, but I feel there is a greater opportunity for me in my own country." In some cases the players return home to take advantage of the prestige they have gained in this country. But Miss Marchal was a well-known actress before Gloria Swanson persuaded her to come to America after she played in "Madame Sans Gene" opposite Miss Swanson.

The most surprising news in a long time comes from Frank Reicher, who was one of Broadway's best known stage directors. He came West to direct some pictures and was persuaded to play a part in "Beau Sabreur." One taste in acting in the movies and he decided to continue. He has just finished playing the village schoolmaster in "Grandma Bernle Learns Her Letters," and now he has been cast in an important role in "The Blue Danube." All I can say is, he has trained enough actors in his time to know how it should be done."

Good thing Lawrence Stallings and his attractive and popular wife have decided that Hollywood is 100 per cent to their liking. Irving Thalberg, who is entirely sold on Mr. Stallings as a writer, has given him enough work to do to keep him busy for the next six months. A Ramon Novarro play is now in the process of creation—a dramatic story, Irving told me, and an excellent vehicle for Novarro. Then there is "Dead Game," which John Gilbert will do following "The Cossack," an original from the prolific pen of the author of "The Big Parade" and "What Price Glory." As for Mr. Stallings, you would never think so confirmed a Broadwayite and so recognized a critic of plays and books would so soon content himself in Hollywood. "But the theater," I asked, "don't you miss it?" "Not particularly," he replied. "I had one winter helping review plays and I got enough of the stage in my system to last for a while. Then, too, we can always go East for a visit."

It's a far cry from Menelaus in "Helen of Troy" to a part in a modern newspaper story. Yet, most people welcome changes. Lewis Stone has been chosen as the lead in "Freedom of the Press," Peter B. Kyne's original story, which Universal swears by the great iron spoon is a real newspaper story. I suppose Mr. Stone plays a managing editor, or a city editor, or some kind of an editor. He's not young enough to figure romantically as a cub reporter. George Melford will direct. And if they have lace curtains in the newspaper office, and flowers on the managing editor's desk, with gold-framed photographs of his family here and there—I hope the picture gets bad notices.

Sisters Find Success Behind Footlights

HERE ARE the Ward sisters, Betty and Helen, two Pittsburgh girls, who have won success on the vaudeville stage. The sisters were born and raised in the Pittsburgh district. They are well known to inhabitants of East End and the South Hills. Two years ago they went to New York to try their luck on Broadway. Now they are back in their home town for a few days, appearing in the Sheridan Square.

Actors No Longer Make Showing Of Wealth

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 10.—Gold bricks are out of date in Hollywood. More and more the motion picture actor is becoming a shrewd business man or woman.

Instead of palatial homes in Beverly Hills, many of them are buying flats and duplex buildings in Hollywood.

Margaret Livingston has recently returned to Hollywood to live and bought a duplex. Each floor has three baths, and two garages. The shrewd little lady claims it costs her much less to live than in a separate house. One gardener cares for the grounds of both floors and the heat bill is much less than in two homes.

Gone are the days when the stars made a showing of wealth. Today they love to discuss investments and percentages instead of diamond tiaras and motor cars.

CELEBRATION TONIGHT IN WEBSTER HALL HOTEL

Armistice Day will be celebrated in gala fashion in Webster Hall Hotel. Dewey Bergman and his Webster Hall Orchestra have arranged an elaborate musical program featuring Weston Vaughan, who achieved popularity as a result of his "Charmaine" phonograph record. He will sing that popular number accompanied by Lorin Parsons, violinist of the orchestra. The management has provided plenty of souvenirs and noise makers. The program will be broadcast over station KDKA.

Young Star Finds November His Lucky Month

Buzz Barton, 12-year-old western star, who has more freckles than he can count and rides a piebald pinto pony, has made a discovery. November is his lucky month.

This revelation came all because he doesn't have to get up until 7:30 o'clock in the morning while making "The Fightin' Redhead," his latest picture. The director chose Newhall, Cal., as the location for the exterior scenes in this picture and little Buzz lives right there. So instead of getting up every morning at 4 o'clock and driving 30 miles to the studio in Hollywood, as he has had to do in previous pictures, Buzz can roll out of bed and be right on the set ready to work by 8 o'clock. "Ain't it a grand and glorious feeling?"

And, besides, just look at the opportunity this making pictures near his home town gives Buzz for showing off before his Boy Scout pals. Every afternoon after school, "The Fightin' Redhead" company has a crowd of youngsters watching the actor ride his pinto pony, Rags.

"STREETS OF SHANGHAI" FEATURES MISS STARKE

Pauline Starke is to be featured in the stellar role of the Tiffany-Stahl production, "Streets of Shanghai."

FLORENCE VIDOR NOW CAST IN "DOOMSDAY"

Florence Vidor's next picture will be "Doomsday," from the novel by Warwick Deeping.

LAWRENCE GRAY PLAYS LEAD IN "THE PATSY"

Lawrence Gray and Orville Caldwell have the principal male roles in "The Patsy," now in work at the M-G-M studio. John Patrick and Del Henderson are also cast.

Birthday Week At Picture Studio

Members of the Leo Meehan company filming "Wall Flowers" at the FBO studios have been having just one birthday after another.

Mabel Julienne Scott was the last of the cast to "throw" a birthday party on the set, after Hugh Trevor, leading man, and Alice Patrick, script girl, had gone through the ceremonies of announcing another year had been added to their lives. All three, in characteristic fashion, refused to announce their ages, but studio sleuths discovered that young Trevor was 24, Miss Patrick, 22, and the candles on Miss Scott's birthday cake numbered 32. She maintained, however, that the number had nothing to do with her age. Be that as it may, a lovely time was had by the electricians on the set eating the cake.

Magician's Role Is Played by Courtenay

William Courtenay appears as a magician, "Chatrand, the Great," in "The Spider," which plays the Pitt next week, beginning Monday night. The seat sale is now on for "The Spider." Matinees Thursday and Saturday will prevail throughout the engagement of "The Spider."

Next week will be the final week of "My Maryland" in the Alvin, where the attendance has been capacity at every performance to witness this operetta of the days of the Civil War. The demand for seats is so great that the management advises they be procured early. The next matinee of "My Maryland" will be tomorrow.

That Fred Stone commands a large following among playgoers was evidenced by the line at the box oice of the Nixon when the seat sale opened yesterday morning. Mr. Stone will appear in the Nixon next week, with his daughter, Dorothy, in the musical comedy, "Criss Cross."

Nan Halperin, starring on the Keith-Albee vaudevile program in the Davis next week, will present a repertoire of comedy songs. Mrs. Wallace Reid, second feature on the vaudevile program, in a dramatic playlet, "Evidence," also is to appear in "The Satin Woman" on the screen.

ALICE DAY PORTRAYS FIRST DRAMATIC ROLE

Alice Day, who plays the leading role in the production, "Night Life," a comedy drama of life in Vienna before, during and after the World War, is playing her first dramatic role in this picture. Miss Day—the sister of Marceline—who has been playing leads in comedies, always yearned to show her dramatic ability and it is said that her performance of a homeless waif is a fine bit of acting.

PLAYBOYS ORCHESTRA ENGAGED FOR SANDER'S

Thelma Terry and her Playboy orchestra are engaged to play at Sander's, Freeport highway, Aspinwall, tonight and Saturday night. The Playboy orchestra played an engagement in Sander's last summer. The Terrace Garden and the glass dance floor will be used by dancers each night.

Film Stars Keep Hospitals Busy

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 11.—Hospital bills instead of new fur coats are taking the money of some of the motion picture stars in Hollywood this season.

Dorothy Dwan is in the Hollywood Hospital having her tonsils removed. She was just starting a picture with Fox when the throat trouble of many years' standing stopped her work.

Helene Costello lost the leading role in Monte Blue's picture because of illness. Dorothy Phillips lost a lead with Tiffany because of bronchitis. Marie Prevost, Betty Blythe and Blanche Sweet are all just out of hospitals recuperating. Patsy Ruth Miller had her appendix out last week, and Adolphe Menjou is minus tonsils.

Star Finds Falling From Donkey Is an Art

Falling off a bucking donkey is easy, but making a graceful landing is very difficult, according to Dolores Del Rio.

The Mexican star and her leading man, Roland Drew, refused to let "doubles" perform for them while filming donkey-riding scenes of "Ramona" recently.

"It is a short fall—we can do it," said Dolores.

The result was, Edwin Carewe, director and co-producer of "Ramona," was forced to rearrange his shooting schedule, and make scenes for a day in which Miss Del Rio and Drew did not appear.

Pittsburgh Girls, Sisters, Here On Stage

Two young Pittsburgh girls, sisters, fresh from triumphs on Broadway, have returned to their home town for a brief stay. They are Betty and Helen Ward, known on the stage as the Ward Sisters. The girls are featured with Chita and Her Pals, a group of "Flaming Youths," in the Sheridan Square.

The sisters first won their way to Broadway two years ago. Then they journeyed to Florida and won further prestige as entertainers. At the beginning of the current season they joined the Keith-Albee vaudeville circuit. Recently, John M. Morin, a West Point graduate and son of Congressman Morin, who manages Chita and Her Pals, acquired the Ward Sisters' contract and added them to his "Flaming Youth" company.

The Ward girls opened in the Sheridan Square yesterday and are to be seen there two more days, today and tomorrow.

Clergy Holds Hand in Politics Necessary

By Universal Service

CHICAGO, Nov. 11.—Chicago clergymen and rabbis yesterday voiced disagreements with the assertion of Rabbi Solomon B. Freehof, of Chicago, that the churches have broken faith with the American government by taking a hand in politics.

"The church enters politics only when a principle of righteousness is at stake," was the assertion of Bishop Charles P. Anderson of the Episcopal Diocese. "This is absolutely necessary because in certain situations righteousness can be established only through civil law. But as a whole the church does not interfere in legislation unless it is necessary to do so to carry out the principles laid down by Jesus Christ."

The Rev. Dr. John Thompson, of the First Methodist Church, said the church delved into politics only when necessary.

"Usually the church holds aloof from politics," he declared, "but it is always ready to enter a fight and exert all possible pressure when a moral issue is involved.

"It has always claimed the right to speak on moral issues ever since the beginning of religion.

"The Jewish rabbis of the old testament spoke on the question of morals and exerted a powerful influence for good. That is history; and that history is being repeated in the Christian churches every day and so it will continue."

Dr. Louis Mann, rabbi of Sinai Temple, considered the largest and most influential one in Chicago, declared:

"In my opinion the church and synagogue cannot and dare not remain silent either in sins of omission when ideals in public life are neglected and ignored, or in sins of commission, when justice and righteousness are turned to gall and wormwood.

"Political issues are moral issues. Religion is not theology. It is life. The prophets of Israel never remained silent before political corruption nor will their true successors do so now."

Ward Divorcee To Waste No Time

By Universal Service.

NEW YORK, Nov. 11.—Speeding back from Reno, where she won a divorce from Walter S. Ward, Mrs. Curtis Ward will be married to W. Lyle Alderson, New York broker, within a few weeks, according to Park avenue gossips.

Alderson is a director in the N. Y. Produce Exchange. Walter Ward, son of the millionaire head of the Ward Baking Company, was tried and acquitted of the murder of Clarence Peters, a sailor. Peters, Ward alleged, tried to blackmail him.

BULLDOG BITES CHILD; KILLED

Julius Vogel, 5, of 1923 Baldauf street, was attacked by a bulldog last night in a field near his home and was bitten on the head and face before persons attracted by his screams could beat off the animal. The dog was killed by Wagonmen John Stanton and Edward Moser of the South Side station. The boy was taken to the West Penn Hospital.

A stray dog yesterday bit John Cerrino, 1, of 162 Luna street. The child was treated at the Pittsburgh Hospital for a wound on the right leg. Mrs. Helen Peters, 22, of 371 Cherry way, Homestead, was bitten on the left leg by a neighbor's dog. Police were upable to find the animal.

Henry J. Carson and Louis E. Carson of Cronemeyer avenue, McKeesport, are being given Pasteur treatments for bites suffered last week when a dog owned by the former attacked the two.

DEATH ROLL

Philip Zischkau

Phillip Zischkau, 71, former Turtle Creek merchant, died Wednesday in his home, 501 Hunter street, Turtle Creek. Mr. Zischkau was a native of the Pittsburgh district and had lived here all his life. Until a few years ago he was engaged in business in Turtle Creek. He was formerly a member of the borough council and school board. He was a member of Valley Lodge No. 613, F. & A. M. He leaves his widow, Mrs. Ellen Ament Zischkau; seven sons, Charles E., Oscar W., George F., Joseph A., Frank H., Phillip E. and Elmer D. Zischkau, and three daughters, Mrs. Gertrude M. Tudor and Miss Anna M. Zischkau, both of Turtle Creek, and Mrs. Marie F. Williams of Sharon, Pa.

Rev. Ferdinand Prikazky.

Rev. Ferdinand Prikazky, 60, pastor of St. Gabriel's Catholic Church, North Side, for the past 23 years, died yesterday. He was ordained in Slovakia in 1893. The present St. Gabriel's Church, school, rectory and convent at Superior and California avenues were built under his direction. He was instrumental in starting the teaching order of Slovak Franciscan Sisters in America, who found a home in St. Gabriel's parish.

Florence N. Reed.

Florence N. Reed died yesterday in his home, 238 Rosedale street. He was born in Pittsburgh and was employed by the Pennsylvania Railroad as a conductor for the past 34 years. He was a member of the Brushton Methodist Episcopal Church, Loyalty Lodge No. 606 F. & A. M., Pennsylvania Consistory A. A. S. R., Syria Temple, A. A. O. N. M. S. and Division 114, Order Railroad Conductors. He leaves his widow, Mrs. Sadie Snowden Reed; four daughters, one sister, Mrs. W. A. Robison of Honolulu, and five grandchildren.

Miss Mary Frances Henderson

Miss Mary Frances Henderson, daughter of James L. Henderson, pioneer resident of Etna, died at the home of her sister, Mrs. S. J. Saint, 111 Eastern avenue, Aspinwall, Wednesday. She was a member of the Centenary Methodist Episcopal Church, Sharpsburg, and leaves a sister, Mrs. Saint, and a brother, Charles D. Henderson, president of the Citizens' Trust Company, Sharpsburg, and vice president of the Allegheny Steel Company.

Mrs. Rosamunda Hess.

Mrs. Rosamunda Hess, 89, died yesterday in the home of her daughter, Mrs. Anna Sauer, 334 Marshall avenue, North Side. She was born in Baden, Germany, and came to this country 71 years ago. She was in the shoe business in East Ohio street for 30 years. Mrs. Hess was a member of St. Athanasius Catholic Church. She leaves two daughters, Mrs. Sauer and Mrs. Charles Deer; six grandchildren and six great-grandchildren.

Samuel H. Scholes.

Samuel H. Scholes, 82, of 1152 Coe avenue, died yesterday in St. Francis Hospital. He was born in Ireland and came to Pittsburgh when a youth. He was a widely known sheet metal contractor and was a member of The Sheet Metal Contractors' Association, Federal Council No. 199, Royal Arcanum, and the Episcopal church. He leaves three sons, W. H., Samuel L. and Ernest Scholes and three grandchildren.

Mrs. Mary Rosenberger.

PLEASANT RELIEF FROM CONSTIPATION

Shoulders droop under weight of years. Young, yet beauty has fled. Cheeks are sallow and drawn. Unsightly pimples. Keep your system clean and you keep the beauty of youth. Its energy. Its irresistible charm. Then life is not a failure.

Clogged bowels and inactive liver cause poisons to seep through the system. Health vanishes and with it beauty and energy. Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets will save you from this dark hour. For 20 years they have been prescribed in place of calomel to men and women seeking health and freedom from constipation. They act easily and smoothly. No dangerous griping. Take nightly before retiring. Results will amaze you.

Thousands of men and women would never be without Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets, a vegetable compound mixed with olive oil. Know them by their olive color. 15c, 30c, 60c.

WILHELM SEES GERMANY FAIL WITHOUT HIM

By International News Service

DOORN, Holland, Nov. 11.—Armistice Day, which concludes nine years of European peace, finds the former German Kaiser still clinging to the slender hope that the Hohenzollerns may some day rule again in all their glory over Germany, according to reports among persons who have come in contact with the one-time war lord.

The former Kaiser has not been well and those who have seen him recently say that his once soldierly form is bent with age and worry. It is said that his illness has been mental, to some extent, as well as physical. However, he is in better health at present.

William ponders a great deal over the past, especially over the collapse of his throne and his enforced exile. He is reported to have said to a visitor in a confidential chat:

"I shall return. Of course I shall return. Germany is like a fatherless child without me."

But he quickly added: "I am happy here. I plan only for peace. It is quiet here and I am recovering from an illness."

GOING FOR AID, HIT BY AUTO

William Stockfisch, 22, of 150 Morewood avenue, B. & O. clerk, was run down and probably fatally injured by an automobile in the Frankstown road, near Kimmel's barbecue stand early today. He is in Columbia Hospital with a dislocated neck and fractured knee.

The young man was walking in the darkness to a telephone to summon a repairman for his machine, which had broken down, when he was struck by a car driven by Ernest H. Kaste, 41, of 143 Grant street, Vandergrift, Pa. The latter gave himself up.

CARRICK FAMILY ROUTED BY FIRE

Members of the family of Joseph F. Dinneen, of 63 Lock way, Carrick, were forced to flee from their home early this morning when a fire in the kitchen of the residence filled the house with smoke. Firemen say the fire started by an electric iron that had been left connected when the family retired. Damage was estimated at $50.

ARMISTICE DAY PROGRAM TO BE HELD IN Y. M. H. A.

An Armistice Day program will be presented Sunday evening in the Morris Kaufmann Memorial auditorium of the Young Men and Women's Hebrew Association. Mrs. Lucia Ames Mead, a member of the National Committee for the Prevention of War, will speak. Mrs. Joseph Schutzman, chairman of the Pittsburgh chapter of the Women's International League for Peace, will be chairman of the meeting.

BIBLE CLASS TO HOLD ARMISTICE DAY BANQUET

The men's Bible class of the First Evangelical Church, Center avenue and Graham street, will hold its second annual Armistice Day banquet at the church this evening. The special speaker is James B. Mace, Y. M. C. A. leader.

CHARGE AGAINST WARD LEADERS DISMISSED

Informations charging Alderman Charles P. Burke, Republican chairman of the Seventh Ward, and Roy D. Schooley, Republican chairman of the Eighth Ward, with conspiracy to intimidate voters at the primary election were dismissed last night when the informant, R. E. Zuker, defeated aldermanic candidate of the Seventh Ward, failed to appear before Justice of the Peace Thomas E. Mallisse, of New Texas, Plum township.

Zuker's motives in causing the warrant to be issued and then failing to appear drew a strong denunciation from Mallisse.

In moving the informations be dismissed, Col. Oscar T. Taylor, counsel for the defendants, pointed out that as Zuker received but 147 out of almost 4,000 votes cast at the primary election in the Seventh Ward, the charge in itself was ridiculous.

"After investigation," Mallisse answered, "the whole thing looks like 'monkey business' on the part of this man Zuker."

The New Texas squire had previously refused Zuker's request to hold a hearing before the general election, declaring it would give the case too much an appearance of political propaganda. Zuker was a candidate at the general election on an "Independent" ticket. He was overwhelmingly defeated by Burke, the vote being proportional to that in the primary.

THEATER OWNER FIGHTS VIEWERS' DAMAGE AWARD

J. H. Fleishman has filed an exception to the award of city of Pittsburgh viewers granting him $78,400 as damages to his property through the widening of Irwin avenue, North Side. Fleishman alleges that previous to the improvement he owned 9,600 square feet of ground on which stood a moving picture theater. After the widening, Fleishman avers, that the building was torn down and his ground space reduced to 4,513 feet, lowering the property's value from $140,000 to $9,000. He asks for the balance of $131,000.

Millicent and Ramos Sail on Honeymoon

By Universal Service

NEW YORK, Nov. 11.—Arturo Peralta Ramos and his bride, the former Millicent Rogers, sailed for South America yesterday on their honeymoon. Before the Santa Elisa left port, the bridegroom made the following clear:

1. He's going to be boss in his own house.

2. A vigorous outdoor life, with adventures in the wilds of the Inca country, await Millicent, rather than any effete indulgence in the frivolities of society.

3. Asked if the children, if any, would be reared in the Catholic faith, Ramos replied:

"That is a matter that is up to me."

Millicent made only one brief statement before locking herself in the honeymoon suite, while Ramos was talking to reporters. This was while she and her husband were racing from a taxicab to the Santa Elisa!

"I'm feeling fine," said Millicent, who wore a dark gown and close-fitting turban, "but I'm darned glad to get away from here."

Mrs. Ramos did not then know that her grandfather, George H. Benjamin, whose grave illness had hastened her marriage to Ramos, had died early this morning, and she remained in ignorance of his demise until after the ship was well at sea, it is said.

After H. H. Rogers, Jr., and Robert D. Coe, best man at the wedding, had paid a call aboard the ship—and they were the only ones among the couple's friends who did—Ramos told reporters:

"I have done nothing to justify all this interest.

"No, my wife is not a Catholic," he added in response to a question, "and I don't think she will become one."

Ramos said he and his bride probably would return in March.

A GRIPPING STORY OF MARGIE-WHO TRIED TO TRICK LOVE

By Gilbert Rogers

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Margie Marsh comes to New York with a thousand dollars and a wonderful education. She keeps house with four other girls, learns stenography and after three years decides to marry. She fails to find her ideal, and Dan Shevlin, a shrewd man of the world, offers to introduce her into smart society through a Mrs. Brooke, provided Margie will give him some security. This security consists of a note which he dictates and Margie recklessly signs, to the effect that she loves him and will never regret the six months she has spent with him. Mrs. Brooke buys Margie wonderful clothes that Shevlin pays for, and takes her to her cottage in Newport. There she meets Mrs. Brooke's brother, Mark Trelaw, a cripple. She scores a success with the rich. She falls in love with Jerry and, bitterly regretting her compact with Shevlin, asks him for the compromising letter. He scoffs at her and insists that she meet Adrian Martin first. Margie does meet Martin, and, learning that he knows Jerry, goes to his home with the idea of urging him to help her sweetheart. Jerry, calling on Martin, sees Margie, misunderstands and rushes out. Margie learns of a shady episode in Martin's life and, telling Shevlin, discovers to her horror how he makes his money. Jerry asks her to marry him and go to South America. Shevlin calls her up from New York.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

A SMILING Japanese showed her into a small living room, a handsome living room with books and deep chairs and cigar humidors, like the room of a wealthy bachelor.

Then she started and looked up. Shevlin standing there, smiling down at her.

"Margie!"

"Don't touch me! Don't come near me like that. Please! Please, won't you listen to what I've come to say."

He halted. "Go ahead."

"Oh, let me off—burn that letter, won't you? I'll pay you the money back. I really will, only this thing means more to me than anything in the world. Anything!—oh, how can I tell you?"

She couldn't put her emotions, the deep yearning and deeper ache in her heart, into words. They sounded so usual, so ordinary. And she must try to make him understand.

She hated him for grinning at her like that, grinning confidently, as if he were scarcely listening to what she was saying.

"Don't be a fool!" he said. "Why, I'm not going to hurt you—I'm going to be good to you. Just think it over. And don't waste any breath—I've made up my mind."

She found herself arguing desperately, begging him now, pleading, losing her pride. In another moment she'd be crying . . .

Then the 'phone, and Shevlin answering it. "Oh . . . send him up right away."

He slapped down the receiver and turned to her swiftly.

"What could be sweeter! Your friend, Evesham, is here. Carlotta probably did that. Well, you can hide in that room and I'll send him away with any lie you choose. Or—he can come in here and find you and read that letter in front of you. It's up to you. Hide in that room, and let me take care of you . . . for two weeks, for a week. Or else—!"

His mask a casual gesture, Margie was trembling now. She met his eyes with a look of terror. For a little moment they faced each other silently. Then Margie heard the click and rumble of the elevator in the corridor, and the sound of the doorbell.

CHAPTER XXXI.

MARGIE sat very still, trying to think. Yet a voice in her brain was warning her, terrifying her. . . . She knew that no matter what might happen to her ever again in life, it could not be worse than now, than this moment of dread and anxiety.

Shevlin looking down at her, with something lithe and alert in his lean body, something that watched her like a cat in his unswerving, cold eyes. . .

And even as the peal of the bell died out, she could hear the Japanese servant's footfalls in the carpeted hallway.

Jerry was out there, Jerry! perhaps he was eager, hopeful of seeing her, with his strong arms anxious to fold her close, his voice tender at the thought of her.

But if he came in, found her here with Shevlin, and Shevlin told—! She threw one swift, imploring look, a look of agonized appeal.

Shevlin leaned forward. He whispered rapidly:

"Don't be a fool, Margie! Get into that room—I'll send him away. He'll never know. Why—you can marry him a dozen times over afterwards, if you want to. But stay here with me—let me be good to you! . . . If you won't," he shrugged.

Her brain wavered and reeled. She felt a choking sensation seize her throat, she could not speak. She knew what that shrug meant—the letter—he would show the letter—

Her eyes gazed at Shevlin, but they did not see him now.

"I've got to be brave," her mind was wearily saying. "I've got to face this. It will be over soon. And—some day he would have had to know. He'll forgive me—if Shevlin tells. How can he help forgiving me—when I love him so?" And all at once as if in a dream she saw Newport again, and all her gay good times, the lovely things she had had to wear, the bewildering things she had done. Only now she was paying for everything—everything!

Then the dream was shattered, for Jerry stood there on the threshold, facing her, smiling at her.

She forgot everything. She sprang up, went towards him, felt his hands close around hers, and drew that little instant of protection and happiness out of the turmoil of her distress.

Her lips were ashen, she knew, and her smile was not really a smile. But she tried to talk, naturally, easily:

"Jerry—imagine our meeting like this—why, I'm so glad. . . ."

"Oh, I got back to Newport," he explained awkwardly, "and dropped in on you to say I had to go to New York. And your friend—Mrs. Brooke—told me you'd gone there yourself, and suggested that I'd probably find you at this address."

He was glancing towards Shevlin, frowning a little, waiting for an introduction. But Margie was too confused, too frightened to notice. Only one thought filled her—to get away, to get away quickly, with Jerry. Away from Shevlin.

"I was just going," she stammered. "In fact—well, perhaps you and I—"

Jerry's look was puzzled now, as if Shevlin's stillness was something tangible that could be felt, or something that hung in the somber room like an accusation or a sneer.

"Anything the matter?" Jerry had cleared his throat.

"No, nothing. Nothing. Only, I'd like to—that is, we might—"

Shevlin's heavy laugh, sardonic and unexpected, shattered the silence. Then it was more silent than before in the somber room with the heavy, dark curtains.

"See here," Jerry said after the pause. "Something is the matter. What is it?" His tone was very quiet and level.

It was Dan Shevlin who answered. "Nothing at all, just as she told you. I was merely amused at the speed with which a really clever girl shifts her lovers. Having just said good-by to me and this apartment, it seems that you are the next? Fast work, my dear!"

Insultingly drawled, the words snapped with insinuations. The color swept into Jerry's face, and a big blue vein stood out on his forehead. Only it seemed to Margie that she was not nervous any longer, but numbed, strangely calm.

"It's happened," she thought. "It's happened!" And now she did not dare meet Jerry's eyes. . . .

But they were not on her. They blazed upon Shevlin. With something like a roar he had stepped forward, his hands clenched.

Shevlin did not move. He was cool, as only he could be cool.

"Take that back! Take that back! Why, you dirty liar!"

"I beg your pardon," said Shevlin softly. "I imagined you knew."

"Know!"

Shevlin shrugged his shoulders. "Don't be ashamed of having a woman make a fool of you. That happens to every man at least once. My dear fellow—I don't know your last name—you owe me thanks instead of a thrashing."

Margie wet her dry lips with her tongue. How easily, how naturally he had spoken! Why, Jerry was shaken already, was confused and uncertain. . . .

"It's a lie," he said thickly now, "it's all—why it's a lie!"

Shevlin pointed his finger lazily at Margie, crouching there.

"Look at her there—do you think she looks as if she were a lie?"

"Do you think she'd stand there and smile after an insult like that? Margie, tell me: Who is this man? What do you want me to do? What is this anyway?" Jerry's voice ended in a note of something like desperation.

"Take me away," Margie half moaned. "Oh, Jerry, take me away! Don't ask me anything now."

And at that cry Jerry seemed to get control of himself, to face things decisively.

"In a moment, Margie. First of all, I'm going to make this man take back what he said. I couldn't leave this place, and let him—or anyone—get away with what he said!"

Now Shevlin's glance was full of contempt. "I haven't the slightest intention of brawling. I'll take back anything—even the truth. I take it all back. Only, since you're so sure of your opinions, you can have this. She'll probably explain it away afterwards. You look pretty easy."

As he spoke, he had slipped his hand into his pocket, pulled out an envelope, tossed it into Jerry's fingers, and turning his back, walked to the window.

Jerry swung towards Margie, and in that moment her fear and distress swept away her last reserve of courage. A panic came

30 Years Cabby, Death Follows 1st Summons

By Universal Service.

NEW YORK, Nov. 11.—In 30 years of driving an automobile, John Mulcahey had never had a "summons."

A few days ago, he felt disgraced because he had to plead guilty to a charge of parking his taxicab for one minute.

And yesterday the cab took him to his death. In an unexplained accident, it rolled to the end of a dock and fell to the bottom of the East River, drowning Mulcahey.

GEN. PERSHING VISITS PRESIDENT COOLIDGE

WASHINGTON, Nov. 11.—Gen. John J. Pershing, just back from the Paris convention of the Legion, called upon President Coolidge yesterday. The General said it merely was to pay his respects to the Commander-

Cult 'Believers' Rally To King Ben

ST. JOSEPH, Mich., Nov. 11.—King Ben Purnell, who enjoyed 23 years of ease, plenty and power, found himself today without a kingdom.

He has long been the central figure in the religious colony which he called the House of David. He has been credited with divine power. He has been assailed as a philanderer who founded the colony for material gain and the right to take young girls as mistresses.

He has been prosecuted by the state on complaints of girl members of his colony. For three years he was a fugitive from justice.

And he has emerged still the dominant man who always has seen his followers subservient to his will, although he is now an invalid.

He was shorn by the state of Michigan of his power and the right to guide the destinies of his colony.

A decision by Judge Louis H. Feal yesterday took the House of David from Purnell's control. It provided for appointment of a receiver to handle affairs of the colony.

But today King Ben's followers, undaunted by the adverse verdict, again came to his aid with intimations that they planned to appeal Judge Feal's decision.

They still believe in Ben Purnell's "divinity." They still think he can provide for them everlasting life. They will tell you that he is the only one who can hold the colony together.

The "everlasting life" was one of Purnell's promises to his flock, provided they "lived right." When a colonist did die, Purnell attributed it to "an evil deed" and the rest believed him.

The court ruling yesterday gave the colonists the right to continue to maintain the House of David as a religious sect. It also gave any colonist the right to cash his assets and leave.

Heretofore all assets of the colony have been controlled by Purnell and his wife, "Queen Mary," and it is reported that several colonists have failed in their attempts to gain property once held by them.

Murder! Murder! And It Was—With Cards

Told by telephone that a murder was being committed in a house at 2834 Carson street last night, police from the South Side Station and city detectives rushed to the scene, but found only a poker game with 17 Negroes participating. E. M. Jackson and Charles Stewart, Negroes, were charged with keeping a disorderly house and were lodged in the South Side station with 15 others, who were charged with visiting a disorderly house.

Smoking Room for Women on P. R. R.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 11.—(AP.)—A smoking compartment for women passengers is the latest innovation of the Pennsylvania Railroad.

With gray-tinted walls, comfortable lounge chairs, a vanity table and a gray floor rug to match, the smoking compartment is built at one end of a new chair car and will be used as an experiment between here and New York. Should it prove popular, the Pullman Company, builders of the car, plans to extend the service to Pullman cars all over the country.

Persistence of women passengers in using the men's smoking car caused railroad officials to inaugurate the new service. The compartment has seating arrangements for five persons.

COLLEGE PLAYERS "MUGGED" IN MUD

STUDENTS PLASTERED

Plaster of Paris masks of all members of the cast of "Everyman," being presented by the Little Theater of the University of California, are being made by Glenn Wessells, of the theater's art staff. The upper photograph shows Louis Criviolo, left, and Helen Morse holding their masks, while in the lower picture Wessells is applying the first coat of cement on Pauline Stuart, after covering her face well with a protective layer of vaseline.

'PHOTOGRAPHER' THIEVES ROB ROSS TOWNSHIP MAN

County detectives are seeking two robbers who use a photography scheme as a ruse in their operations. According to a report to the detectives the men, while pretending to prepare to take pictures of the children of P. J. Busher, of 37 East Orchard avenue, Ross township, in the Busher home, blew out an electric light fuse. While the fuse was being repaired a buffet was ransacked and $10 was stolen from a drawer. The men said they were representatives of a children's magazine.

Varicose Veins

Reduced Or Money Back

Simple Home Treatment That Is Giving Amazing Results

The world progresses. Today ailments that took weeks to cure can now be ended in a few days. If you have varicose veins or bunches you can start today to bring them back to normal size, and if you are wise you will do so.

Just get an original bottle of Moone's Emerald Oil at any dispensing pharmacist and apply it night and morning as directed to the enlarged veins. It is very powerful and penetrating, and only a little is required.

After a few days' treatment the veins will begin to grow smaller and by regular use will soon reduce to normal.

People who want to reduce varicose veins or get rid of running sores and ulcers, should not hesitate to get a bottle at once. It is so powerful that a small bottle lasts a long time. Any pharmacy can supply you. McCulloch's 18 convenient drug stores sell lots of it.

It Never Pays

over her, shaking her pitifully. She stretched out her hands, imploring him.

"Jerry . . . Jerry, don't read it! Tear it up. Please, Jerry! If you love me, Jerry . . ."

He was staring at her so strangely she felt. He was cruel—why wouldn't he do what she asked? Why wouldn't he?

"Why don't you want me to see what's in this?"

"I can't tell you. Only, it's not true—Jerry, for God's sake!"

His mouth had a look of determination, though he frowned uneasily at the cry that had burst from her.

Then he said doggedly, "But, since I do love you, I ought to be able to understand—everything."

She could not fight any longer. It was as if the life died out of her eyes. She could only stand there trembling, miserable, as he drew the sheet of note paper from its envelope.

CHAPTER XXXII.

SHE felt as if she were in a tableau, absurdly recalling how long ago in school in France, she and three other children had posed for an entertainment.

Absurd, for she felt hysterical now through sheer suffering. Only it seemed to her suddenly that there was something so unreal about the way Dan Shevlin was standing, his back towards her, gazing from the window, about the way Jerry was reading that letter.

She remembered the day she had written it, leaning across the little white-topped table of the office building cafeteria. It had seemed a pleasantly reckless thing to do. She could never have believed it would mean so much.

Only now that it had happened, now that her ordeal was over, she wondered why she had been quite so frightened. She would explain to Jerry, it would be easy to explain. And he did love her, and he would understand.

Suppose—suppose, somehow he believed that letter! For one moment fear paralyzed her, as if a shock of electricity had run through her body, paining every nerve. That couldn't happen—that surely couldn't happen!

But why was he reading it so slowly, just holding it there, just looking at it? Such a short little letter—a few brief words. They could be read with a glance.

Margie's eyes closed. Her hand went out and tightened on the arm of a chair as if for support. In just another moment she would feel Jerry's lips brush her cheek. Or perhaps he would thrash Dan Shevlin first—Dan Shevlin who was only contemptible, not terrible at all.

And now she did not dare open her eyes. To her frightened imagination it seemed as if Jerry had cast a look upon her of scorn and bitterness, turned and silently gone down the hall. To shake off that picture, she opened her eyes by a sheer effort of will.

Shevlin was standing by the window, but he had turned now, was facing her, grinning. . . .

And Jerry wasn't there! She looked around wildly, and at the same instant heard the slam of the outer door.

Then she knew that what she had imagined in that moment of acute terror had been reality.

Jerry was gone—gone. She would never, never see him any more!

In the first moment she could not even think or cry out. She could only stand there in utter helplessness, looking towards Shevlin with a white and unbelieving face.

Then, as if she were being drowned in icy water, she felt herself being surrounded by realization.

Jerry—he hadn't had faith enough in her—he had given her up—he hated her. She felt that her face must look distorted now. She could not control her mouth. It seemed twisted with pain, with pain that was dull, that was unending. But she did not want to cry. She felt this was a hurt to deep for swift, relieving tears—a hurt that would scar her forever and forever.

And even in that moment when she felt betrayed and alone, Margie thought of how once before Jerry had seen her, hiding in Adrian Martin's big house. And now this—perhaps he couldn't be blamed for not trusting her. Only, why hadn't she told him the truth, poured out the whole story? But instinctively she knew that Jerry's love for her would have been threatened by that—to learn the girl he had idealized had been a mercenary hunter of any husband rich enough, a careless giver of forfeits like the note she had given to Dan Shevlin.

If he had gone, she could not win him back. This time he would be gone for good. And, telling herself so, with a kind of terrible finality, she said to Shevlin slowly:

"How could you have done this thing? How could you? You've robbed me of my chance for happiness—that's what you've done—and how can you think I'll ever stop hating you now?"

Shevlin lighted a cigaret. He strolled from the window. He seemed cheerful and careless.

"Don't take it so much to heart," he murmured. "After all, I gave you warning, you had your chance."

"And you could do that to me—for no reason except to hurt me," she said, her voice breaking a little in spite of her.

"Oh, but you're wrong!" he protested. "I thought I'd convince you in a way you wouldn't forget that I always keep my word. The next time, you see, you won't doubt me."

"The next time!" She flung the words at him furiously.

He came closed to her, and his hand shot out and caught her wrist.

"Oh, you don't think I'm through, do you?" he asked softly. "Why, Margie, I'm going to get you, and the harder you struggle, the more fun for me! If you knew how often I thought of kissing you—there—on your throat—" He broke off, checking himself with a laugh, and releasing his grip. "Oh, you needn't worry. I'm not a maniac. The time's coming, my dear, when you'll be only too happy to give up. You don't think so? Oh, but I know!"

And in that instant it seemed to Margie's troubled spirit as if she were not looking at a man, but a kind of cruel creature out of some old tale of superstition. In Dan Shevlin's thin-lipped smile there was no hint of kindness, no vulnerable point of pity or conscience. He was as ruthless as if he were made of steel—and suddenly she felt afraid as she had never felt afraid in her life.

She whirled away from him swiftly, and half ran down the hall. Then she rang the elevator bell repeatedly, excitedly. But Shevlin had not followed her.

And soon she was on the street in the darkness, with people hurrying past, cars slipping by. She was walking, and she did not know where she was walking.

To Be Continued Tomorrow.

Story by Lloyd Mayer — By John Held, Jr.

"My dear, DID you see the GAME? Well, it was SIMply THRILLing! I mean you've honestly never in your LIFE seen ANYthing so FRIGHTfully exCiting because it was simply MARvelous the way everybody sort of dashed VAGUELy HITHer and YON, sort of MADly shouting SIGnals and KICKing each other in the FACE and all. But I was never so s'prised in my LIFE about ANYthing, my dear, as I was about ARab because I mean he was SIMply GREAT, no less! I mean you've never seen anything LIKE the way that odd soul sort of SEIZED the BALL and ran FRANtically round with the most feROcious exPRESsion, sort of STRAIGHTarming all these strange TACKlers. I mean he actually LOOKED like NOTHing HUman but he REALly played a SWELL GAME, my dear, and I was TERribly PROUD of him, 'specially when he practicably ran the LENGTH of the FIELD and went sort of SPRAWling under this MASS of TACKlers—can you BEAR it, my dear? I mean it was honestly the MOST unCOUTH spectacle you've ever obSERVED and I give you my WORD I simply NEVer expected to see him aRISE because I mean they lit'rally STOMPED him into the TURF at this point, my dear, and I was SIMply WILD because when they sort of unEARTHED him and CARried him off the FIELD he looked even more unCONscious than USual. I mean I REALly don't think that sort of thing can be GOOD for anybody, do you honestly think it CAN, my dear?"

Love's Embers

Absorbing Sequel to "Revelations of a Wife" — By Adele Garrison

Madge Has an Adventure With a Handsome Stranger and a Dog

I HALF started to my feet in anger as I came to the conclusion that Dicky must have told the red-bearded man of the time of my projected journey into the city. Then I sank back again quickly as I realized that any unusual movement or display of emotion of any kind would bring upon me the curious stares of the people in the Long Island waiting room where I was seated. Yet I was furiously angry nevertheless. Was it possible that Dicky had employed the red-bearded man, who so patently was an old acquaintance of his army days, to watch my movements and report to him upon them?

I had the grace to be ashamed of that particular suspicion when my anger began to recede. Dicky never could be guilty of an action like that. But I did not abandon my conviction that the man knew of my journey through Dicky.

I glanced at my wrist watch again and saw that I had almost an hour to spare before I would have to take a taxi to Mr. Veritgen's offices. I had planned to go to Lillian's in the interim, if a telephone call should tell me that she was at home, but I suddenly changed my plans. I could not find out what Dicky had told the red-bearded man concerning my journey, but I resolved to watch the station closely during the half hour that remained before the Montauk train pulled out, and find out, if possible, why this bizarre new neighbor of ours had come 100 miles on a train only to sit half an hour in the station and travel back upon it again.

Of course, there was but one plausible answer, and that was that he expected to meet someone in that half hour, or—more probably—watch someone, himself unknown.

I knew that there were seats in that outer waiting room which commanded a view of the bench upon which the red-bearded man had stationed himself. The room was so large that by using a little finesse I believe I could gain a vantage point without being seen by the red-bearded man. And there I meant to watch and wait until the Montauk train should pull out.

I consulted my general Long Island time-table which I always carry with me, and found that a local suburban train to a nearby golf resort would leave in a few minutes, and resolved to take advantage of the movement of passengers toward it to screen my own movements. I purchased a Sunday newspaper at the stand, in order more fully to equip me for my ruse, and was returning to my seat near the checking booth when I felt a violent impact against my side which almost knocked me down.

I staggered, caught at the back of a bench, and recovered my balance, and then turned with natural indignation to confront a most apologetic and distressed young man who was holding the collar of a wonderful Russian wolfhound.

"Mademoiselle, I crave a thousand pardons," he said in excellent English, only the odd form of address betraying some alien nationality. "I thought I had Fedor upon a leash sufficiently short, but I miscalculated. Are you hurt?"

I don't think any woman could have remained angry at him, he was so personable, so engaging, and, apparently, so genuinely distressed.

"I am not hurt at all," I said with a little smile, "but I do think you should have so active an animal upon an extremely short leash. He might have knocked down a little child or an old person with grave consequences."

"I know I am desolated," he returned. "I shall not let go his collar again until I get him on the train."

He turned to two porters who accompanied him.

"My bag checks are in my left-hand coat pocket," he said. "Take them out and get my things. Then we'll go to the train. You are sure you are not hurt, mademoiselle?"

"Very sure," I reassured him, and then, as the people near me began to move toward the suburban train, I rose, and taking advantage of the crowd, gained a seat much nearer the red-bearded man than I had hoped.

Cabbage Pickle

Trim, quarter and remove most of the heart from two or three cabbages. Put them in a brine for three days, then drain and soak in fresh water for several hours, changing the water once. Drain and squeeze out all the water. Then bring the cabbage to scalading point in a pint of vinegar and a half pint of water, adding a little tumeric tied in a piece of cheese cloth. Next, put into a crock alternate layers of cabbage and seasoning, a teaspoonful each of mixed spices, ginger, cinnamon and white mustard seed, a tablespoonful of freshly grated horseradish, a half teaspoonful of cayenne pepper, a saltspoonful of black pepper, a teaspoonful of salt, two teaspoonfuls of sugar, or a tablespoonful of honey. Bring a quart of good vinegar to boiling point and pour over all. Let stand to cool and when cold cover and set aside for three days, when it will be ready to use.

For a soapy, sudsy bath—use Melo

Like to have plenty of suds when you're bathing? Then don't bathe in hard water—city water as it comes from the faucet. Soap combines with the hard water, and forms a dirty ring around the edge of the tub. That's scum. And that's certainly not pleasant to bathe in.

Hard water can be made soft. Just put Melo in the water. Then watch the soap lather! Then watch the suds come! Then watch the scum go! Have you discovered Melo as a pleasant aid for bathing? Get a can today at your grocer's.

TOMORROW'S HOROSCOPE

Saturday, November 12

Courage is victory, timidity is defeat.—NELSON.

A DAY of stirring activities is foretokened by the stars, albeit they carry an influence of turmoil and anxiety. An abrupt breaking away from present environment as well as business connections is shown, and this accompanied by unfortunate disruption and inharmony.

It may involve personal affiliations, as well as employment. However, compensation may arise through arrangement with some large corporation, a secret society or in a situation of intrigue or diplomacy.

Those whose birthday it is may anticipate a year of turmoil and upheaval, unless they manage affairs with conservatism, discretion and good nature. Impetuosity and turbulence may bring defeat. Important change is imminent and there may be a favorable opening with a trust, secret society or situation of strategy.

A child born on this day may be disposed to be hasty, headstrong and impetuous, as well as volatile, changeable and restless. This may contribute to difficult connections, both personal and business. It should succeed best by strategy.

Notable Nativity: William Collier, actor.

Had it yet? . . your first Muffet!

Whole wheat as you never knew it could be! Cooked first. Then drawn to a ribbon thin as flakes from the fluffiest shortcake! Then wound, layer upon layer, to size and shape that just fit your cereal dish. Then baked. Then toasted.

And there it is—a Muffet! Butternut browned. Light as a crumpet. Crisp as potato chips. Crunchy. Crumbling in the mouth. Suggestion of fresh pecans.

Serve plain, with cream and sugar. Or with fruit, fresh, stewed, preserved.

You'll find Muffets the best eating you've tasted in many a morning! All whole wheat's health properties, too.

Have your first Muffet tomorrow at breakfast. You'll want many more after that! Quaker Oats Co., Chicago.

Divorces Day

MRS. H. M. DAY

Mrs. Henry Mason Day, the former Elizabeth M. De Selding, obtained a Paris decree of divorce from her husband, who is vice president of the Sinclair Exploration Company, and is under $25,000 bail in the United States in connection with the alleged tampering with the Fall-Sinclair oil conspiracy trial jury.

PRIEST INVENTS MONOXIDE CONTROL

A McKeesport priest has invented an appliance whose object is to save for humanity the hundreds of lives lost annually from carbon monoxide.

Father Thomas J. Glynn, poet, philosopher, inventor, describes his latest brain child as the monoxide gas filter and muffler. The invention, he announces, is being tested by the General Motors Corporation.

Father Glynn is associat pastor of St. Peter's Roman Catholic Church, of McKeesport. Since his boyhood, when he worked alongside Charles M. Schwab in the mills at Johnstown, his mind has turned to inventing. His writings include "Charles M. Schwab and His Work," and "Father Glynn's Poems." His years in the steel mills inspired him to give to the world labor and time-saving devices.

Father Glynn hopes that by attachment of his invention to motor vehicles carbon monoxide will be removed from the exhaust gases by sending the poisonous vapors through a tube lined with cloth-like filters and water.

CHARGES WRONG, LOSES DIVORCE

Harry C. Way was always looking for a job, his wife, Marcella Way, 28, of 249 Charles street, testified in her divorce action in Common Pleas Court yesterday, but it was a job for her.

Her husband deserted her, the young wife explained, so she sued for divorce on a charge of cruel and barbarous treatment. Judge James B. Drew, dismissing the suit, instructed her that she had brought the wrong charge.

I. C. C. MEMBER RESIGNS

By Universal Service.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 11.—Commissioner Henry C. Hall, of the Interstate Commerce Commission, presented his resignation to President Coolidge yesterday. He assured the President that he will remain at his desk until the docket of cases now before him is cleared and until the President has time to decide upon a successor. Hall is a Democrat from Colorado and a Western Democrat probably will be chosen to succeed him.

CALLS BOY AUTO THIEVES PAWNS

CLARKSBURG, W. Va., Nov. 11.—"Catspaws for older heads," commented Judge John C. Southern yesterday in imposing penitentiary sentences of three and two years respectively upon Ray E. Swiger and John Goodwin, each 18, confessed members of an auto theft ring operating here and in Western Pennsylvania.

Cars stolen were driven to Canonsburg, Pa., and sold for insignificant sums.

PITTSBURGH NO LONGER "SMOKY CITY," HE FINDS

"When I first came to Pittsburgh 10 years ago it was indeed a dirty city, but now if you are looking for dirt and smoke you must seek elsewhere. Pittsburgh has accomplished wonders," said D. L. Gaskill, national secretary of the National District Heating Association, meeting in the William Penn Hotel yesterday. At a luncheon given by the Allegheny County Steam Heating Company the speakers were T. E. Purcell and F. R. Phillips.

MERGED BRADDOCK BANK WILL BE DISSOLVED

The Braddock Trust Company having taken over the State Bank of Braddock, Judge Thomas J. Ford of Common Pleas Court has signed a preliminary order for the dissolution of the latter bank, the petition having been presented to the court by Attorney James A. Nugent.

COUNT GUISEPPE VOLPI

Reports from reliable sources in Italy have it that as a result of friction among members of Mussolini's cabinet, a complete reorganization of that body is contemplated by Il Duce. A likely change is that Count Guiseppe Volpi, the present Minister of Finance, will be appointed ambassador for Italy at Washington.

WIFE 'ROUGH,' SO MAN WANTS DIVORCE

"She cracked me in the f[illegible] I told her my salary would [illegible] mit me to get her help to [illegible] a three-room house in order," complained Clarence B. Hill, 4118 Main street, in his divorce proceedings before Judge James B. Drew in Common Pleas Court.

Not only that, Hill charged, but she threw a vase at him, and once kicked him so hard it was necessary to send for a physician. His counsel, Miss Esther L. Katten, brought out that on one occasion Mrs. Hill whacked a guest, and tried to batter down a door. Mrs. Hill, according to her husband, is a stenographer. They were married last year.

Struck with a ripe tomato, which glanced off her jaw and smashed itself against the wall is reason enough for divorce, Mrs. Eva M. Darr, of McKees Rocks, testified in suing Albert G. Darr for separation.

"I was afraid of him, for once he struck me on the nose and kicked me out of bed, bruising me until my flesh was like raw meat," Mrs. Darr, who lives at 940 Woodward avenue, McKees Rocks, testified in the proceedings heard by Judge James H. Gray.

It was alleged that Darr neglected to pay his wife's hospital and other bills. Mrs. Darr, who is 39, was married when she was 21.

Libels in divorce have been filed in Common Pleas Court as follows: Martha B. Aston against Charles H. Aston; Kathryn L. Busch against Robert H. Busch; Mathilda Price against William J. Price; Timothy F. Murphy against Mary E. Murphy.

TRY MAGNESIA FOR STOMACH TROUBLE

To Neutralize Acidity and Fermentation. Prevents Indigestion, Sour, Gassy Stomach.

People who suffer from indigestion usually have tried pepsin, charcoal, drugs and various digestive aids and got little more than slight temporary relief—sometimes not even that.

But before giving up to chronic dyspepsia, just try the effect of a little Bisurated Magnesia—not the ordinary commercial carbonate, citrate or milk, but pure Bisurated Magnesia, which you can obtain from practically any druggist in either powder or tablet form.

Take a teaspoonful of the powder or four compressed tablets with a little water after your next meal, and see what a difference this makes. It will instantly neutralize the dangerous, harmful acid in the stomach which now causes your food to ferment and sour, making gas, wind, flatulence, heartburn and the bloated or heavy, lumpy feeling that seems to follow most everything you eat. You can enjoy your meals without a fear of indigestion.

COUNTRY CLUB BUYS 120 ACRES

The Wilkinsburg Country Club is the buyer of 120 acres near the William Penn Highway in Patton township, to be used as a golf course. The property was conveyed from the Walter L. Smith estate to Harry E. Prettyman for $50,500.

The McAnulty Real Estate Company was the broker. An 18-hole golf course will be constructed. John A. Ferguson has completed plans for remodeling the two present buildings. One will be used as a club house and the other as a recreation building. Work on tennis courts and a large outdoor swimming pool will be started next spring.

The Vilsack-Kreuer Company, conducting a real estate and insurance business, has announced the change of its corporate name to the Vilsack-Kelly Company. A. J. Vilsack is president, John C. R. Kelly is vice president and general manager, and Leopold V. Vilsack is secretary and treasurer.

The United States Realty Company sold a lot 30x100 feet in Library avenue, Overbrook, to Dr. J. M. Mishkin for $1,200.

Building permit applications included:

Twenty-ninth Ward—W. M. Gartner, brick dwelling, 142 Madeline street, $16,000; E. E. Blanchard, brick dwelling, 239 Agnew street, $6,500.

Seventh Ward—E. J. Mercer, brick dwelling, 4744 Bayard street, $15,000.

Care in Use of Sugar Vital in Baby's Diet

A COMMON symptom in young infants is a tendency to constipation. Unless the mother watches the baby carefully the bowels become very costive.

There are many causes, of course, but almost every one of them relates to the feeding. Giving too much sugar is one thing.

DR. COPELAND

In making the formula for bottle feeding a certain quantity of sugar is added to the mixture. This must be regulated according to the age of the infant.

But far more common than feeding too little sugar is the very bad practice of giving too much. And under no circumstances should sweetened water be given in place of plain boiled water.

The other day a charming woman whom I know very well, wrote to ask me if it is a good practice to give a baby sweetened water every day. There is but one answer to this—No!

Sugar and candy are not for babies and young children. Lime starvation is the penalty a child pays for being fed candy. It destroys the appetite for milk and, in consequence, there is not enough lime to supply the increasing need of that important mineral. Growth will be stunted and the teeth robbed of the necessary lime. By no means feed the young child candy.

Why should you create an appetite for sweets by giving the infant sweetened water? It develops an unnatural and improper appetite.

Too much sugar is such a common cause for constipation in infants that it should be thought of at once if the symptom is met. This is true, too, of giving too much fat. It may be necessary to take away all cream or top milk. For a while it will be wise to give plain milk, with the proper proportions of the other ingredients of the mixture.

Some baby foods are bought and mixed without milk. If constipation develops after their use, it will probably be necessary to turn to milk and water mixtures.

Orange juice added to the baby's diet may overcome the constipation. This is true, too, of strained cooked tomato juice.

One of the finest things to do for the constipated infant is to add the right kind of gelatin to the feedings. A level teaspoonful to each mixture will almost always overcome the constipation.

If constipation is associated with chronic vomiting, it may be set down as due to the same cause. You need expert advice given by your doctor after a careful examination of the baby. Take no chances and, above all else, do no experimenting of your own. Babies must not be trifled with, even by a loving parent.

Answers to Health Queries

S. W. W. Q.—I have an excess of fat around the abdomen. What exercise would you advise?

A.—Bending exercise should be most helpful. Why not join a gymnasium for regular systematic exercise? Reducing in general should also bring about results. For further particulars send a self-addressed, stamped envelope and repeat your question.

Fay King, Astrologist, Tells of Scorpio Folk

By FAY KING.

THOSE born between October 23 and November 22 are under the sign of Scorpio and Mars is their ruling planet.

This sign, it is said, is allied to the powers of ocean, and we all know how powerful the ocean is. To what heights of storm it can ascend and to what beauty and calmness!

These people have great energy, great persistence and great courage, but when they lose control of their better judgment they may be very blunt, brutal and cruel.

But they are usually most affable and have great charm. They have an air of reserve and dignity that often makes those who know them best think that they do not know them very well and that they are cold and unsympathetic.

But, like the ocean, they are deep and unfathomable.

They like the good things of life, delight in social entertainment and have a faculty of inspiring confidence. But sometimes Scorpio people abuse this confidence.

They are naturally ambitious and make the most of their friends, often cultivating an enemy if that will help them.

However, no people are more dependable in performing duties entrusted to them. They make excellent executives because they like to rule, and, what is more, they have the ability.

They often gain a powerful influence over others, and when this is a good influence they can achieve happiness and success for others as well as for themselves.

They have progressive minds and a will power and energy that can forge to the top against all odds.

They delight in the beauty of their homes and are devoted to their dear ones.

MEDITATIONS of a MARRIED WOMAN

by HELEN ROWLAND

MIXED GRILL

MARRIAGE is such a heavy yoke, that many a man has to have an attractive stenographer to help him bear it.

Alas! It is so hard these days, to hear "love's old sweet song," above the roar of motor cars, the jingle of money and the jangle of jazz.

HELEN ROWLAND

If the reformers succeed in taking all the intensive kissing out of the motion pictures, the average married woman will forget everything she ever knew about love.

The average man goes to his grave wondering whether he captured the woman he married—or merely capitulated to her.

Fortunately, the only kind of kisses that can be offered as evidence in a law-suit are those that the defendant was foolish enough to put on paper.

When a man is truly in love, he can think of a hundred reasons why he should get away from the woman; but the only thing that really bothers him is the thought of how to GET her!

The costs of a divorce are not deductible from your income tax; yet to most society women, divorce is a real luxury; and to most actresses, a few divorces are a part of the "overhead."

FOR THE LOVELORN

Fast's Friend

DEAR MISS GALE:

Just a few words to "Fast." My dear, I give you my sympathy. I was once like you, but mine was over a mean misfortune. I hope yours isn't anything like mine. You are at least frank in your statements and that is why I admire you so much. I bet you are popular and the boys have a good time when they go out with you. Leave the fastness alone for a while and see if you don't fall in love with a real slow fellow. I bet my last nickel you will. All that kind of girls do.

FAST'S FRIEND.

Since your letter is addressed to one of my correspondents, I shall make no comment.

Well Chaperoned

DEAR MISS GALE:

We are two chums and attend high school, and are considered good looking. We like two boys who chum together and who are a few years our senior. This is their first year at college. We are very anxious to go out with them, but we don't know how to win them. We know some of the other pupils attending the same college. We agree with you about petting, kissing, drinking and smoking, but when out have a good, We are

WELL CHAPERONED.

Why not make friends with some of the students who know these boys, and you will be sure to meet them, too? I am glad you agree with me.

CONSTIPATED SO BADLY DIDN'T KNOW WHAT TO DO

All kinds of medicine failed—then ALL-BRAN saved him!

Read this tribute from a grateful user:

"I have been using Kellogg's ALL-BRAN now for about a year and a half. I was so badly constipated that I didn't know what to do. One day I read about Kellogg's ALL-BRAN, went to the store and bought me a package. It did me good and I am using it regularly. I had tried all kinds of medicine but they failed. Kellogg's ALL-BRAN surely saved me."

Very thankful,

Boiled Egg Sauce

Put a heaping tablespoonful of butter into a small saucepan over boiling water. When melted stir in two tablespoonfuls of flour. Stir quite smooth, add a cupful of light cream and stir until blended, then add pepper and salt and two hard boiled eggs chopped coarsely. If the sauce is too thick add a little more cream. Serve with broiled fish or with boiled mutton.

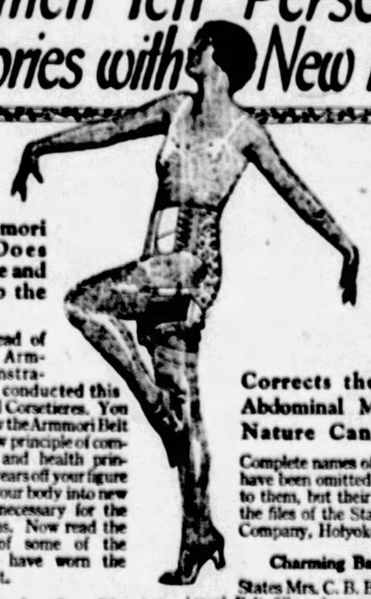
Women Tell Personal Victories with New Belt



The Armmori Really Does Add Grace and Charm to the Figure.

You have read of the special Armmori demonstrations being conducted this week by local Corsetieres. You have read how the Armmori Belt through a new principle of combining style and health principles, takes years off your figure and moulds your body into new subtle lines necessary for the latest fashions. Now read the statements of some of the women who have worn the Armmori Belt.

"Works Wonders On a Woman's Happiness"

Mrs. B. D. S. says, "I have one objection to the Armmori—it reduced my hips and abdomen, and indeed my thighs too, so that now I have to adjust my entire wardrobe. This is a trifle hard on the pocketbook . . . . but it works wonders on a woman's happiness, as well as on her husband and friends."

Instant Poise

"In my profession as a vocal artiste," says Miss Estaire K., "poise, freedom of motion and aid in holding the abdominal muscles in shape are necessary requirements for both a charming appearance and ability to sing with freedom. So wonderfully has the Armmori Belt helped me that in my opinion every woman should wear one.

Corrects the Sagging Abdominal Muscles, So Nature Can Reduce.

Complete names of these women have been omitted as a courtesy to them, but their letters are in the files of the Standard Corset Company, Holyoke, Mass.

Charming Back Lines

States Mrs. C. B. B.: "The Armmori Belt fills a long-needed requirement; it combines both comfort and style, and insures a straight line in front with a charm to the appearance of the back lines. I enjoy wearing the Armmori Belt because it stays in position without readjustment. It more than measures up in its ability to add grace and charm to the human figure."

Her Friends Enthusiastic

"I want to tell you how much I appreciate the garment you are making and what it has done for me," says Mrs. Shirley B. "After all the terrible affairs I have worn in the past several years, I am for the first time, really able to live in comfort and, at the same time, present a neat appearance. All my intimate friends are enthusiastic over it, as they have noted my greatly improved figure."

These are but a few of the comments of women who have found new buoyancy, rhythm, poise and figure reduction in the Armmori Belt. Have your favorite corsetiere at any one of the leading department stores in this city explain the Armmori to you.

In flesh coutil the Armmori Belt is $6.50 and $7.50; in rich brocade, $10. It is more economical than the cheapest garment you can buy, because it will outwear ordinary garments three or four times. The Armmori Belt is made to fit every figure—from 24 to 52. It can be adjusted as the figure and posture improve.

COOKING SCHOOL ECHOES

pie crust

I CONFESS I have always been rather proud of my pie crust. But recently I have found a way to make my pastry "shorter," flakier and more tender than ever before.

The secret is in the shortening I use. Since I changed to Crisco I wouldn't think of using any other cooking fat.

I am sure if you will try Crisco in the following recipe for plain pastry, you too will never return to your former old-fashioned shortening with its uncertain results.

Plain Pastry

2 cups flour
1½ teaspoons salt
⅔ cup Crisco
Ice water

Mix and sift flour and salt. Cut in the Crisco with a knife. Add only water enough to hold the ingredients together. Do not knead. Chill thoroughly. Divide dough in two parts and roll out thin on a slightly floured board. Line a pie pan with one-half the pastry. Pinch pastry with the fingers to make a fancy edge and prick bottom and sides with a fork. Bake in a very hot oven (460 degrees F.) 10 to 15 minutes. For a 2 crust pie, line pie pan with pastry, put in a filling, cover with top crust, trim and press edges together. Prick top to allow steam to escape. Bake in a quick oven (425 degrees F.) 10 minutes. Reduce heat to moderate oven (325 degrees F.) and bake 20 minutes.

If a less rich pastry is desired, use only ⅓ cup Crisco.

TWO DIFFERENT AND DELICIOUS PIES

Chocolate Cream Pie

2 tablespoons Crisco
6 tablespoons flour
1½ cups milk
2 squares unsweetened chocolate
¾ cup sugar
½ teaspoon salt
2 egg yolks
1 teaspoon vanilla
2 tablespoons confectioners' sugar
2 egg whites
Baked pie shell

Melt Crisco. Add flour, milk, chocolate (cut in pieces), sugar and salt, and bring slowly to the boiling point, stirring constantly until thick and smooth. Remove from the fire and add beaten egg yolks and vanilla. Pour into a baked pie shell (see Plain Pastry). Cover with a meringue made by beating the confectioners' sugar into the stiffly beaten egg whites. Bake in a moderate oven (325 degrees F.) 15 minutes or until a delicate brown.

Whipped cream may be used instead of the meringue.

Pineapple Pie

½ cup flour
1 cup sugar
½ teaspoon salt
½ cup pineapple juice
1 cup hot water
1 tablespoon Crisco
2 cups cooked or canned pineapple, cut in small pieces
2 egg yolks
3 tablespoons confectioners' sugar
3 egg whites
Baked pie shell

Mix flour, sugar and salt together. Add the pineapple juice and water and bring slowly to the boiling point, stirring constantly. Cook 15 minutes over hot water. Remove from fire, add Crisco and well drained pineapple. Pour this mixture on the beaten egg yolks and mix well. Pour the filling into a baked pie shell (see Plain Pastry). Cover with a meringue made by beating the confectioners' sugar into the stiffly beaten egg whites. Bake in a moderate oven (325 degrees F.) 15 minutes or until a delicate brown.

(All measurements level)

was used by Mrs. George O. Thurn in the Sun-Telegraph Cooking School, held this week in Memorial Hall

Crisco is the trade-mark for a superior shortening manufactured only from edible vegetable oils by The Procter & Gamble Company, Cincinnati, Ohio, U. S. A.

To test your cooking fat—taste it. Crisco's sweet flavor will astonish you.

What is the real test of good gasoline?

GASOLINE tests by experts can be made to prove most anything. They may be well authenticated—all they are claimed to be. But such tests are usually made under ideal conditions.

Do they mean anything to you? You must run your car under average conditions—over all sorts of roads; in every kind of weather; in traffic, on hills—at widely varying speeds; and with a motor that is probably below the efficiency it had when new.

What is the real gasoline test for you?

All-round performance!

And that is the kind of test Atlantic Gasoline invites. By sheer, dominating proof of unmatchable all-round performance day in and day out—year after year—in every kind of car—Atlantic Gasoline in Pennsylvania has far outdistanced every other brand of motor fuel.

Nearly two and a quarter billion gallons of gasoline have been used in this State during the past five years. More than half of it was produced at the Atlantic refineries in Philadelphia, Pittsburgh and Franklin.

Atlantic gives you everything . . . easy starting—ready acceleration—freedom from fuel knocks—economical mileage—dependable uniformity. . . . You get all these qualities—not one at the expense of another. Which means that is the biggest money's worth you can find in a motor fuel

PATRICIA PITT'S SPRIGHTLY COMMENT ON PITTSBURGH SOCIETY HAPPENINGS

Quite English, So Sewickley Society Folk Observe Armistice Day With Fifth Annual Hunt

THERE is something quite English in the way Sewickley society folk are observing Armistice Day. For this is the occasion of the fifth annual Armistice Day hunt of the Sewickley Hunt. What a picturesque sight the folk presented as they started out this morning on their mounts. The blurred colors of late autumn provided an incomparable background for the gay sport costumes of the riders, with here and there a splash of scarlet.

The hunt began at Bayne, shortly after 9:30 o'clock with three score riders following the hounds for more than three hours over the rough country leading up to Sewickley Heights and the residence of the joint masters of the hunt, the J. O. Burgwins at Paddock Farm. Sewickleyans are very proud of their notable pack of hounds, we all know. And they have a right to be, for their pack has taken first, second and third place in all the recent all-age field trials for fox hounds. And of course some of the finest horses in the country are owned by members of the Sewickley Hunt as the social world knows well from the Sewickley horse show.

And after the hunt there was a breakfast and a dance at the home of the Burgwins. Besides the members of the hunt, the guests included many families over whose lands the hunt rides.

Of course no day could pass without its debutante party, and a very lovely one is being held this afternoon at the Longue Vue Country Club, where Mrs. Charles Howard Johnston of Beechwood boulevard is presenting to society her daughter, Virginia Louise.

And since we have been speaking about British customs, I wonder if the club living room with its four huge, open fireplaces, heaped high with blazing logs, has ever suggested to you the hall of an old English manor?

Banking of cibotium ferns and bamboos and the bouquets sent as gifts to the debutante, decorate the dignified living room where the debutante is receiving with her mother, her sister, Mrs. Wilson Kennedy Ray of Washington, and sister-in-law, Mrs. Charles Howard Johnston, Jr.

The debutante is lovely in a peach colored crushed velvet frock with touches of pearl at the neck. She is wearing a large orchid velvet hat, ornamented with a rhinestone pin. And her slippers are of the same material and color as her hat! Her bouquet is of Cattelya orchids, encircled with yellow sweetheart roses. Mrs. Johnston is gowned in gold cloth, combined with gold lace. Her hat is of brown velvet and her flowers are orchids. Mrs. Ray is most attractive in wine colored velvet with which she is wearing a hat to match, and the junior Mrs. Johnston is wearing black chiffon with cream colored lace and chiffon, a large black velvet hat and a corsage of pink roses.

In the club dining room the buffet table holds yellow and orchid chrysanthemums, with which are mingled clusters of pink roses. Greens and standards of chrsyanthemums in the rich tones of fall complete the decorations throughout the clubhouse.

Mrs. Johnston has a very long list of hides, including Mrs. Albert Horne Burchfield, Mrs. Dwight Coble, Mrs. George Harwood, Mrs. Lewis Wenman Hicks, Mrs. John Parker Knable, Mrs. Carl L. Peirce, Mrs. George Monro, Mrs. Harry H. Patterson, Mrs. Harris Ewalt Wainwright, Mrs. Edwin Reed Crick, Mrs. David A. Pitcairn, Mrs. Harvey C. King, Mrs. George M. Rowland, Mrs. Edward Stieren, Mrs. James Duncan Monroe, Mrs. Clarence William Close, Mrs. James H. Horner, Mrs. James Patterson, Mrs. Charles B. Lappe and Mrs. Curtis M. Yohe.

The deb's aides are Suzanne Trimble, Mary Currier Lewis, Florence Carroll, Juliet Lea Hillman, Florence Wainwright, Margaret Brainard, Janet McKinney, all buds of this season; Elinor Munroe, who came out last year, and Elizabeth McCullough, whose debut has been postponed until next year.

The marriage of Miss Ruth Alice Munhall, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Adina C. Munhall, of Delafield Heights, and Richard Joseph Frauenheim, son of Mrs. E. J. Frauenheim, of Marlboro street, was solemnized yesterday morning at 10 o'clock in St. Paul's Cathedral by the Rev. Vincent Burke. The bride wore deep orchid velvet, the skirt draped at the side to form a short train, and her hat of velvet was trimmed with two long feathers to match. Her flowers were orchids. Miss Mary Kathryn Knapp was maid of honor, appearing in transparent woodrush velvet and lace, with a small brown velvet hat, and her shoulder bouquet was of fontanella roses, yellow orchids and lilies of the valley. William E. Epping was best man. A breakfast for the families followed the ceremony in the Munhall home. After a motor trip through Canada, Mr. and Mrs. Frauenheim will be at home in the Bellecrest apartments, Detroit.

Announcement has been made of the marriage of Miss Alice Gertrude Eyer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. I. Eyer, of Jersey Shore, Pa., and Ralph G. White, son of Mr. and Mrs. F. L. White, of Homewood, which was solemnized Tuesday at noon in the Homewood Methodist Episcopal Church by the Rev. Dr. Homer D. Whitfield. Miss Mary A. Nolan and Frank F. Troup were the attendants and Mrs. Bertha Gross King played and sang the wedding music, with James Emert, cousin of the bride, playing the trumpet. A reception and luncheon followed the ceremony in the home of the bride's uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. John Emert. Mr. and Mrs. White will be at home in Homewood after December 1. The bride is a graduate of the Lock Haven Hospital Training School for Nurses and Mr. White is a well known violinist.

And still another date is now taken during the holiday season! The J. Merrill Wrights of Beechwood boulevard will give a dinner in the Pittsburgh Golf Club on December 17 for two debutantes of the season, Mary Louise Johnson, daughter of Mrs. William Terrell Johnson, and Mary McClung, daughter of the Samuel A. McClungs.

This really is an important day for the social world! For Mrs. Woodrow Wilson arrived here this morning. Because she is still in mourning for the late President, Mrs. Wilson has declined all invitations to social functions, and in consequence has disappointed the hopes of many of our local hostesses. Several Pittsburgh matrons had made tentative plans for entertaining the distinguished visitor—but it was just not to be, that's all.

Roberta Rhodes, who will marry Reginald Q. Quaile of Salisbury, Conn., on Tuesday, is surely one of the most feted of late fall brides. In addition to the long list of entertainments we have already announced, Mrs. Edwin N. Ohl of the Hotel Schenley will entertain the members of the bridal party and out-of-town guests at a tea in the Longue Vue Country Club Sunday.

Some of the social set are in New York doing last minute shopping before the advent of fall weddings and balls. Mrs. George B. Berger of Fifth avenue, Mrs. Joseph Hansen Rose of Bennington avenue and Mrs. William Porter Witherow of Northumberland street have been at the Barclay. And Mrs. Ledlie W. Young and Lillian Rose of Sewickley are at the Weylin.

For Elizabeth Love George, debutante daughter of the William D. Georges of Sewickley, Mrs. John B. Semple of Linden place, Sewickley, gave a luncheon in the Allegheny Country Club yesterday, preceding the McBride debut party. Elizabeth, who is a Rosemary Hall girl, will be presented, you remember, at a tea in her home December 1.

Court Allegheny No. 664, Catholic Daughters of America, will hold a treasure chest dance and card party next Wednesday night in the Elks' Temple, North Side. Miss Nelle Brennan will be in charge. Mrs. Mabel McDermott is captain of the married members' team and Miss Margaret Roos, of the single members' team.

The auxiliary to Columbia Hospital will hold a Christmas sale and tea Saturday afternoon, November 19, in the home of Mrs. Edward Eiler in North Negley avenue, for the benefit of the children's ward. Fancy articles, cakes and candy will be sold. Mrs. Joseph P. Johnston is president of the auxiliary; Mrs. Octave Opsion, vice president; Mrs. Frank R. Bailey, recording secretary; Miss Sara Woods, corresponding secretary, and Miss Agnes Brown, treasurer.

* * *

Mr. and Mrs. James H. Matthews, of Northumberland street, announce the marriage of their daughter, Miss Louise Crawford Matthews, and Thomas Jefferson Miers, of Wilkes-Barre and Pittsburgh, which was solemnized Wednesday at noon by the Rev. A. M. Whitby, of Bricelyn, Minn., cousin of the bride, and the Rev. Dr. H. H. Forsyth, of the Sixth Presbyterian Church. After a short eastern trip, Mr. and Mrs. Miers will be at home in Beacon Hill avenue, Dormont.

Theta Phi Alpha national sorority, University of Pittsburgh, will hold a tea dance Monday afternoon at the Faculty Club. The proceeds will go to the Margaret Enright Memorial Fund, which was established in commemoration of Margaret Enright, a member of the sorority and a medical student at Pitt, who died before completing her course. It provides a scholarship every year for a worthy woman applicant. Miss Virginia Strain is chairman of the social committee.

Mrs. Thomas Stanley Wood, of McKee place, announces the marriage of her daughter, Miss Lucy Thomas Wood, and John L. Sedlacek, which was solemnized Tuesday in St. Paul's Cathedral parish house by the Rev. Carl Sanderbeck. Mrs. Rene J. Heintz and Robert Weeden were the attendants. A reception and dinner followed the ceremony in the Garden tea room.

M. Luella Jackson Court No. 16, Order of the Amaranth, will give a minstrel show next Thursday night in the Swissvale High School auditorium. Mrs. Evan Lloyd is musical director and Mrs. Lillie Kuhn is general chairman.

Court Chartiers No. 568, Catholic Daughters of America, is to hold a card party tomorrow afternoon in the Knights of Columbus hall, Crafton. Miss Mary Agnes Smith is chairman for the affair.

LOCAL WOMEN NAMED BY STATE FEDERATION

Mrs. John A. Fitch, of Allentown, new president of the State Federation of Pennsylvania Women, has made her appointments of department and division chairmen which will, of course, be of interest to the thousands of women in this part of the state. Five women from this district, the southwestern, have been named to places of prominence. They are Miss Gertrude MacKinney, of Butler, who will continue as chairman of the division of law observance; Mrs. John M. Phillips, of Pittsburgh, who has consented to carry on for another term her work as chairman of the American home department; Mrs. Ralph W. Johnston, also of Pittsburgh, who will again head the department of international relations; Mrs. John A. Elliot, of Beaver Falls, who is the new chairman of the department of public welfare, and Mrs. Ambrose Nevin Diehl, of Pittsburgh, chairman of the membership committee, who is also vice president-at-large of the federation.

Other appointments are: American citizenship, Mrs. Arthur W. Brevillier, Erie; applied education, Mrs. Frank Haller, State College; public instruction, Mrs. William Rose, Cambridge Springs; for the blind, Mrs. Mary Campbell; conservation, Mrs. R. W. Stadden, Stroudsburg; library extension, Miss Alice M. Eaton, Harrisburg; motion pictures, Mrs. Walter Millard, Philadelphia; fine arts, Mrs. Charles Long, Wilkes-Barre; literature, Mrs. Montrose Graham Tull, Philadelphia; music, Mrs. Grace Steadman, Mansfield; legislation, Mrs. S. Blair Luckie, Chester; problems in industry, Mrs. Samuel Semple, Titusville; press and publicity, Mrs. Adrian W. McCoy; press and publicity exhibits, Mrs. Charles S. Sloan, Philadelphia; juniors, Mrs. R. Maurice Snyder, Philadelphia. The Iris Club of Lancaster will be the hostess organization for the 1928 convention.

The president's reception given yesterday by the Woman's Club of Hazelwood furnished a pleasant break in the routine of club life. Mrs. E. E. Roney, the new president of the organization, and her staff received the guests, among whom were representatives from 15 visiting organizations. Both Mrs. Ambrose Nevin Diehl, vice president at large, and Mrs. Ralph W. Johnston, chairman of international relations in the State Federation, were present and gave splendid little talks. Miss Helen Grimes, a former president of the Congress of Clubs, was another guest. The reception was held in Odd Fellows' Hall, which had taken on a gay appearance in its floral dress. Palms and ferns were set about the big room which was lighted by many lamps, and on the tea table and the executive table there was a basket of lavender and white chrysanthemums, the club colors. Lavender tapers in silver holders also adorned the tea table where four past presidents of the club poured. Mrs. George Edwards was in charge of the reception and Mrs. Rex Hennen, Mrs. Roney's predecessor, directed the program. This consisted of readings by Mrs. George Massay and songs by Miss Margaret Conlin, with Mrs. J. J. Doyle accompanying. Mrs. E. V. Coleman was at the piano for a musical reading which Mrs. Massay gave. The year's program was outlined by Mrs. Frank Sauers. In her inaugural address Mrs. Roney stressed the importance of and need for organization and the blessing of service.

The Southern Club has changed the date for its charity ball from December 26 to December 28. It will be held, as is the custom, in the Schenley Hotel. At the meeting in the hotel yesterday afternoon Mrs. Carl E. Cotkowsky, president of the Congress of Clubs, was the speaker; Miss Mary Redmond, violinist, furnished the music, accompanied by Miss Hulda Lefridge, and Mrs. Watson P. Phillips read some of her own poems and discussed her new book, "Stella Marvin."

"Mr. Dorrit: A Study in the Psychology of a Disappointed Man," is the subject of a talk which Mrs. Dulce Fiske Fairman will give before the Dickens Fellowship Monday night in the Fort Pitt Hotel. A general discussion of "Little Dorrit" will follow.

In the interest of the building fund, the ways and means committee of the Woman's Club of Mt. Lebanon will give its fourth bridge party of the season at the home of Mrs. A. G. Smith, Cedar boulevard, Tuesday. Mrs. Raymond Kramer is chairman and her committee includes Mrs. C. L. Hickling, Mrs. Rolf Griem, Mrs. R. A. Daniell, Mrs. W. H. Walters, Mrs. George Fox, Mrs. P. Howard Sterling, Mrs. James S. Ervin, Mrs. C. Willard Heister, Mrs. Ruel Smith, Mrs. J. W. Hubbard, Mrs. Thomas Musgrave, Mrs. George W. Nicol, Mrs. Robert Woodside, Mrs. R. B. E. Stone.

Mrs. M. M. Reidenbaugh spoke on "The House of My Dreams" before the Thursday Afternoon Club of Wilkinsburg yesterday when the members gathered in the home of Mrs. H. S. Loomis, in Penn avenue. Mrs. S. R. Beall and Mrs. S. T. Sample were assistant hostesses and Mrs. E. J. McCoy was leader. The club has moved its next meeting a week ahead on account of Thanksgiving.

The Pittsburgh Alumnae Association of Pi Beta Phi will have a tea Tuesday at the Woman's City Club in honor of Dr. Mary Harris, head of the Institution for Women, Alderson, W. Va. Mrs. Stowell Stebbins, Mrs. W. H. McWhinney, Miss Emily Lane, Mrs. J. C. Downs, Mrs. Robert MacMinn and Mrs. W. V. Mahaffey will be hostesses.

Mrs. H. M. Austin, of Edgecliff drive, was hostess yesterday for the meeting of the Rosslyn Farms Woman's Club, at which a home economics program was presented under the leadership of Mrs. E. C. Hammond. In response to roll call, the members gave "helpful housekeeping hints." Mrs. E. H. Munderly gave a talk on "Efficiency in the Kitchen" and contralto solos were offered by Mrs. Floyd Wallace, the hostess accompanying. Mrs. Ralph Tennant and Mrs. S. S. Haudenshield were at the tea table during the tea hour.

"Bird Day" will be observed by the Logan Parent-Teacher Association in the school next Thursday night. A program on birds will be given by the members, reports of the state convention will be heard, and pupils from the sixth grade will entertain with dancing.

A benefit dance and card party will be given by the Woman's Club of Aspinwall in the clubhouse next Tuesday under the chairmanship of Mrs. C. V. Keil. The proceeds will go towards the mortgage fund.

BOGGS & BUHL

SAYS SHE CAN HAVE HIM

MRS. DOROTHY C. COCHRAN

"She can have him—I don't want him; I don't know him and, besides, I've got a perfectly good one at home." That was the way Dorothy Gish, American movie actress, disposed of a rumor that she was to marry Prince George Karageorgevitch, brother of the King of Jugoslavia, when she arrived in Paris today. Yes, Miss Gish admitted, Prince George met her boat at Cherbourg, but it was to see Mrs. Dorothy C. Cochran, whom, the actress said, will be the one to wed young Mr. Karageorgevitch. He isn't so young at that, giving his age as 40. His wife-to-be admits 29 and gives her occupation as a writer. She is divorced.

Young Rockefeller Digs in Flood Mire

By Universal Service

WHITE RIVER JUNCTION, Vt., Nov. 11.—Armed with a pick and shovel and dressed like a New Hampshire lumberjack, Nelson A. Rockefeller, Jr., tackled several tons of mud and gravel here yesterday in company with 900 classmates who came from Hanover, N. H., to aid in the removal of flood debris.

The youthful son of the multi-millionaire oil magnate made the trip in a Boston and Maine railroad box car and appeared to like it. He worked like a Trojan for a full 10-hour day and took a half-hour for lunch of sandwiches, doughnuts and hot coffee, served from a huge wash boiler.

NEBRASKA ELEVEN DRILLS HERE

PITT TO PLAY SYRACUSE AGAIN

SPORT COMMENT by JAMES J. LONG

WITH Carnegie Tech playing Western Reserve at Forbes Field and Duquesne University clashing with Waynesburg on the Bluff, Pittsburgh has two of the 90 odd college football games scheduled throughout the country today in observance of Armistice Day.

When it does not fall on Saturday, playing on Armistice Day is slightly off the regular schedule track, and the University of Pittsburgh among many others passes it up each year to play on the following Saturday instead.

MOST business managements figure that larger crowds and better "gates" are always certain on Saturdays than on any of the fall holidays except Thanksgiving Day.

Yet there was a time when even election day was not overlooked in this city. In fact it was one of the biggest days of the football season here because it brought together D. C. & A. C. and P. A. C., rival local professional clubs in their annual contest.

MANAGER ART ROSS expresses the opinion that opposing hockey teams in the professional league will not be in any hurry to start the "rough stuff" against his Boston Bruins this season. He has a second forward line to throw in which he thinks will be able to give any specialists in rough play a warm reception and which will be able to take care of itself under the most strenuous circumstances.

This line will have Jim Herberts at center, Harry Gordon at right wing, and Harry Connor at left wing. These three players average more than 190 pounds in their hockey togs, and also have speed and skill to back up their unusual weight.

ROSS contends that there isn't another second line in the league that will match these three in all particulars.

The Bruins can put on even a third forward line if they desire, with "Harry" Lauder at center, Dit Clapper at right wing and Norman Gaynor at left wing.

Connor, Clapper, Gaynor and Lauder have won regular places in the Boston lineup, Ross admits.

THE only surprising feature about the action of the Pittsburgh club in dropping First Baseman Vic Saier from the voluntarily retired list and making him a free agent was the fact that Saier was still on that list.

Past the average playing age and long since retired—Saier has not played since he left the Pirates in 1919—Vic was considered through, and the fact that his name had not appeared even on the voluntarily retired portion of the Pirate roster when the reservation list was published some time ago gave the impression that the former first-sacker was no longer being carried on the roll.

There are four others still on Pittsburgh's voluntarily retired list, these being First Baseman Everett Barnes, Catcher James Mattox and Outfielders Walter Mueller and Howard Lohr.

ONE of Pittsburgh's veteran football men writes to say that he concurs in the opinion expressed here yesterday that in the person of John P. Egan Pittsburgh has one of the best football officials in the country.

"Egan is letter perfect in the rules," he writes, "runs his games with common sense and rare judgment, and the best tribute that can be paid to his fairness is the fact that when his name is suggested for any particular game during a selection of officials he is promptly accepted by both sides."

Egan has established himself here as one of the best officials in the game, and it is only a question of a short time until he holds the same ranking all over the country. One demonstration of his ability will be enough to make him "solid" anywhere.

BASEBALL players, boxers and the like are not the only sport figures that sometimes start out as if they were going to have great seasons, only to go to pieces long before they have traveled the full distance. There are fine starters who are poor finishers, spring wonders in baseball and other games who eventually crack under the strain.

There is Whiskery, for instance. No sport follower has forgotten that Whiskery was the winner of the American turf classic, the Kentucky Derby, last spring. He looked good for a great season after that victory, yet he is now reported as being all in and just about "dead on his feet."

WHISKERY has been shipped back and forth, East and West, many thousands of miles this summer, and in addition to the strain of being one of the greatest travelers among the race horses in 1927, he suffered a siege of coughing sickness.

Only a short time ago he was badly beaten in the Middle West—beaten by colts that would be the easiest kind of picking for him when at the top of his form. Recently at Pimlico he was beaten by Gaffsman and Dolan by eight lengths.

Whiskery has won about $60,000 this year, and turfmen believe that he has earned his keep and a rest.

It isn't exactly the same old story of the spring baseball "phenom" and the spring pennant bidder, who start out like whirlwinds and then collapse when the strain comes. They fade because they haven't got the goods. Whiskery had the goods, but he was wrecked by too much work and travel.

You never can tell from the way they start out just how they are going to finish.

M'KEESPORT HIGH'S NEW STADIUM IS DEDICATED

Although gray clouds made the morning rather gloomy, 2,500 students and members of the faculty of the McKeesport High School paraded through McKeesport to their new stadium, which was dedicated today with colorful ceremonies. The march wound up in the new concrete stands, where city officials and members of the board of education inspected and dedicated the latest improvement of the school. The new stadium seats 5,000 persons.

SALT CITY TEAM ON STADIUM CARD

PITT athletic officials announced last night that Coach Lew Andreas' Syracuse University football team will meet the Golden Panthers in the local stadium next November. The Orange eleven will return to Pitt's schedule after an absence of four years, the last game between the two schools, which was played at Syracuse, ending in a 7 to 7 tie.

The addition of Syracuse to the Panther card is in line with the new movement at Pitt to provide outstanding attractions for local grid fans.

A strong effort is being made by the Pitt schedule committee, of which Dr. H. E. Friesell is chairman, to bring about a resumption of football relations with the University of Pennsylvania. Efforts are also being made to schedule Ohio State University, a popular natural rival once relations have been established.

Penn and Ohio State are committed to contracts which prevent their appearance in Pittsburgh in 1928, but it is hoped that both of these institutions will be regular fixtures on the Panther card after next season.

SEEK BIG TEN

The great number of Ohio State and Western Conference alumni in the Pittsburgh district will welcome an opportunity to see a Big Ten team in the Pitt Stadium on alternate years, and the huge crowds which were attracted to the Pitt-Penn games indicates that a resumption of relations with the Quakers will be welcomed.

Pitt and Pennsylvania are two of the great universities of the state, located in its two major cities. The schools are of the same relative size and makeup, their courses largely duplicate each other, their standards of admission and graduation and their requirements for athletic eligibility are identical.

For the second week in succession, Pitt will enter the game outweighed. Nebraska has one of the heaviest elevens in the country, and will have from 10 to 15 and 20 pounds to the man on Pitt.

PITT IS STRONGER

If Sutherland is able to send either of his regular quarterbacks into the game, Edwards or Fisher, the Pitt attack is sure to function as it should, which is good enough to give any team trouble.

Nebraska's offensive is said to be around Glenn Presnell, a 190-pound

Floor Pastime Family Affair In West

CENTRALIA, Ill., Nov. 11.—(AP.)—Basketball is more or less a family affair in Odin, Ill.

Two teams of brothers opened the season last night, the Five Lusch Brothers, managed by a sixth, defeating the Five Hawley Brothers, cousins of the Luschs, 21 to 19.

THROUGH the SPORT LENS by HARVEY BOYLE

IN ANNOUNCING they had signed 1928 Pirate contracts, the popular Waner brothers left out a very juicy detail—the amount they will draw down. They can't be blamed for that, of course, for a man's salary is one of his most precious secrets. The guess is that Paul will draw something around $13,000; Brother Lloyd some $7,000 or $8,000.

HARVEY BOYLE

It is wise not to make announcement of baseball salaries because it is best to "play down" the money side of baseball. Exceptions, of course, are permissible. Thus, when a magnate cuts loose with a barrel of dough to strengthen his team he usually will risk having the money side of baseball "played up" because that shows the customers how anxious he is to build up a winner.

IS THE public interested in baseball salaries? It is. The reporter who could write the exact story of what each and every Pirate received in annual pay would find many a reader, including, probably, most of the Pirates themselves. Usually the players have a fair idea of what comrades make, but they don't know exactly. And their curiosity is as boundless as is the public's about what kind of salaries are paid not only to the Pirates but to all other major league players.

THAT was a pathetic story which told of Ban Johnson's inability, owing to bad health, to receive a plaque purchased for him by the men he stood behind so nobly through many years—the American League umpires. They are among the few baseball friends he has left now. Thank goodness they didn't jump over the fence with the other sheep who decided to remove the man who, more than any other in baseball, helped develop baseball to its high estate. Johnson always stood back of his umpires and that is why the government of the American League was always sound. Johnson, the sick man, hated by many a rival, curiously was the man who, by starting a rival league, sowed the seeds for the golden harvest reaped every year in the world series. Too bad he was not strong enough to receive first hand that fine testimonial from the umpires.

NOTHING more refreshing in months in sports has happened than the splendid way in which three principals of the Caldwell case at Yale acted in a tight emergency. Caldwell, who was barred, walked away disconsolate—but quiet. Yale magnificently responded by announcing that Caldwell would not play against Princeton; and to make the

"HUSKERS" SET FOR PANTHER BATTLE

THE Cornhuskers of the University of Nebraska, one of the biggest and most powerful grid aggregations of the Mid-West, arrived here at 8:20 this morning for their intersectional battle with the Panthers of Pitt at the stadium tomorrow afternoon. After establishing headquarters at the Schenley Hotel, the giants from the Western plains spent the forenoon sightseeing and sharing in the city's Armistice Day celebration.

Coach Bearg's Big Boys reassembled at the Schenley at noon and at 3 o'clock this afternoon they invaded the stadium for a light workout. Bearg expressed himself as well satisfied with the condition of his men and predicted a hard battle.

SHADY SIDERS TO LEAVE FOR CLEVELAND

By VERNON A. SWARTSFAGER.

Shady Side Academy's squad of grid warriors will leave tonight at 5 o'clock for Cleveland, where it will combat the University School tomorrow in the local school's second Inter-State Preparatory School League battle.

Last year the University School nosed out Shady Side by a 7-to-6 score. If the Aspinwall eleven is victorious tomorrow, it will clinch the coveted trophy emblematic of the circuit's championship. Last week it defeated the Nichols School of Buffalo.

Included in the squad which will depart tonight are Capt. Hal Shekels, Crutchfield, Underwood, Hill, Walton, J. Flaherty, Hudson, Clark, Wise, Wilson, Hart, Demma, Watkins, Lewis, J. Thompson, Arrott, Arthur, McC. Miller, Wittmer, Cancilliere, Fulton, Head Coach Captain Palmer, Assistant Coach Red Davis, Manager Bill Meyers and Frank Richardson.

Irish to Use Green Jerseys Tomorrow

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Nov. 11.—(INS.)—Coach Knute K. Rockne of the "Fighting Irish" today issued "high visibility" jerseys to each member of the three teams he is taking to New York for the Army-Notre Dame classic.

The color of the new jerseys are green, with stockings to match. These will be used in place of the traditional blue that has been used for the past 40 years.

In making this change, Rockne has in view easy vilibility for his forward pass throwers and receivers, and also an aid to his ball carriers in picking out the interference at an instant's notice. Hence the Notre Dame shift to emerald.

FRIESELL ACCEPTS POST

H. E. Friesell, dean in the school of dentistry at Pitt, accepted the commissionership of the Tri-State Conference for a term of one year at a meeting of the conference heads here yesterday. He was tendered the post about a fortnight ago.

WALKER IS ORDERED TO FIGHT FLOWERS

NEW YORK, Nov. 11.—(U.P.)—Mickey Walker, middleweight champion of the world, must agree to a date to meet Tiger Flowers in a title bout within 60 days or be barred from fighting as middleweight in the 25 states affiliated with the National Boxing Commission, Tom Donohue, president of the National Boxing Association has ruled. He made the ruling after passing on the legality of the contract entered into between Walker and Flowers before the bout at Chicago in which Walker won the title.

The New York State Athletic Commission recently ruled that Walker must agree to a date for a match with George Courtney within 30 days or be barred from fighting in New York state.

SANDY CAN'T FIGHT

WITH A FINGER LIKE THIS

And that's why the return bout between Sandy Seifert, North Side heavyweight, and Emmett Rocco of Ellwood City, scheduled for Youngstown tonight, has been called off. Sandy contracted an infection in the finger in New York the other day and had it lanced upon his arrival in Pittsburgh yesterday. Dr. G. F. Berg, surgeon at St. John's Hospital, North Side, forbade him going through the Rocco match at this time. Picture shows Sandy wondering how much of the package he is holding is finger and how much is gauze and bandage and pain.

SPEAKING of SPORTS

By HARRY KECK
SUN-TELEGRAPH SPORTS EDITOR

JACK DEMPSEY made a good crack the other day at Atlantic City when he said that what the boxing game needs above all else is a dictator on the order of Commissioner Landis in baseball and Will Hayes in the movie field. He would have the commissioner decide on the referees, judges, timers and all other officials and details for important battles. He doesn't argue against state commissions, but would have one court of last resort.

I do not favor the one-man rule, but believe a commission of say three men, on the order of the old National Baseball Commission, would be about the ticket that would fill the bill, and it would be called upon to settle only such problems as could not be satisfactorily adjusted in any other manner. In the event of title disputes, its word would be accepted as final.

The National Boxing Association could perform this function itself if it could get all of the states to join, and then have international alliances; but so far it has been unable to complete such an organization.

IT'S funny how first impressions stick in our minds. For instance, the local fans can't forget the size of the Nebraska team that came here some seasons ago and defeated Pitt in a great battle at Forbes Field. Every member of the first eleven was a six-footer and it seemed that each incoming substitute was larger than the man whose place he was taking. When the squad arrived in town and was seen en masse in Fifth avenue the crowds gaped at the array of giants. The folks were on the lookout for a similar group when the Cornhuskers of 1927 arrived in the city today for tomorrow's game with the Panthers at the stadium.

THE first Nebraska team to come East played Rutgers and Penn State within five days, meeting the New Jersey team in New York on election day and then going to Penn State for a Saturday battle. They never had seen so many big men on the State College gridiron at one time before, and for a time State, with one of its best teams, including Charley Way, Pete Killinger and Joe Lightner, was very hard put to get going. As one of the State coaches later explained it to me, "We finally beat them with forward passes. We couldn't get through them, around them or under them, so we went over them." Strangely, it was on a spectacular forward pass play that Nebraska later defeated Pitt. Tom Davies, playing back on safety, with the ball deep in Nebraska's territory, tried to intercept the heave in midfield, but Swanson, one of the six-footers, plucked it out of the air above Tommy's head and sped on to the goal line unmolested.

COL. BO McMILLIN, the former Centre College star, probably will sign his new contract to return to Geneva College at Beaver Falls

by Julius Levin

DETERMINED to present the strongest front possible in the Allegheny County League race this winter, the management of the Enoch Rauh Club yesterday closed negotiations for the services of Harry (Cutsey) Levine and Meyer (Buck) Gelsky, former stars of Coffey Club. The addition of this sterling pair of independent players gives the Rauhs two independent luminaries who are well versed in the fine points of the indoor pastime. Both players have been connected with basketball for many years and their presence in the Rauh lineup is certain to make that team one of the strongest enrolled in the Allegheny County League race this winter.

HARRY LEVINE

WHEN the Rauhs take the floor for the opening game of the season they will present a lineup considerably changed from that which went through the County League race last year. Advance indications are that Bill Miller, one of the most promising guards in local basketball last winter, will be shifted to forward this year to pair up with Johnny Serbin, former star of the Duquesne University quintet. Serbin's return to the Rauh lineup is welcomed by the followers of the club, as it gives the Columbus Temple aggregation an all-around floor star who knows just what to do on the basketball court. Meyer Paris will be found at center, while Levine and Gefsky will hold down the positions at guard. This is without the least doubt the strongest lineup the Rauhs have presented in years, and unless something unforeseen happens they are sure to rank among the leaders this winter.

BUCK GEFSKY.

LEVINE, besides playing regularly for the Rauhs, will coach the Columbus Temple five. He has had considerable experience in coaching, having been connected with the Irene Kaufmann Settlement House and the Young Men's Hebrew Association in this capacity. It was Harry's original intention to retain his coaching assignment at the Y. M. H. A. this winter, but a desire to return as an active player made him change his plans.

LEVINE and Gefsky have been conspicuous factors in local and tristate independent circles ever since the game came into popular favor hereabouts. While Levine learned the fine points of the game under Coach Comfort at Fifth Avenue High, Gefsky was shining under the guidance of Coach Andy Kerr at Central High School. Following their graduations, Levine enrolled at the University of Pittsburgh, while Gefsky joined the Coffey Club, at that time the outstanding professional quintet operating in this vicinity. Levine played three years on the Panther varsity quintet and distinguished himself as a star of the first magnitude, being elected captain in his last year at school. After leaving Pitt Levine likewise joined the Coffey Club and along with Gefsky contributed much to the success of that team in local independent circles.

Dormont and Carrick Win

ALTHOUGH held to a 0-0 tie by the Allegheny High eleven yesterday afternoon, Oliver High's grid machine was awarded the Section II title and the right to meet Westinghouse for the City League championship.

Oliver and Allegheny battled long and hard for the break that would have meant victory, but it was denied to both. Oliver's record is considered to be slightly better than that of the Allegheny team, as Allegheny has been tied twice to Oliver's once.

Oliver deserved to win yesterday's game, being on the aggressive all the way, and working the ball well within Allegheny's ten-yard line on more than one occasion.

Dormont High closed a successful season yesterday with an overwhelming 22 to 6 triumph over Sewickley High on the Dormont gridiron. Dormont crashed over for touchdowns in the second and third periods, while Sewickley was able to puncture the Dormont defense in the third quarter after a sustained march.

Carrick High scored another City League victory by taking Fifth Avenue into camp by a 12 to 6 score, tallying touchdowns in the first and closing quarters.

Wild Bull To Come Back

By MURRAY LEWIS,
Universal Service Staff Correspondent.

NEW YORK, Nov. 11.—Luis Firpo is coming back once more to fill his poke with our shining gold eagles.

The erstwhile "Wild Bull of the Pampas," who, according to recent reports, has taken on enough avoirdupois about his bay window to make him eligible for the ox class, will take another fling at the manly art of collecting shekels, at which he was a great success.

Prof. Jimmy DeForest, former tutor of the crude, but hard belting Argentine financier, will again take Luis under his protecting wing. Shamus today received a special delivery letter asking if he would consent to handle him again.

The professor put the subject up to Tex Rickard, who readily consented to put Firpo on display if he cared to try his skill again.

DeForest immediately cabled Firpo, who is at present alleged to be a prosperous auto agent in Buenos Aires, to make ready to sail on the next boat and that he would be welcomed with open arms.

ARMISTICE DAY GAMES

A game between Herb Stein's Niles Professionals and the McKeesport Olympics featured the Armistice Day football schedule today. Other games were American Legion at Jeannette; Dan Burns at New Kensington; Springdale Amicis at Latrobe and Hope-Harvey at Homewood Scholastics.

Dempsey Wants Jury

TRENTON, N. J., Nov. 11.—(AP.)—Counsel for Jack Dempsey, former heavyweight champion of the world, declared in Federal Court here today that the principal reason Jack Kearns, Dempsey's former manager, instituted his suit against Dempsey in equity (trial by a judge alone) was to deprive Dempsey of the right to a trial by jury. The allegation came during argument on a motion by Arthur F. Driscoll, counsel for Dempsey, to dismiss Kearns' petition.

If the case is to go on at all, Driscoll argued, Dempsey wants it tried before a jury.

Kearns is seeking to recover one-third of $1,000,000, alleged to be due him under a contract made in August, 1925, by which Dempsey agreed to fight and appear otherwise publicly under Kearns' management.

The only excuse for the present action, Driscoll insisted, is to find out how much Dempsey earned during the life of the contract.

J. Mercer Davies, who represented Kearns, declared that the present motion has been before the court six times and has twice been decided. He said that Judge Runyon previously denied the motion and that Judge Bodine had also denied it, but without prejudice, in order that it might come up again just before trial hearing.

EAST LIBERTY Y CAGE LOOP LIFTS LID TOMORROW

The newly organized basketball league of the East Liberty Y. M. C. A., 122 Whitfield street, comprising six teams, will get into action for the first time this year tomorrow evening. The teams in the league have been designated by college names. Wash-Jeff, headed by Frank S. Deip, will meet Tech, captained by W. A. Voit; Duquesne, with Harold J. Myers as captain, will meet Pitt, headed by "Andy" Hastings; Robert J. Conner's State five will meet R. S. Myers' Geneva quintet. The games in the order given, will start at 7, 8 and 9 p. m. on the "Y" floor. The league will operate for five consecutive Saturday nights.

Among the players who will participate are Connell, Hardie, Taylor, Waugaman, Wagle, Deip, Voit, Brosie, Jauquet, Knight Keisling Sharp, Myers, Gibson, Hussey, Jacobson, Roberts, Steffey, Hastings, Friesel, Hambley, Powell, Riesmeyer, Thorne, Connor, Cooperman, Marcon, McFadden, Smith, Studt, Meyers, Abrams, Coates, Hogg, Stevens and Fred Smith.

PIRATE HOCKEY TEAM TO END DRILL SUNDAY

Manager Odie Cleghorn announced today that the training period of his Pirate hockey squad would come to an end with a single workout Sunday. It has been originally planned to work the athletes twice daily until the eve of the inaugural contest with the Detroit Cougars next Tuesday night at Duquesne Garden, but the puckmen have shown such fine form that Cleghorn decided on shortening the grind.

Hib Milks and Herb Drury are on the casualty list, but their injuries will not keep them out of the remaining workouts. Both are suffering from cuts over their eyes. Drury sustained his hurt when he dove into the net, after following up a hard drive, while Milks stopped a flying stick with his head.

Charley Langlois has recovered from an injured knee, while McCurry's sore hand has just about healed. Both are working out daily.

DONALD THREATENS FISTIC EXPOSURE

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 11.—(UP.)—California's sport fans awaited an exposure which "would tell them something about their prize fighting," threatened by Dick Donald, the "Tex Rickard of the West."

Donald, in a bitter denunciation of the California Athletic Commission last night threatened to "expose the whole show."

Donald's attempt to stage a world's championship bout between Joe Dundee, welterweight champion, and Ace Hudkins resulted in riots last week when Dundee, unable to collect a $60,000 guarantee, refused to enter the ring.

Seth Strelinger of the State Commission recommended that Donald's license as a promoter be revoked and that Dundee and his manager, Max Waxman, be indefinitely suspended.

COTHRAN, LAFAYETTE STAR, TO QUIT COLLEGE

EASTON, Pa., Nov. 11.—(INS.)—Harold Cothran, the newly-married captain of the Lafayette football eleven, is through with college. Suspended by Coach Herb McCracken for infraction of the training rules following the game with Georgetown, Cothran was suspended for the remainder of the season when he failed to report for training this week.

PITT HARRIERS AT STATE

STATE COLLEGE, Pa., Nov. 11.—As preliminaries to the Penn State-New York University football game here tomorrow, the Lion harriers will meet the University of Pittsburgh runners in a dual meet. The Lion runners are the present intercollegiate champions and hope to keep their victory slate clean. The freshman teams from the same institutions will meet in a dual run after the varsity race.

HOPPE PADS LEAD

Willie Hoppe, former 18.2 balk line billiard champion, increased his lead over Otto Reiselt, three-cushion billiard king, to 200 to 151 by winning yesterday's block of their 300-point three-cushion match at the Ellis parlors, 50-33 and 50-32. They will conclude the battle tonight.

New Mascot For Trojans

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 10.—University of Southern California's football team has a new mascot. Coach Howard Jones became football team has a new mascot. Coach Howard Jones became the father of a seven-and-one-half-pound girl last night. At the Methodist Hospital mother and child were reported doing well.

HUMBERT BEST BALL CARRIER IN BIG TEN

CHICAGO, Nov. 11.—(AP.)—Fritz Humbert, Illinois sophomore fullback, is the "five yards" demon of the Western Conference ball carriers this fall, for he has averaged that amount in 47 tries against Big Ten opponents to lead all the regulars.

Humbert's total yardage for three Conference games is 235, 16 yards better than the total for Capt. Herb Joesting in 59 smashes at the enemy. Joesting's average today is only 3.56 yards, but it places him second among the eight backs who have carried the ball in more than 40 plays in Conference games.

Joesting's signal has been called more often than that of any other Big Ten player this fall, and Shorty Almquist, the Minnesota back, who leads the Big Ten in scoring points, is second in reliability. He has lugged the ball on 53 trips, for an average of 3.21 yards each time.

The Gilbert-Oosterbaan combination, Michigan's most successful scoring combination, has, oddly, a negligible record in ball carrying. Oosterbaan has carried the ball 10 times for a gain of only six yards, while Gilbert in 19 tries has gained only eight yards. The Gilbert-Oosterbaan menace has been almost entirely an aerial one.

Excluding forward pass gains, the yardage and average of the leading ball carriers of the Big Ten, against Conference opponents only, follows:

Player and Team.	CB.	Yds.	Ave.
Humbert, Illinois	47	235	5.00
Joesting, Minnesota	59	219	[illegible]
Welch, Purdue	47	[illegible]	[illegible]
Almquist, Minnesota	53	[illegible]	3.21
Eby, Ohio	52	165	[illegible]
Lewis, Northwestern	60	[illegible]	[illegible]

Faculty Club Host to College Men

Representatives of more than 60 leading colleges and universities will be the guests of the Alumni Council of the University of Pittsburgh at a luncheon at the University Faculty Club before the Pitt-Nebraska game tomorrow.

W. C. Arther, chairman of the council, stated yesterday that alumni of every prominent school in the country will attend the luncheon, which will be purely a social affair.

Dr. John G. Bowman, chancellor of the university, who has always been actively interested in athletics, will be the principal speaker.

Boxer Floors Referee

SAN DIEGO, Nov. 11.—(AP.)—Tom Hawkins, Negro heavyweight, scored a knockdown over Referee William Lovejoy here last night in addition to getting the decision over Chuch Wiggins in a 10-round bout. The referee was struck while breaking up a clinch. The crowd counted up to five before he arose.

CHILLY SAUCE
By CHILLY DOYLE

FAILURE of the Athletics to get within striking distance of the Yankees in this year's race recalls, among other things, a conversation among members of the Pittsburgh club as the team speeded to California last spring. Joe Bush, veteran pitcher, and Donie Bush, the new pilot, had opposite views concerning the interesting situation that held in Connie Mack's team.

"THE A's ought to win the flag," Bullet Joe contended. "Cobb and Collins will be in there hustling to have a big year. I figure that Cobb will be out to have a big season in case he should decide to retire. Free from managerial worries he will be able to step on it all year."

"They don't look that good to me," mused Donie. "The Athletics may have a lot of dash at the start, but I look for them to slow down when the race gets tough."

DONIE seems to have made the right conjecture. There were times when Philadelphia showed championship stuff, but these spurts were rare and on the whole the A's did not resemble a star outfit.

THE Mackian entry finished second, but it was so far behind the Yanks the whole thing was declared "no-contest" by the fans. Moreover, the various magnates lost tremendous sums through the spurt of Babe Ruth and company. The leaders jumped so far in the lead that ere July 4 was reached it was a foregone conclusion as to the winner. Hence, the last half of the long grind held little appeal for those who like to go to the ball orchard and cheer a prospective flag winner.

THE status of the "A's" at present is enshrouded in doubt. The supporters of the club may feel that if Ty Cobb could not turn the tide in favor of the Quaker City team they have not much to be cheered about concerning the coming race. However, there is a chance that the next crop of Athletics will bring a better harvest to Mack and the Shibes. Connie has a stellar combination in some respects.

AMERICAN LEAGUE owners shudder as they visualize the next fight in the junior circuit. The Yanks will go into the race with practically the same club that sideswiped the Pirates four times in a row. The Athletics loom up as their most formidable foemen, but outside of Mack's team the makeup of the league is not encouraging.

fullback who is a ball carrier of note. He is a fast running back, equally adept at cracking a line or scooting around an end, with high knee action which makes him very difficult to drop.

The game will probably develop into a duel between Welch and Presnell, though Sutherland will not use Welch through the line as often as he did last week when Dick Booth was incapacitated. Dickie has returned to form again, and will be used to shatter the morale of the Cornhuskers early by cracking at their line, heavy though it may be.

Other Tri-State district teams, Wash-Jeff, West Virginia, Thiel, Westminster, Grove City and Allegheny are all to get into the swim tomorrow.

Wash-Jeff faces a stern foe at Lewisburg in Carl Snavely's scrappy Bucknellians. This game is liable to cause the boys to sit up and take notice when its result is known, for it is not out of the range of the sane to look for a Bucknell victory.

Geneva will be busy at Meadville with Allegheny; Thiel and Westminster have a ball game on at New Wilmington and West Virginia is to entertain "Crafty Cam" Henderson and his Davis-Elkins Scarlet Hurricane at Morgantown.

The Pitt-Nebraska game vies with the Notre Dame-Army contest for second rating to the Princeton-Yale classic tomorrow. If Pitt wins, it will give the locals a clean slate against middle western teams for the year. And it will also put the Panthers right up to the fore as title possibilities should Yale humble the Tiger.

STATE CHECKER TOURNEY OPENS HERE THURSDAY

A Pennsylvania state checker championship will be crowned at a tournament to be staged at the Home Hotel here Thursday, Friday and Saturday of next week by the Pennsylvania Checker Association. George Rudolph of Scranton is the defending champion. A minor tourney for the less skillful players also is planned. For further information regarding state tourneys wrote George R. Jones, 576 Coleton street, city.

Star Pivot Men Clash

By FRED VAN DEVENDER.
Universal Service Staff Correspondent.

CHICAGO, Nov. 11.—Brilliant football is in store for grid fans in the Middle West tomorrow.

The classics in the East, of course, will attract the national spotlight, but the Michigan-Navy, Marquette-Holy Cross and Chicago-Illinois games will still get their share of attention, tickets for all of the games being sold.

Michigan, seeking revenge for the 10-0 defeat suffered at the hands of the Middies at Annapolis last year, will be playing before a capacity crowd.

Holy Cross journeys to Milwaukee for a battle with Marquette. It is a hard game to forecast. Both teams have played brilliantly this year, but Marquette, through the close score to which she held the Army early in the season, seems to have a bit of the edge.

The Chicago-Illinois battle is one of those late season feuds which is liable to develop into anything. Chicago was defeated by the Illini last year, and according to the dope books is in for another one of those things on the coming Saturday. But Father Amos Alonzo Stagg's Maroons are used to defeats by this time, having suffered two of them in the past two weeks at the hands of Ohio State and Michigan.

The Illini, now leading the Conference race, have that to take into consideration, and will fight all the harder to retain that lead.

The game will feature the battle between two of the best centers in the country, and certainly the two best in the conference. They are Ken Rouse of Chicago and Bob Reitch of Illinois. Both men are sure tacklers, and have that faculty of always felling where the play is going.

The Michigan-Navy game will feature a battle of backfields. The Michigan line is nothing to brag about. It could not hold its own against Chicago with Rouse in the game. But the backfield, with Oosterbaan on one end makes the Michigan eleven one of the most imposing in the Middle West. There are no injuries.

There are two additional Conference games scheduled for Saturday. They are Indiana at Northwestern and Iowa at Wisconsin.

Other conference teams will engage minor opponents for the day to rest up for the heavier battles at the season's end. Minnesota tackles Drake, Purdue will play Franklin and Ohio State will meet Dennison.

as year-round athletic mentor almost any day now. Geneva wants the Bo, and the Bo likes Geneva. The Covenanters pay him a good salary and he turns out rattling good teams, teams which I suspect get more credit farther away from home than they do right around here, for the Bo is a national figure and his work is widely watched. This has been a fine campaign so far for the Bo and his charges, and the Beaver valley fans are justly proud of the fine work. In seven games the Covenanters have been undefeated and tied only once, by Bucknell, 0-0, and Bucknell defeated Penn State. Only two teams have scored on Geneva, Waynesburg and Bethany, and each has tallied only six points, so that the season record to date stands at 125 points for Geneva and 12 for its opponents. Cast your optics over this proud record: Geneva 21, Davis-Elkins 0; Geneva 6, Bucknell 0; Geneva 20, Duquesne 0; Geneva 13, Boston College 0; Geneva 12, Waynesburg 6; Geneva 46, Bethany 6; Geneva 13, Grove City 0. Games with Allegheny and Thiel remain on the schedule.

THE decision of the Yale board of control not to reinstate Bruce Caldwell, its banned star halfback, despite strong pressure from Harvard, Princeton and alumni and other sources, was a wise one. Yale would have gained nothing by restoring the player to eligibility for the Princeton game tomorrow. Caldwell hardly could be at his best in view of what has happened; he would feel deeply that he was in the lineup under a cloud and his heart would not be in the game. And, if Princeton won, it could say it defeated Yale even with an ineligible player in its lineup, although, in view of the fine spirit shown by the Jungaleers, it is unlikely they would point to this phase of the situation.

Yale proved itself bigger than its football team or any member of it or the importance of winning over a keen rival by its masterly handling of the Caldwell case.

CALDWELL

Association; the quiet, steady-eyed boy from the Rhode Island mill town really was out.

He will not play against Princeton in the bowl tomorrow. Nor ever again don that Blue sweater with the numeral "4" tacked on its back.

They didn't fool Caldwell, those powers that be in things athletic at Yale. For more than three hours and in 10,000 well-chosen words, they debated his case pro and con, but not once did the lad, waiting alone in his room in Harkness Hall for their verdict, hold out hope.

"I'm out," he said. He was. Bruce knows Yale. The statement issued to the press by Prof. Nettleton, who presided, after the meeting follows:

"The board of control of the Yale University Athletic Association deeply appreciates the generous iniative of both Princeton and Harvard in suggesting that Bruce Caldwell be permitted, if possible, to play in their coming games with Yale.

"Both Harvard and Princeton clearly and courteously recognized that under our dual agreements final responsibility for determining all questions of eligibility rest with the University concerned under the existing rules.

"Mr. Caldwell is clearly ineligible to compete in football against Princeton and Harvard, and it seems equally clear to us that no single university can change the rules themselves. After careful consideration, our board has accordingly unanimously confirmed the decision already announced. With like accord our members unite in expressing their hearty appreciation of the gracious action of Harvard and Princeton and their belief that it confirms and strengthens our mutual friendship and regard."

Somebody in that meeting—perhaps it was Capt. Bill Webster of the football team—fought long and hard for Caldwell.

Hardly had the news been announced when the odds on tomorrow's gate were cut sharply to even money. Previously the Bulldog had been favored at figures as high as eight to five.

The members of the Yale team were a grim lot when they heard the decision.

Caldwell is extremely popular here, not only as a football hero, but also as a man, and many are of the opinion that he is being made to suffer unjustly.

That apparently is not the opinion of the majority of the board of control.

"What could we do?" demanded John W. Gates, athletic director, as he left last night's meeting. "Caldwell broke the rule."

There is no question about that, but friends of the barred halfback are pointing out that Yale also broke the rule. Caldwell, however, is doing all the suffering now. It may be different when the final whistle blows tomorrow evening.

Princeton and Harvard had both pleaded for his reinstatement.

MUSHY CALLAHAN LOSES TO HOPPE ON COAST

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Nov. 11.—(AP.)—Mushy Callahan, junior-welterweight champion, returned to the ring here last night after an absence of several months, due to illness, to meet defeat at the hands of Dick Hoppe of Glendale, Cal., in a 10-round bout.

Callahan showed only flashes of his oldtime form, his most effective blows being left hooks to the midsection. With these he forced the veteran Hoppe to back up on several occasions. Hoppe set a furious pace at the start and this gave him the edge.

The bout was a non-titular affair, as both entered the ring over the junior-welterweight limit. Callahan scaled 141 pounds and Hoppe 142½.

NOTES of the BOXERS

JACK ZIVIC goes to Erie tonight to redem himself against Heavy Andrews for his defeat by Young Saylor at Motor Square last Monday night. They will battle over the 10-round route. Tug Phillips meets Joe Scinta of Buffalo in the six-round semi-final. Walter Dickerson of California, Pa., leaves K. O. Yutzy in a 10-round Armistice Night bout at Hagerstown, Md. Zivic has been staying over in Pittsburgh since his bout with Saylor.

Sandy Seifert's return bout with Emmett Rocco of Ellwood City, originally scheduled for tonight at Youngstown, and called off yesterday because of an infected finger developed by Sandy, probably will be rearranged for a date within the next two weeks. The finger should respond to treatment within a few days. It required lancing and Sandy was unable to close his fist after the operation.

Phil Goldstein, local junior-lightweight who came on from New York with Sandy, left for the metropolis again today and will train there for his third meeting with Tommy Crowley, which likely will be staged at Motor Square Garden, the scene of their two other battles, a week from next Monday. There will be no show at Motor Square Garden next Monday night, due to injuries suffered by Young Rudy and Willie Davies, who were to appear in the two feature eight-round battles.

Johnny Ryan of Boston and Erie, would like to break in here against any of our 126-pounders. He has beaten Johnny Dunn of New Kensington twice, Frankie Van of Cleveland, Jacinto Valdez, the Filipino; Tony Mandell, Tony Carney, Johnny Vacca twice, Sammy Fuller, Al Paul, Charley Pinto, Tony George and Eddie Mischler. He has a match pending in Erie with Chick Suggs.

Johnny Jadich, Philadelphia's best junior-lightweight, wants to meet the winner of the next Crowley-Goldstein bout here. Jadich holds victories over Johnny Sheppard, Eddie Anderson, Nic's Quagarelli and Billy Humphries of England, and has boxed Joe Glick and other good ones. Benny Bass, recognized as the featherweight champion, has refused several offers to meet Jadich, according to the latter's manager, Thomas F. White, of 2443 H street, Philadelphia.

Mike Harding of the South Side has Anthony Nanci of Swissvale, 114-116-pounder, ready for bouts with Andy Tomosky and others and also Young McGovern, Chambersville lightweight, prepared for battles.

Tiger Flowers, former middleweight champion, believes in keeping busy. He boxed Maxie Rosenbloom a draw in Detroit Wednesday night and tomorrow night he meets Leo Gates, the Indian, in New York.

CEDER STOPS DEMPSEY IN M'KEESPORT BATTLE

Rudy Ceder of Tarentum added another victim to his string last night, when he stopped Mike Dempsey, veteran of Jamestown, N. Y., in the sixth round of their scheduled 10-round windup at McKeesport. The end came after 2 minutes 25 seconds of fighting in the round.

Ceder's two-fisted slugging proved too much for Dempsey, who was in a bad way as early as the third round. He cut Mike's left eye in the fifth round. Two blows to the head brought the finish in the next session. Ceder weighed 149½ pounds and his opponent 147.

Johnny Dunn of New Kensington won the referee's decision over Eddie Meyers of Detroit in the eight-round semi-final; Barney Noonan knocked out his Jeannette rival, Ralph Barnes, in the third round, and Jess Hoak of McKeesport won the referee's award over Jimmy Prescott in six rounds.

An Additional Store for Men Specializing in Low Prices

OUR ANNEX is bringing to a close a most successful week, tomorrow—and every indication points to a continuance of its success. So many elements contribute toward its popularity that it is certain to become one of the favorite men's shopping places of the city. To begin with, it is conveniently situated and within easy reach of the business district. And it has for a background, the far-reaching resources, the trained organization of the main store—these are unusually effective.

Finally, it has a definite purpose—that of giving Pittsburgh men an attractive store filled with clothing and furnishings that are extremely low priced, considering their quality. This first week is proof of the fact—that only such value-giving offerings as we have featured could win such immediate popularity.

KAUFMANN'S ANNEX is well worth the time of a visit—its daily offerings are well worth your inspection and selection. Every item is seasonable and style-right.

trinity complete, Princeton came right back to suggest, politely and generously, that Caldwell play. There is an ideal situation, bringing a glow which answers the cynics that victory is always the main consideration. Better than an undefeated season is the impression of Yale and Princeton gained from the Caldwell case. This will have its effect throughout the country. Yale and Princeton are among the leaders in football ethics. Others follow. Both schools have lived up to their reputation as being thoroughbreds.

THE man who uncorked the long-buried evidence against Caldwell's eligibility, we trust, is sleeping peacefully these nights. He may be a distant relative of the man who amuses himself telling small children that Kris Kingle is a myth. Still, consciences can be made elastic. The human is a great fellow to find excuses for himself.

Thus, the boy who "turned in" his friend, who was banished from baseball forever, probably has justified himself. Yet, of a night when the moon is full and when the stars hang majestically in the canopy over earth there may come to the boy who turned in a friend a passing thought as to what the banished player is thinking about. Happily, the banished player in question was such a good, if stupid, kid that he likely now forgives the pal who turned him in to ruin what might have been a glorious baseball career.

WESTERN RESERVE, of Cleveland, comes here to play Carnegie Tech. Cleveland, now, from the standpoint of population, larger than Pittsburgh, does not rate with Pittsburgh in a football way, at least. Cleveland must turn to Columbus, O., to get the big stuff in collegiate football, devoting their support to Ohio State. The Pittsburgh district with three major teams, Pitt, Carnegie and Wash-Jeff, can show Cleveland something in the way of football.

THE story that Tex Rickard is the manager of Jack Dempsey is not a new one. Some of the wise boys had this story sometime after Kearns and Dempsey split. But it is not believed by those on the inner circle. Rickard might like the manager's "cut" of Dempsey, but since this would jeopardize his larger share coming from promoting and since, too, Rickard is considered intelligent, it is not probable that he would be a part of a secret compact.

GENE TUNNEY threatens to box oftener than Rickard would desire next year. There is a group of men in Philadelphia who will pay Tunney $700,000 to meet George Godfrey in a summer bout in the Quaker City. Maybe Tunney has that in mind in his reported attempt to kick over the traces. If Tunney is wise he will stay with Rickard. Tex, alone, is capable of handling the big money affairs. His name carries the show.

Consider what happened in Los Angeles when Joe Dundee had such little confidence in the promoter that he would not enter the ring until after he had been paid his guarantee. With Rickard promoting that bout Dundee would have gone in assured of his guarantee.

A BOXING critic of another city suggests boxing would be helped if managers of boxers would be eliminated. This may be true, but how to eliminate managers is another problem. Boxers themselves would cross up the men trying to release them from the grip of grasping managers. They would make secret agreements with managers, giving "cuts" without the authorities knowing anything about it.

There is no question that a great many managers are nothing but parasites living off hard-working boxers, but how to eliminate these parasites is a question that would test the wisdom of Solomon.

BALKITE HOUR

Without the uncertainty of untried apparatus—And without any sacrifice in quality of reception

There are two ways you can own an AC receiver. One is to discard your present set and buy a new and untried receiver, using a new and untried type of tube, at a sacrifice of quality of reception.

The other way is to add Balkite Electric "AB" to your present set. Balkite Electric "AB" contains no batteries and supplies radio power from the light socket. It makes any standard set an electric receiver.

This method makes possible the use of standard type tubes, which give by far the clearest and truest reproduction. There is no difficulty in controlling volume. No noise, no AC hum. No crackling, no booming, no blasting. Instead the same high standard of reception to which you are accustomed.

By all means go to AC reception. Its convenience is the greatest radio improvement you could buy. But let your AC receiver be a standard radio set equipped with Balkite Electric "AB."

Two models, $64.50 and $74.50. Ask your dealer. Fansteel Products Company, Inc., North Chicago, Ill.

Concentration Dangerous, Especially in Government.

By B. C. FORBES

SHOULD state affairs, including state politics, play second fiddle to federal?

New York voters emphatically rejected a proposal that the governor's term be extended from two to four years so that he would be chosen at presidential elections.

This stand is wise, for many reasons.

THE tendency is to create at Washington a stupendous bureaucracy, to pile and pile additional responsibilities upon the federal government, to transfer more and more state and local obligations to Washington.

Thus is it easy to shirk local public duties.

ONE reason the United States has prospered is that it has been freer than Old World nations from bureaucratic government, with its attendant costly and deadening restrictions upon individual initiative and enterprise. The best government is the one that imposes the least government. Government degenerates when it becomes clogged, when it usurps an impossible number of unnecessary duties, when centralization is overdone, and when local communities cease to feel a keen, direct personal interest in molding public affairs.

The United States is confronted with such danger.

ADMITTEDLY, the whole trend is toward bigness, towards centralization of power. We see it throughout the whole world of economics. Consolidation and centralization of power are under way in banking, in railroading, in merchandising, in the public utility field, in publishing, in such industries as steel, textile manufacturing, motor making, oil, office appliances, radio, telephone, baking, shipping, motion pictures, mining, etc.

THIS trend is inevitable in the economic world.

But should it not be discouraged rather than encouraged in the field of government?

ALREADY one hears, when traveling about this country, complaints that this economic trend, this creation of gigantic enterprises, is having an unfortunate influence upon local affairs and especially upon local public affairs. You are told, among other things, "Our principal plants here are branches of colossal organizations having other headquarters in the East." Also, "We have lots of chain stores, but their local managers get their orders from headquarters and take little interest in local affairs." In some communities the complaint is that branch banks are dominated by their big-city owners unacquainted with local conditions and needs.

Always the charge is that absentee ownership does not make for local civic spirit, but robs the local representatives of real, independent power.

NOW if we continue to shift public and political responsibilities from home communities and home states to Washington the inevitable consequence will be the diminution of local interest and sense of personal obligation. The "Let George do it" attitude will become more widespread and more pronounced.

And the farther you remove the seat of political power, and the more you concentrate it at the national capital, the graver the danger that local interest will die out, and the inescapable consequences of such a development are not pleasant to contemplate.

INSTEAD of public affairs being wrestled with by the public themselves, instead of succeeding in getting more and more of the people to become active in public affairs, the drift will be towards the creation and multiplication of a separate class of cut-and-out politicians, men bent on earning their livelihood as professional politicians. Political office holders we must have of course. But it will not be in harmony with the genesis and past history of this democracy if the great mass of the population lose all sense of public and political obligation and supinely, lazily, indifferently shift the burden to a separate class of professional politicians.

TUESDAY'S action by the voters of New York state, therefore, is gratifying.

Pittsburgh, Pa.

NOTICE TO HOLDERS OF NEW YORK SHIPBUILDING CORPORATION, FIRST MORTGAGE THIRTY-YEAR FIVE PER CENT SINKING FUND GOLD BONDS, DATED NOVEMBER 1, 1916, DUE NOVEMBER 1, 1946.

Pursuant to Section 1 of Article Four of the Mortgage of the New York Shipbuilding Corporation to The Union Trust Company of Pittsburgh, Trustee, dated November 1, 1916, securing its First Mortgage Thirty-year Five Per Cent Sinking Fund Gold Bonds, the undersigned Trustee hereby gives notice that the bonds of such issue will be purchased by the Trustee for the Sinking Fund provided in said mortgage, to an amount sufficient to exhaust One Hundred Eighty-seven Thousand Eight Hundred Sixteen and Sixty-Hundredths ($187,816.60) Dollars, being the moneys now held by it in such Sinking Fund. The Trustee hereby invites from the bondholders offers for the sale to it on November 21, 1927, of such bonds. As provided in said Mortgage, such offers shall in each case be for all or any part of the bonds so offered. The lowest offers to the aggregate amount not exceeding an amount sufficient as nearly as may be to exhaust such moneys now held in the Sinking Fund will be accepted, provided that the price or prices accepted will in no event exceed, in addition to accrued interest, one hundred two and one-half per centum (102½%).

As soon as may be, on or after November 14th, 1927, the undersigned Trustee will notify bondholders whose offers are accepted, so that delivery of the bonds covered by such acceptances may be made to the Trustee at its office in Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania, on November 21st, 1927.

All offers must be in writing, be enclosed in sealed envelopes, state the number or numbers of the bonds offered, and name the price or prices at which the same are offered.

All offers must be received at the office of the Trustee on or before noon of November 14th, 1927.

THE UNION TRUST COMPANY OF PITTSBURGH, TRUSTEE.

STEEL PRICES ADVANCED

NEW YORK, Nov. 11.—(AP.)—Higher prices for steel announced by Carnegie Steel Company and Illinois Steel Company, subsidiaries of the United States Steel Corporation, aroused keen interest in the trade today.

An advance of $1 a ton in prices of bars, shapes and plates by Carnegie Steel follows an increase of about $2 a ton two months ago, which is regarded as a reflection of a better feeling in the trade.

Leading independent steel companies are expected to meet the advance. Chicago dispatches to the financial district said Inland Steel had done so, after Illinois Steel increased prices $1 a ton.

FINANCIAL NEWS AND VIEWS

GMO Dips and Recovers.

With most of the stock exchanges and commodity markets of the country closed, financial attention today was confined entirely to the New York Stock Exchange which, with the curb market, was in operation as usual. Under the circumstances the opening was rather flat with prices showing only moderate changes with the exception of General Motors which opened up more than a point in response to the extra dividend declared by the directors late yesterday afternoon. A nervous feeling permeated the market despite the increase in Steel Corporation's unfilled orders and the bullish news on Motors' dividend. General Motors opened with a block of 3,000 shares on a spread from 130 to 130½, comparing with last night's close at 128¾. A fair volume of selling followed immediately and the stock broke back to a small fraction under the previous close where it firmed up and hovered slightly above the 129-level, where it appeared to be consolidating its position in anticipation of a more decisive move. In the last hour Motors developed noticeable strength and moved up sharply to a level well above the opening. Du Pont shares followed the course of General Motors movement.

—I—

New York Central Net Lower.

New York Central Railroad Company, including Boston and Albany Railroad and Ohio Central Lines reports for September quarter, net income was $14,546,421 after charges, as against $17,685,190 in the September, 1926, quarter. Nine months net income amounted to $40,060,722, against $42,921,501 in the same period in 1926.

The New York Central September quarter net income is equal to $1.79 a share against $4.61 a share in the same quarter in 1926. For nine months the net equalled $10.45 a share against $11.17 a share in 1926.

—I—

Lake Erie Net Income Less.

Pittsburgh and Lake Erie Railroad for September quarter reports, net income was $2,113,013 as against $2,243,943 in the September, 1926, quarter. For nine months, net income amounted to $5,322,646 against $5,709,658 last year.

—I—

Big Four Shows Decrease.

The Cleveland, Cincinnati, Chicago and St. Louis Railroad (Big Four), for quarter ended September 30, net income was $2,765,504 after charges as compared with $3,574,844 in the September, 1926, quarter. Nine months net income totaled $6,496,586 against $8,162,955 last year.

—I—

Reserve Ratios Lower.

New York Federal Reserve Bank ratio was 78.3 per cent on November 9, against 81.2 per cent November 2 and 81.6 per cent last year. Ratio for the entire system was 73.1 per cent November 9, against 74.4 per cent a week ago and 74.9 per cent a year ago.

—I—

New Plant for Pittsburgh Plate.

Officials of the Pittsburgh Plate Glass Company have virtually completed plans for erection of the first polished plate glass plant in the West. The new unit is to be built at Los Angeles and will involve an expenditure of more than $2,000,000.

—I—

Corn Crop Condition 75.2 Per Cent.

The crop reporting board of the United States Department of Agriculture estimates the condition of the corn crop at 75.2 per cent against 72.6 per cent in 1926, and 8.7 per cent the 10-year average. Production is placed at 2,753,249,000 bushels in 1927, against 2,646,853,000 in 1926. Yield per acre is estimated at 27.2 bushels against 26.4 bushels in 1926. Corn remaining on farms in the United States on November 1, 1927, is estimated at 4.2 per cent of the crop of 1926, or about 111,044,000 bushels, against 183,011,000 bushels on November 1, 1926, and 120,967,000 bushels the average stocks of corn on November 1 for the last five years.

—I—

Pressed Steel Car Split-Up.

Rearrangement of the capital structure of the Pressed Steel Car Company calls for a three-for-one split up of the common stock and a change in the par value from $100 to no par, according to reports in financial circles. The plans call for a 25 per cent reduction of the outstanding preferred stock ($12,500,000 now issued) and the redemption of $4,000,000 of the 5 per cent convertible bonds, with a new issue of 15-year convertible debentures. Preferred stockholders will be offered the right to exchange 25 per cent of their holdings for new 15-year debentures on an even basis with a bonus of three-tenths of one share of new common. The new debentures will be convertible into common at 40. The new plan embraces the ideas of George J. Whelan, who, through his own holdings and those of his friends, controls 90,000 of the 125,712 shares of common now outstanding. Stockholders meeting will be called for action on the matter within a few days.

—I—

First Foreign Security Listed.

The first foreign security listed on the New York Stock Exchange is the $25,000,000 note issue of the Deutschbank of Berlin, in the form of American certificates.

—I—

Loans Increase $12,824,000.

Loans to brokers by New York Federal Reserve member banks totaled $3,384,529,000 on November 9 as against $3,371,705,000 on November 2, the Federal Reserve Board announced. The peak for 1927 was $3,474,197,000 made on October 12 and the low was $2,719,424,000 made on May 16. The high for 1926 was $3,141,125,000 made June 26 and the low $2,489,885,000 made May 19.

—I—

Germany Doing Better.

D. Gleich, head of the firm of D. Gleich & Co., has returned from an extensive business trip in Germany, France, Poland and other countries. Mr. Gleich found conditions in France good and Poland improving. Money is scarce in Germany, he said, but stock market and security conditions there are on a sounder basis now that the shake-out has occurred and securities have passed from weak to strong hands.

—I—

Street Salutes Fallen Heros.

At exactly 11 o'clock this morning the buzz and hum of the tickers and telegraph instruments in the financial district was completely silenced and the street bowed its head for two minutes as a mark of respect to the boys who fell on the European battle fields nine years ago.

—I—

Premium for Burbank Crude.

The Texas Company is reported to have bought 100,000 barrels of Burbank crude oil from Skelly Oil at a price 25 cents a barrel above the regular posted figure. This transaction indicates the tight situation in the Mid-Continent crude market and partially confirms statements heard recently that an advance in the price of crude there is likely to be made before long. Pessimists on the oil situation have taken the stand that a reduction in the price is more to be expected than an advance. They base their opinion on the Seminole condition, but, while there are said to be 15,000,000 barrels of oil in storage there, it is owned mainly by the larger companies which can afford to wait for better markets. The well financed position of Seminole crude, it is thought, will have an important influence on the price situation once the production in that area declines to or below current requirements.

Late in the day the Texas Company was reported to have denied purchasing the 100,000 barrels of Burbank crude, but, as the oils had made no response to the earlier report, there was no reflection of the denial in the prices of the stocks.

—I—

Paramount Famous Lasky.

Paramount Famous Lasky failed to make much headway despite reports that the company is working out plans for retiring the $7,743,000 of outstanding 8 per cent preferred stock. Present money market conditions are favorable to its replacement by a lower rate note issue which, of course, would materially strengthen the position of the common. The preferred is callable at $107.32. It is a convertible issue but, its elimination by means of a note issue would obviate dilution of the common which would result from exercise of the conversion privilege. The stock was steady today, but failed to better the high of 111⅝ established yesterday.

—I—

Speaks at Ford City.

Norman R. Ward, manager of the bond department of the Peoples Savings and Trust Company of Pittsburgh, addressed the Kiwanis Club at Ford City, Pa., Wednesday, on the subject of "Investments." He recently returned from a Western trip and reports that while there is a conservative feeling there, basic conditions are sound and banks are in strong position to finance legitimate requirements.

—I—

Nevada's Earnings Down Slightly.

The Nevada Consolidated Copper Company reports for September quarter net income equal to 32 cents a share, against 41 cents in previous quarter and 39 cents in September quarter in 1926. For nine months the net income equaled 99 cents a share, against $1.10 a share in 1926. This is after depreciation but before depletion.

—I—

Western Union Canadian Lines.

Negotiations are reported under way for sale of the Western Union Company's lines in Canadian maritime provinces to the Canadian National Telegraph at a price yet to be determined.

—I—

Loss for Transcontinental Oil.

Transcontinental Oil Company showed net loss of $221,037 for the quarter ended September 30 as against net loss of $75,693 in the preceding quarter and net profit of $1,457,756 in the third quarter of 1926. The figures for the second and third quarter of 1926. The figures for the second and third quarter this year are after interest, depreciation, depletion, etc., and those for the third quarter of 1926 are after the same charges and federal taxes net loss for the nine months of 1927 amounted to $82,850 after interest, depreciation and depletion, but before federal taxes, against profit of $1,846,632 in the corresponding period of 1926.

—I—

New Certificates Oversubscribed.

The Treasury Department announced that about $1,100,000,000 applications for the $490,000,000 new Treasury certificates were received.

—I—

October Motor Output Down.

Production of motor vehicles in October is calculated at 210,485 cars and trucks by the Automobile Chamber of Commerce, against 265,579 in September and 227,571 in October, 1926. Output for 10 months, not including Ford production, was 2,511,469 against 2,576,400 in the same period last year, a gain of 3 per cent. Including the Ford output the total for 10 months is estimated at 2,773,784 against 3,092,580 a year ago. A decline of more than 13 per cent.

—I—

Bars, Plates Shapes Advanced.

Carnegie Steel Company, United States Steel subsidiary, has advanced the price of bars, plates and shapes $1 a ton to 1.85 and 1.90 cents a pound. A similar advance was reported from Chicago. It was estimated, from the Corporation's tonnage report showing a gain of 192,000 tons in unfilled orders as of October 31, that orders approximating 1,175,000 tons had been received last month. This was the largest for any one month since last spring. U. S. Steel plants are now operating at close to 63 per cent as against 63 a week ago and 64 a month ago. Plant operations usually increase at this time of year, however, and continue higher until spring.

—I—

Frick Coke Operating Low.

H. C. Frick Coke Company has blown out 169 ovens at two plants reducing active operations in the Connellsville region to 3 out of a total of 132 ovens, the lowest level in its history.

—I—

Vacuum Oil Spurts.

Vacuum Oil on the Curb developed pronounced strength today following several days of steady upward movement. Following its opening at 136½ the stock added several points to the price and held most of the advance. Vacuum's position during the oil depression this year has been particularly favorable by reason of the fact that it markets highly refined oils on which the prices seldom change. Since the beginning of this year it has had the advantage of low crude prices while at the same time the prices of its own products have been maintained at the levels prevailing before the crude market suffered its break.

—I—

Window Glass Orders.

Window glass manufacturers report scattered orders for their products which make a good volume of business. In some instances the producers find it difficult to ship the glass as promptly as the jobbers demand. Stocks in the manufacturers' warehouses are being reduced to some extent, as demand exceeds present output. During the past week the market in some places has become slightly firmer the "National Glass Budget" says. Production and demand for wired and rough rolled glass are reported normal for this season of the year. Jobbers continue to buy close to their requirements. With the plate glass manufacturers conditions are practically unchanged.

—I—

Mail Order Stocks Up.

The mail order stocks moved up impressively with Sears Roebuck leading the advance. Strength in these issues reflects the substantial increase in bank clearings in the agricultural districts, the areas from which these companies receive their heaviest patronage. October sales made a favorable showing and with the corn crop shaping up so well after its bad start, it is expected the last two months of the year will show record sales for both concerns.

—I—

Can Makes New High.

Further upward progress in American Can carried that issue into new high ground. The street expects the company to earn $4 a share this year and estimates are that the 1928 earnings may be double that figure. It was pointed out that no further write-offs of any consequence for plant expansion will be made for some time. This will probably result in favorable dividend action. Corn Products, another highly regarded specialty, also reached new high grounds on reports that an extra dividend of 75 cents a share is likely to be declared.

—I—

More P. R. R. Stockholders.

Stockholders of the Pennsylvania Railroad numbered 142,277 at the end of October, an increase of 2,686 over October, 1926.

DIVIDEND.

Stock Exchange Here Closed for Armistice Day

The Pittsburgh Stock Exchange and all local banks are closed today in observance of Armistice Day, a legal holiday in this state. The New York Stock Exchange, the Curb Exchange and other markets in the metropolis are in operation as usual. The Chicago Board of Trade is closed also.

STOCKS TURN UP, SOME HITTING PEAKS

NEW YORK, Nov. 11.—(AP.)—Early hesitancy in today's stock market was followed by a period of strength in which several of the merchandising and tobacco issues reached new high ground. Wall street seemingly paid little attention to the extra dividend of $2.50 on General Motors, which was generally expected, and the increase of nearly $12,000,000 in brokers' loans, but it found bullish encouragement in the announcement of higher steel prices by subsidiaries of the United States Steel Corporation.

Steadily expanding earnings of the chain store and mail order companies, coupled with expectations of record-breaking holiday trade, stimulated the buying of such issues as May Department Stores, Montgomery-Ward, Sears-Roebuck, Munsingwear and Bloomingdale Brothers, all of which touched new peak prices for the year, or longer.

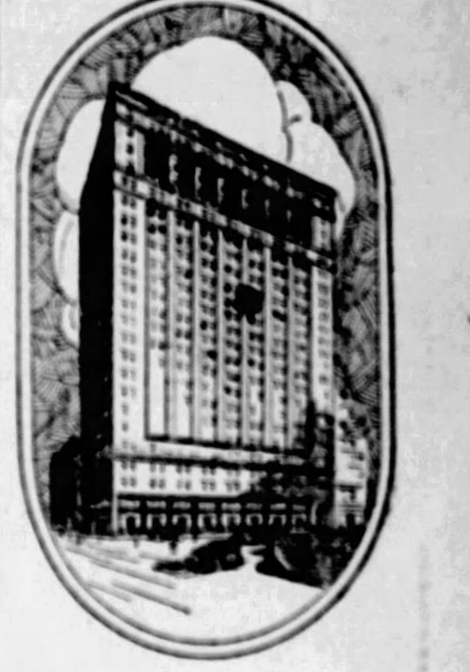
Warren Brothers, which sold as low as 65 earlier in the year, continued its sensational gain by touching a new high level at 176½. Woolworth advanced 4 points to within a small fraction of its record high of 192. American Can common and preferred and International Paper preferred also reached new high ground.

Southern Railway attained a new top for all time at 139½ and Canadian Pacific moved up 2 points, but the other rails were a bit sluggish. Uncertainty regarding the extent of the flood damage sustained by the Boston and Albany, one of New York Central's subsidiaries, has had a temporarily depressing effect on that issue.

The closing was strong. Prices rose further as confidence in the long side of the market was re-established for the time being at least, by more cheerful trade reports. International Harvester and Dupont improved 8 and Woolworth 5 points. American Can crossed 70 and Southern Railway 140, both new tops for the year. Total sales approximated 1,800,000 shares.

Detroit Employment Increases.

Industrial employment here last week totaled 194,145, an increase of 1,732 over the preceding week. This compares with 212,084 a year ago.



The service will please you, too

PLENTY of elevators, roomy and high-speed, the finest systems of lighting, heating and ventilation, careful cleaning, a resident manager on the alert for improvements and additions to service—all this enters into the satisfaction of tenants here. First and foremost, however, is the fact that this building is so advantageously located—yet the rates are reasonable.

COTTON MARKET

NEW YORK, Nov. 11.—The cotton market opened firm today at an advance of 13 to 21 points on covering, combined with trade and commission-house buying, probably based on relatively steady cables and prospects for a cold wave in the Southwest. January sold up to 19.62c and May to 19.80c, but realizing and Southern selling checked the advance and caused reactions of 10 or 12 points from the best in early trading. Business was less active, but a fair trade-demand was reported on the setback and there were reports from the South that holders of spot cotton were showing little disposition to sell at the decline.

Private cables reported that Bombay buying and trade-calling in Liverpool had been supplied by liquidation, and that buyers of cotton cloths in Manchester were disinclined to operate freely, owing to expectations of lower prices.

After easing off to 19.48c for January, or within 2 points of yesterday's closing quotations, the market steadied up on renewed covering by recent sellers and continued trade-buying. Offerings were comparatively light. The rally extended to 19.71c for January, active months showing net advances of about 27 to 30 points at midday.

SUGAR MARKET.

NEW YORK, Nov. 11.—(AP.)—The raw sugar market was quieter early today. No sales were reported and prices were unchanged at 4.34c for Cubans, duty paid.

A little liquidation and Cuban selling, probably prompted by the disappointing London market, were responsible for the slight setback in raw sugar futures, prices at midday being about 1 point net lower. Trading was light, with operators inclined to limit operations pending developments abroad, where a conference has been called for Monday between the Cuban representatives and European beet sugar producers to consider the plan of world-wide sugar restriction. The government report placing the domestic beet sugar production to November 1 at 815,172 long tons, against their [illegible] had no effect, as recent private estimates had been around [illegible] long tons.

The refined sugar market was unsettled, with prices ranging from 5.60c to 5.70c for fine granulated, with only moderate inquiry reported.

FRISBY CARRIES FIGHT STRAIGHT TO THE PEOPLE

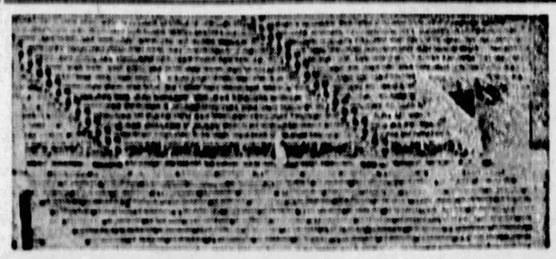

Photo shows mass meeting addressed by Mister Frisby in his campaign to keep slot machines out of the public schools. Note Mrs. Frisby in the foreground.

By MISTER FRISBY
Our Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Forty thousand people remained at home last night instead of attending the Frisby-For-Vice-President mass meeting, which was held in the Coliseum as predicted exclusively in these columns.

This was doubtless the result of a systematic and nefarious whispering campaign carried on by Frisby's enemies, who spread the word that Frisby's speech would be broadcast by radio.

"I am not controlled by the radio trust," announced Frisby shortly before reading his 27,000-word address.

"If the radio capitalists want to broadcast my speeches and pay me a small fee to cover incidental expenses, well and good," declared Frisby, with characteristic vigor. "But when I found no microphone was installed I realized the extent of the insidious, underhanded, vitriolic and biased efforts that are being made to muzzle me."

When asked by his enemies—tools of the radio trust—if he had not agreed to pay $27.50 installation charges, Frisby issued a brief statement which said:

"It is only a verbal contract and not worth the paper it is written upon."

The woman who has dislocated her jaw six times this year while yawning is a pathetic case.

Her husband ought to quit talking his golf score.

BUGS BAER Says

THEY discovered a mummy in Egypt who is so old that he makes Tutt look like a spotted child.

Tutt had the mummy business to himself for a couple of years, but we knew that a guy who only dates back to 3000 B. C. was a flash in the pan.

This newest oldest scarab has been established since 4000 B. C. His name is too difficult to be important, but he lived in that highly cultured age when a footprint was handwriting.

ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER

Some of his name is Rameses-Abdad-Dabba-Smith. Which is the reason why correspondence was scarce in a period when a guy had to get on a bicycle to write a postcard.

He had a friend named Seostris-Pharoah-Brop, who could vote if age meant anything.

Seostris was keeper of the royal scarabs, which are ornaments now, but must have been very annoying then.

There is no doubt that these two mummies had a speaking acquaintance, as they were both in the same tomb. And if there is anything that annoys a Rameses it is to wake up and find a stranger in the room.

Seostris was discovered thirty-seven feet underground. Which is a strategetical spot to grab a subway train or a drink in America. But even scientists seem puzzled when they meet a mummy who has fallen that low.

The archaeologists who spaded up Rammie and Pharie are working for the University of Pennsylvania and were probably sent all the way to Egypt because they made too much dirt at home.

An archaeologist is a professor who learned enough as a student to qualify him to handle a shovel. Rather than have him spoil the home town suburbs the neighbors club together and get up a purse to send him to Egypt, where he gets famous as a learned Sanskrit exponent of the Canaanite system of well digging.

We hope that these two fresh mummies make a quorum and prove the theory that there were mummies in days of old.

They only require another mummy to make a committee and it's about time that they elected officers and let us know where they stood.

And as for the scarabs, it's time to allow history to retain its mildewed citizens and the dead past its insects.

Armistice Day Reminder Of Debt to Our Heroes

In Pittsburgh as elsewhere Armistice Day is a reminder of a debt we owe to the former soldier boys who today celebrate the official act ending the World War. It is a debt that never will be paid because it cannot be. Sweat and blood cannot be translated into any equivalent. Appreciation of that fact cannot be expressed in words which adequately measure the gratitude due the millions of young men who answered the call of their country.

Yet we believe they understand us and can read in our hearts the answer that is there. It is the heart-words that spell the welcome we extend to them as they assemble here today for their annual recognition of the termination of the great struggle.

Why Magruder Disciplining Is a Challenge to Nation

Telling his fellow-[illegible]trymen how, as he honestly believes, they can strengthen [illegible]R navy and save some of THEIR money, has cost Rear Admiral Thomas P. Magruder his command of the League Island Navy Yard at Philadelphia and put him on waiting orders for an indefinite period.

Overorganization afloat and ashore, unnecessary paper work, unnecessary yards, stations and hospitals for peace, poor distribution in rank which is responsible for too many admirals, and too few enlisted men, were the five major criticisms of the Navy as it is administered today to which Admiral Magruder addressed his argument in what he has written and said upon the subject of "The Navy and Economy."

Because Admiral Magruder had the gumption to put his views in language simple enough for the plain people to understand, and the grit to stand by what he wrote and said for publication, he finds himself the victim today of a piece of petty tyranny. The treatment he has received is an injustice to him, an injury to all his comrades with the colors afield and afloat. It is a defiance of the whole American theory of government and, therefore, a challenge to the household of the nation.

It is not at all surprising that the rule or ruin ring of bureaucrats, who have altogether too much to do with the running of the Navy Department today, should have jumped at the chance to humiliate Admiral Magruder by relieving him of his command and putting him on waiting orders. They have thereby served a sinister and two-fold purpose: They have not only "disciplined" a fearless and conscientious critic of waste and inefficiency but they have also made him a warning to all his comrades with the colors on land and sea and in the air. Notice is thereby served that from henceforth honesty is not the best policy, and silence is the only safe policy, for those officers of the Army and Navy who refuse to stultify themselves by commending what ought to be criticized in the national defense system of their country.

What is surprising and most unfortunate about the disciplining of Admiral Magruder is that our President should have allowed the bureaucracy that grips the Navy Department to make him believe that the despotic action, of which the admiral has been made the victim, is even a help, much less essential to the maintenance of the highest morale in the American Army and Navy.

Unconditional Americans supposed that the sort of petty tyranny to which Admiral Magruder has been subjected was a thing of the past. It belonged to Europe at the time when kings governed by "divine right," when monarchy was absolute and any fidelity to the people was disloyalty to the crown. But that sort of disciplining never belonged in America, where public officials, including the President himself, are merely servants of the people.

Here in "the land of the free and the home of the brave" the Soldier is also the Citizen. Here the people are entitled to know about THEIR Army and THEIR Navy, and how THEIR fellow citizens are being treated in the Army and Navy, and how effectively THEIR public servants are conducting the naval and military preparations for the defense of THEIR nation.

President Coolidge does not govern by "divine right." He governs through the selection of the people and under the provisions of the people's Constitution.

The administration at Washington is not absolute. Its acts are subject to modification by the people's Congress and to revision by the people's Supreme Court.

This country of ours is a republic and should be conducted as such. The Army and Navy are composed of Americans who are our fellow citizens, and they should be treated as such.

Freedom of speech and liberty of opinion are the constitutional right of the American citizen, and no citizen should be deprived of that right—certainly not when he devotes his life and his efforts to the service and the protection of his fellow citizens.

We do not want any form of despotism in America.

Genuine despotism is dangerous, and petty despotism is contemptible.

Widen Strawberry Way If Bridge Is Built or Not

The projected extension of another north and south traffic artery received impetus through a statement of E. T. Whiter, vice president of the Pennsylvania Railroad, that his company will withdraw objection to a high-level bridge across the Allegheny, to connect with Bigelow boulevard, provided the point of approach is changed in the plans. Mr. Whiter had objected to a proposal to have the structure erected across Grant street approach to the Pennsylvania Station at Eleventh street.

His latest statement is that there would be no Pennsylvania opposition to a structure crossing above its properties in the rear of the station instead of in front of it. This, he said, would not interfere with the company's plans to erect an addition to the station on the Grant street approach at a later date. Other improvements contemplated in the same vicinity make it imperative that some attention be given to the esthetic aspect of the situation also. A bridge at that point might mar a whole lot of projected architectural beauty.

It also is announced the County Planning Commission is considering an alternative route to connect the east North Side with the Armstrong Tubes and Liberty Bridge approach at Forbes street, the object of the proposed high-level bridge. The Allegheny bridge plan calls for entrance into Bigelow boulevard via Chatham street. The alternative route would reach the boulevard by way of a widened Tunnel street, extending to Smithfield street via a widened Strawberry way and a cut through a block to Liberty avenue and Ninth street. This would make possible the use of the Ninth street Bridge, instead of the erection of a new structure.

A casual survey seems to indicate the Tunnel street approach to the boulevard should be adopted no matter which plan of crossing the Allegheny is ultimately decided upon. Also, Strawberry way should be widened no matter what may be the decision on the greater project. It should be done now, while inexpensive buildings occupy most of the unimproved property, which in-

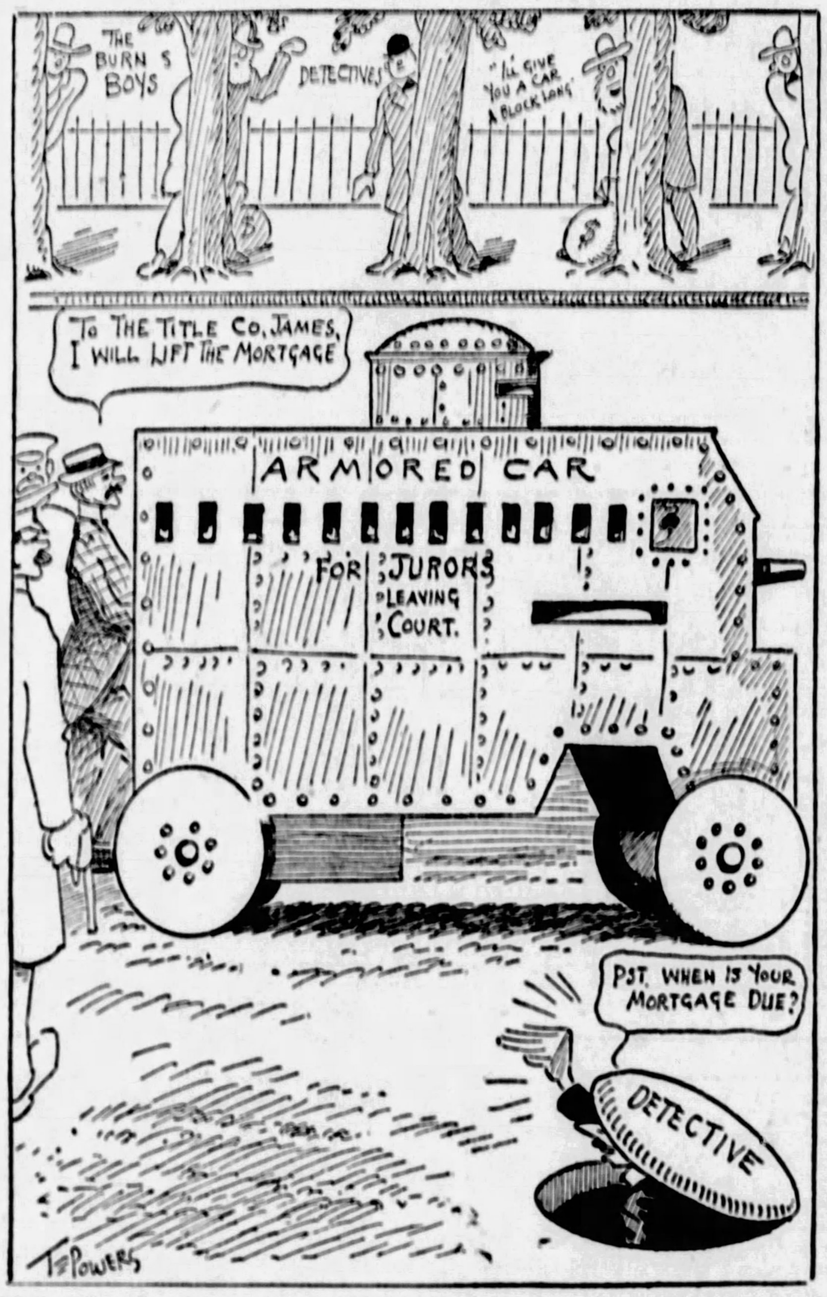
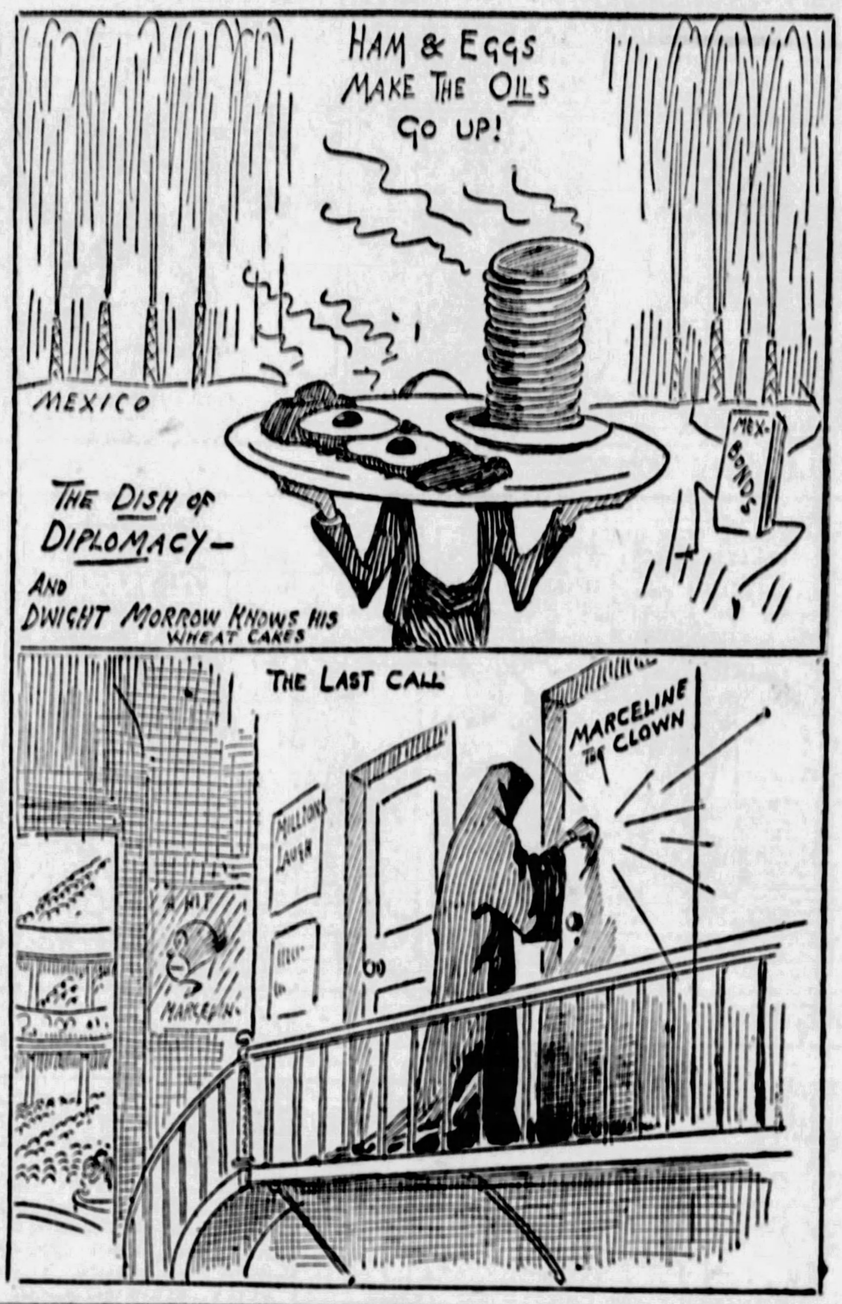
Armored Cars for Jurors -:- By T. E. Powers





Garrett P Serviss Says:

The South Polar Button

THE earth wears a huge white button at the South Pole. The Antarctic Continent surrounding this pole is greater than the entire United States in area, and in mean elevation it may be the highest land on the globe. Its whiteness is a token of its lifelessness. Except the fishing birds that live where its icy edges meet the cold, deep southern ocean, there is no sign of existence of any living creature upon this vast uplifted continent, sacrificed by the frosty touch of open space. No vegetation can grow in the eternal wastes of wind-swept snow, and without vegetation animals can not find subsistence.

"The bears, wolves, foxes, rabbits, musk oxen and caribou of the Far North," says a report of the National Geographic Society, "have not a single representative in the Far South known to man."

The Antarctic Continent seems inhospitable and forbidding from every point. Its enormous ice barrier, fringed with wild fields of pack-ice, and the fleets of immense icebergs that break off from the ice precipices with which it confronts the ocean, keep explorers from its shores, often holding them at a distance of hundreds of miles. It is only in a few rare localities that the real shore can be safely reached.

Yet there are volcanoes on this strange continent that have been seen in eruption—Mt. Erebus and Mt. Terror—and some indications of the existence of snow-buried coal deposits have been noted. So, its past history must have beheld scenes very different from its present spectral aspect. But its secrets are buried under a frozen cover, which in the central parts is probably thousands of feet in depth.

The contrast between the earth's two poles is one of the most extraordinary features of our globe. In place of the protruding button of the South Pole, the northern end of the earth's axis is marked by a deep basin filled by the Arctic Ocean, with its frozen moving platform seamed with rifts and interrupted by spaces of open water. It is a curious circumstance that the land hemisphere of the earth should center about a deep ocean basin, and the water hemisphere about a lofty plateau of land. Things do not happen without a cause, but the cause of this peculiarity of the earth remains to be discovered.

Commander Richard E. Byrd's proposed expedition for the exploration of the Antarctic continent interests scientific men in a high degree, and the National Geographic Society proposes to share in the undertaking. If the only result should be a good map of the great polar continent, showing its entire outline, the expedition could be said to have been a great success. It is only necessary to look at the best existing maps of the Antarctic regions to see how very imperfect our knowledge is of that most remarkable part of our planet.

Even more important would be the success of the efforts to be made to learn something of the meteorology of the Antarctic. That stupendous mass of high-lying ice cannot but exercise a great influence over the condition of the atmosphere of the whole southern hemisphere, which in turn must affect the northern hemisphere. The ice-covering of Greenland is a small thing compared with that of the south polar continent, and yet, as recent exploration has shown the atmospheric conditions emanating from the elevated ice-fields of Greenland play a great part in the storms of the North Atlantic. How much greater may be the influence of the mighty ice masses of the south. Stormy Cape Horn, which thrusts its rocky nose defiantly toward the antarctic icebergs may give answer!

Petty Annoyances

DID you ever think of making friends with the acquaintance who seems to annoy you most?

Not the one you despise for justified reasons, nor the one who has earned your hatred if you allow yourself to be so mean.

But the respectable and intelligent, honest and fearless one—a person to be admired but one who irritates you.

It may be as simple a matter as leaving off a "g" where it belongs in ending his words, or lack of knowledge of the ways of polite society.

Nothing criminal, but he is invariably doing the thing that seems disagreeable or uncouth to you.

An illiterate phrase, a sort of grimance, a stoop, a snort or a snicker that stirs your sensibilities the wrong way.

If you get the habit of letting these little things disturb you, life will become a nightmare.

Look at the matter squarely—try to find some good qualities to offset the annoying mannerisms and see how much happier you will be.

The Rhyming Optimist

By ALINE MICHAELIS

Childhood's Road

HAVE you ever tried to find one bright road whose turnings wind between meadows ever gay, where the friendliest breezes stray? Have you, worn with each day's load, sought again for Childhood's Road, that one road on all the earth where all miles are miles of mirth? Just to wander gladly there, leaving every grief and care, would you not with joy resign much that earth holds dear and fine? There's one way, and one alone; though the sages have not shown path to joys the worldly lack, yet a child can guide you back. With a child you can forget all earth's folly, all its fret, and serene in spirit go down bright ways you used to know. Childhood's gladness thrusts aside longings still unsatisfied; childhood's laughter rings, and then you tread Childhood's Road again!

Something to Think About

By BRUNO LESSING

Preaching and Practicing

JACK EDGE, of the London Daily Mail, suggests an interesting subject for thought, viz:

"Should anyone preach a thought or a doctrine at variance with his own manner of living?"

The moment you hear the word "preach" you naturally think of the clergy. The thought of a clergyman preaching goodness and practicing some form of badness is, of course, abhorrent. He could not hold his position if his weakness or vice were known. Therefore he must resort to hypocrisy and conceal it. Which adds another vice to his repertory.

The clergy alone deal professionally with matters pertaining to the next world, as well as this, and, having this exclusive prerogative, they have an exclusive responsibility.

But preaching is not confined to the clergy. It is the functions of every man who has the ear of the public and who takes life seriously. Writers, physicians, lawyers, statesmen and artists must preach in their various ways to deliver their message to their fellow-men.

Should such people be compelled to live up to their convictions before they attempt to express their views to the public?

A physician who devotes all his energies to preaching against the evil of narcotics and does much to prevent the unwary from acquiring the habit, is, occasionally, an addict himself. He knows what he is talking about. De-Quincey's Confessions of an English Opium Eater did much to check the spread of that habit in England.

Francis Bacon wrote essays which influenced for good the lives of many young men who read them. Those essays express sound philosophy and lofty thoughts. They are worth reading today. Yet Bacon did scandalous things in his life and ended his days in disgrace.

Shakespeare wrote,

"Ask God for temperance; that's the appliance only
"Which your disease requires. . . ."

People who read Shakespeare still read those lines and have the benefit of them. Yet Shakespeare was a notorious "soak."

Is not the victim of a vice or a weakness or an abnormal tendency better fitted to preach against it than some highly moral individual who knows human weakness only by hearsay?

Should we not all preach to the world the best that is in us, even though we have not the strength to practice it ourselves?

The best trainer for a prize-fighter is hardly ever able to lick the prize-fighter. Perhaps the man who has had five wives ought to be the best authority on the question of sticking to one.

THOUGHTS OF THE GREAT—

The wisdom of the wise and the experience of the ages may be preserved by the quotation.—Isaac Disraeli.

He that raiseth false hopes to serve a present purpose, only makes a way for disappointment and discontent.—Johnson.

New York Day by Day

NEW YORK, Nov. 11.—Thoughts while strolling: Those souvenir shops selling enameled cigaret cases with inset nude ladies. And topaz-handled daggers. John Erskine. Old cabbies who have discarded straw plug hats for those of patent leather. Those chow dogs with blackberry tongues.

Hungarian needlework and Venetian paintings. Haberdashery sign: "Stocks to hide boils." The seedy old man who sells collapsing balloon ducks. A derby named "The Jimmy Walker." More flags flung out—and few know why. New York wears patriotism on its sleeve.

Collegiates pants still flop. Kentucky Colonel types who sell corn salve. And timid fat women who seem to sneak up to penny scales. Chiffon scarfs and jeweled heels. Apartment houses with colonial fronts, red bricked courts and wigged doormen in knee breeches.

The Italian nobleman who wears a feather in his Homberg hat. And eat at Child's, Frank quick lunch sign: "This is not home cooking, but it's good grub." Those expansive mahogany desert-like first floor offices. With round shouldered vases and Turkish rugs.

The Fifth avenue 5 o'clock parade swings by. Expressionless girls with lips crookedly rouged. Old boys with buttery phrases whose wives are cooking their dinners. Solemn Britishers. Roaming auto flirts. Wing collars. Puff ties. Fin-de-siecle mustaches.

Wire-haired fox terriers with red leashes. Squat, waddling Scotties. And razor thin wolf hounds. Venerable ladies with A. D. T. escorts. Actors whose fame has exploded still swinging canes. The rotund Joseph Hergesheimer. The purr of pigeons around cathedral eaves.

Shirt-sleeved window dressers making ready for another day. Trim mannikins from dressmaking parlors. Night watchmen bring their pipes and chairs to doorways. Butlers peer through the grilled doors of the few remaining mansions. The son of a Swedish masseur who has scaled the social heights.

The hair bobbers are not exactly worried—but they may be if it keeps up. Many young girls of that world known as chic are appearing with slight loose knots of hair at the nape of the neck. Which means a number of ladies are letting their hair grow. Several toney shops have chipped in to hire a public relations counsel—upstage for press agent—and propaganda is being circulated to show shingled hair is not going the way of the puff sleeve. Such fads as short hair often disappear as quickly as they appear.

In one of those dip-your-doughnut cafes in Forty-fourth street, the counterman is delighting the stool sitters with slight-of-hand tricks. He makes knives and forks disappear in thin air, takes flowers out of paper napkins, draws black coffee from a silver urn and places it before you—all milk.

Jim Tully comes to town these days a successful novelist. His books sell well and his royalties are high, yet Tully likes to pay his hotel bills by writing advertising circulars and such for the inns at which he stops. Tramp and circus life has made money hard to spend—that is for mere food and lodging. Tully with a wild mop of red hair, heavy jowls and appearing ill at ease in store clothes, looks as though he knows much of the crooked life about which he has so entertainingly written. It was Rupert Hughes, I believe, who encouraged him when he was a hobo riding the rods. Tully has mellowed a little in his new world, but he is still a little embittered by the past.

Barkeep in Wax

MME. T. TUSSAUD'S famous waxworks have been revived in London and one of the new exhibits is a life-sized effigy of Harry Craddock, "the last American bartender to mix a cocktail." He is shown shaker in hand and apron gracefully draped across his mid-section.

The public has always had great faith in waxworks, but its credulity will be shaken by this exhibit. Photographs can't lie, of course, but waxworks, apparently, are different.

The "last American bartender to shake a cocktail" has not yet shaken it. Thousands of them are shaking cocktails every day. Why mislead the British that way?

Armistice Day Thoughts -:- By Dr. Frank Crane

Ground arms!

They are working at it at the League of Nations, and President Coolidge has been trying his best to get at a disarmament conference.

The Japanese statesman, Saito, recently said that the Japanese were very much in favor of disarmament and would try a conference again.

The Japanese are hardly to blame for their belligerency, for they were never recognized as a first-class power by the civilized nations until they had gone out and licked Russia.

People are finding out very slowly that wars never did any good. Capitalists are realizing that war kills as many dollars as it does men, and in the mind of the world killing dollars seems to be more serious than killing men.

It is a hard process to get the military spirit out of mankind.

We love a contest, as evidenced by the late Dempsey-Tunney match, and we love the larger contests of war. There is something in them that stirs the blood.

In fact, as Henry James pointed out, some way must be discovered to transfer the excitements of a military life over the ordinary business of life.

For all you may say against militarism it seems to have the monopoly upon certain good qualities.

A man in the army devotes his life to his country, he is loyal and he is obedient and he is disciplined.

Somehow we must make the spirit of public service and loyalty and discipline rule in the business world. Only then can we expect our youth to take up a business career with the same enthusiasm that they go out to war.

It has been written that man shall not live by bread alone. He must have his enthusiasms. And life is certainly more colorful when there is a great contest going on than otherwise.

The business world is becoming more and more interesting and indeed it is from the predominance of the ideas of business that we may expect the abatement of war.

Widen Strawberry Way If Bridge Is Built or Not

cludes two vacant lots and the Grant street school yard. Really, the widening of Strawberry way should extend to Liberty avenue or even to Penn avenue—a matter for the city if the county abandons its plan.

This is a project the public should interest itself in. Mr. Whiter has told the County Planning Commission what the railroad position is. Let others whose interests would be affected, and that includes all of us, be likewise alive. There is need for vision and vigilance.
